

Local Artists Exhibit Work In September Gallery Show

Local Artists Stage Interesting Exhibit

Maple Park Art Gallery began the season with success as the Klamath Art Association presented for the September show a rather ambitious exhibit in the way of a Juried Art Show.

This type of exhibition provides the artist with an appraisal of merit and allows a comparison of their work against the judgment of persons versed in evaluating artistic creativity. Although the artist's work is not accepted, a thorough study of work selected serves to acquaint the artist of what is expected of a painting to reach Jury demands.

The September show was judged by three out-of-town men and money prizes were awarded the winners.

The Klamath Art Association was gratified in the response given its endeavor to bring to Klamath Falls the metropolitan type of show not generally held in this size community.

Over 150 entries were submitted in "Dimensions of '63" and were viewed by more than 200 persons, many of whom became members of the association. Several also purchased paintings. Howard Hall took first place honors with his oil painting; Lyle Matoush received second award with a pencil drawing, and Mrs. M. G. Blackburn took third place with an oil. Honorable mentions went to Roberta McDonald and Ron Tore Janson.

Other participating artists included, in alphabetical order, James Beene, Clarence Bussman, Violet Beronowski, Jacqueline Carter, Kathy Chilcote, Vern Fridley, Teresa Ganong, Judy Griffith, Helen Giboney, Carol Hanson, John R. Howard, Sybil Holl, Doris Johnson, Katherine LeMire, Stella Meyers, Sharon McVay, Margie Newman, Agnes Oliver, Beth Pavlin, Bessie Pinion, Sharon Rajpus, Cynthia Rickbell, Carolyn Sanders, Natalie Swanson, Elice Skirvin and Laura Wooschlager. Klamath Falls is proud of its fine art gallery at Maple Park, made possible through the generosity of the town and local business and professional men here. Its continued success now depends on their patronage and that of visitors to the city.

At present, the gallery hours are from 2 to 3 p.m. on Sundays, September through May. However, plans are being made to extend the open hours.

The Klamath Art Association, in one of its purposes, strives to help the beginning artists as well as the established or visiting artist.

There will be exhibitions of local work, not juried, near Christmas, a members' show, and later in the spring, a general exhibit of beginning students' work.

In addition, the art association plans to bring some outside traveling shows to the Klamath Gallery. Slated for November is a water color show by Richard W. Tyler of Homer, Alaska.

Membership in the Klamath Art Association is $5 a single person or $7.50 a couple. Anyone interested in becoming a member should write to the association, Box 955, Klamath Falls.

CDA Party Festive Affair

Catholic Daughters look forward to the annual open house held each year which officially ushers in their fall and winter meetings and activities. This year proved no exception when approximately 130 members and guests attended the affair held in Sacred Heart parish hall Monday evening, Sept. 23. The theme "An Evening in Hawaii" was carried out in every detail, starting with an "Aloha" from June Lelli and Janet Derrah, pro at the door and presented everyone with a flower and name tag to wear during the evening.

Members and their guests were registered by Jan Heimann, hospitality chairman, and then seated at individual tables which were set about the hall in cabaret style, gaily decorated with bright leis and flowers by Lois Kessler, who was in charge of all the decorations. Students of the Normadean Dance Studio presented three Hawaiian song and dance routines. They were introduced by Mrs. Ruth Wickersham, their accompanist.

A welcome was extended to members and guests by Grand Regent Minnie Andrieu, who also gave an informative talk on the history of the Catholic Daughter organization since its inception, plus a review of the accomplishments of the local court which was organized 25 years ago.

Friends of the Rev. Charles J. Lavin, the new assistant pastor at Sacred Heart Parish, and a former member of the parish, were pleased to see him at the party, and welcomed him home. Father Lavin spoke briefly in behalf of the organization and urged all members to take an active part.

The refreshments were served from a buffet table centered with an artistic arrangement of driftwood, shells and flowers. Many members of this committee, headed by Bertha Spencer and Jean Underwood, were dressed in Hawaiian costumes which added greatly to the theme. During the refreshment hour, guests were serenaded by Lewis Gomer, who mingled among the ladies singing Hawaiian songs accompanying himself on his guitar.

Toward the end of the party, Grand Regent Minnie Andrieu thanked all of the chairmen and their committee members who helped make the affair such a success.

It was also announced that the next visit of the Bloodmobile to Klamath Falls will be under the sponsorship of the Knights of Columbus and Catholic Daughters.

The next regular business meeting of the Catholic Daughters will be held Monday, Oct. 14.

FOR LONG-LEGGERS — Short-legged girls shouldn't try to wear the new high boots. There are other boots around that are better proportioned for them and they'll still be in fashion.

SEA SHELL VASES

Sea shells make wonderful containers for summer flowers. If you are planning a trip to the seashore, collect some of the more attractive shells, suggests the Society of American Florists. Fill them with water to make sure they won't leak. Seal any holes with paraffin. Then insert into each shell a pre-saturated foam flower holder cut a little smaller than the shell, insert flower stems in the holder, and add water.

Mrs. Geri McCabe, Klamath Falls, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were another sister of the bridegroom, Merry Lee; the bride's sister, Linda Beltes, Annandale, Va.; a cousin, Wendy Lambuth, Bellevue, Wash., and Ellen Ward, Central Point. Sheri Truax, Grants Pass, was flower girl.

Gowns of the bridal party carried out the autumn tones which were used in gladioli to decorate at the church for the wedding. The honor attendant wore a tangerine frock matching that of the flower girl. Two bridesmaids were dressed in light yellow and two in pastel green. Each carried a white carnation bouquet.

Organist was Mrs. J. W. McCoy and soloist, Lynn Ferrell. Attending the bridegroom were Dale Truax, Grants Pass, as best man and Frank Alessio, Harry Hepner, Larry Pierce and Rick Pierce, all of Ashland, ushers.

The new Mrs. Lee's going away ensemble was a brown linen suit with cream colored accessories and the corsage from her bouquet. After a trip in Southern California and Lake Tahoe, the newlyweds have returned to Ashland to reside at 1430 College Way. The bridegroom will be a member of the faculty at Southern Oregon College where he was graduated last June.

KF Man Weds Ashland Girl

The marriage of Pamela Bettes, Ashland, and Jeffrey Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Lee, Klamath Falls, took place Aug. 17 in the First Presbyterian Church in Ashland. The Rev. B. J. Holland performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam D. Beltes, Annandale, Va., has made her home with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Beltes, while attending Southern Oregon College.

Following the wedding ceremony, the bride's grandparents were hosts at a reception in the Mark Anthony Hotel ballroom.

The bride's uncle, Alan Lambuth, Bellevue, Wash., escorted her to the altar and gave her in marriage. Her gown was all-over lace in floor length with fitted bodice, Sabrina neckline and long tapered sleeves. Sequins studded the skirt of tiered cascading side panels and full lace chapel train as well as the bodice. A pearlized crystalline princess crown with butterfly drop held her illusion net veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds and stephanotis encircling a white carnation corsage.
