of 111 yards gained. At right, Sonny Luke crashes over from one yard out for the third Owl score of the night. This one, plus the third straight extra point kick by Bob Bonner gave the Owls a half-time edge of 21-0.

BIG GROUND GAINER — Bruising Bob Battle led the successful Oregon Tech charge Saturday night in the 34-20 win over Grays Harbor. He is shown here as he powered over from the one-yard line to open the Owl scoring in the second quarter. In all, Battle carried the ball 24 times for a total of 124 yards and an average of 5.2 yards per carry. In this play, Rockne Luckman (73) and Jack Kutter (70) provided the slight run needed by Battle for the score. The Owls move into conference play this Saturday, entertaining Portland State.

Queen Pulls Out Win With Last Second Pass

PORTLAND (UPI) — Quarterback Gordon Queen lost a passing battle with Baylor's Don Trull Saturday night, but he won the war with a last-minute touchdown pass that gave Oregon State a 22-15 football victory.

Queen, who completed 11 of 22 passes for 191 yards, hit Danny Espalin on a nine-yard scoring pass with 27 seconds left to give the unbeaten Beavers their third win of the year and their 10th in a row.

Trull, perhaps the best professional prospect in the country, picked the OSU defenses apart with 16 completions in 23 attempts for 246 yards, but a defensive maneuver concocted by Beaver coach Tommy Prothro undid him.

Trull had passed the Bears back from a 15-0 deficit to tie the score early in the third quarter. The Bears marched 68 yards with the second-half kickoff for the tying points, scored on a one-yard plunge by Trull.

The Bears moved into touchdown territory again in the fourth period, when Prothro's strategy of luring Trull into throwing into the flat instead of down the middle paid off.

Sophomore Tim Osmer, playing in place of the injured Jim Sinyard, picked off a Trull pass on the Beaver 2 and returned it 50 yards.

Teams Split Record Fund

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Each member of the victorious Los Angeles Dodgers who was voted a full share of the World Series pot should receive at least $12,000.

The full shares for the losing New York Yankees is expected to amount to about $8,000 apiece.

Both estimated figures would be all-time highs.

The players' pools for the 1963 series totaled $1,017,546.53 — the first time in history it cracked the million dollar mark.

The previous high of $893,301.40 was established in the 1959 series between the Dodgers and the Chicago White Sox. Each Dodger received $11,231.18 and the losing White Sox received $7,275.17 apiece.

The World Series participants are awarded 70 per cent of the players' pool — 60 per cent of that figure going to the winning team and 40 per cent to the loser.

The second, third and fourth place finishers in each league carve up the remaining 30 per cent.

Although the Yankees and the Dodgers took clubhouse votes on how they will divide their shares before the series, the actual announcement will not be made until later this week by Commissioner Ford Frick.

The gate receipts for the 1963 series amounted to $1,965,189.09 — a record for a four-game series. However, the total attendance of 247,279 was not a record. The series between the Cleveland Indians and the New York Giants in 1954 attracted 251,507 fans.

Dodgers Pull Baseball Miracle In 4-Game Sweep Of World Series From N.Y. Yankees

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It was a baseball miracle, but the Los Angeles Dodgers pulled it off to erase the last remaining vestiges of a choke-up stigma that had haunted them for nearly a year.

They swept the World Series from the once-proud-and-mighty New York Yankees in the face of odds that were 25-1 against them.

But the oddsmakers didn't figure on that gilt-edged Dodger pitching, timely hitting and a surprisingly porous Yankee defense which yielded a seventh-inning gift run that enabled the Dodgers to win the fourth game, 2-1 Sunday, with Sandy Koufax pitching another masterpiece.

Actually, the Yankees' Whitey Ford pitched better, yielding only two hits, but the highly-touted Yankee defense let him down.

It was a bitter defeat for the Yankees — the first time they ever had been swept in the 28 Series in which they have played. To the Dodgers the victory was especially sweet for it wiped out the memory of their 1962 collapse when they lost the National League pennant after having it apparently wrapped up.

Alston Was Surprised

Manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers, whose job may have been in jeopardy had he not won the series, admitted he was surprised as anyone by the Los Angeles sweep.

"I never figured we'd do it in four," said the happy Alston. "I never gave much thought about how many games it would take to win, but if someone had asked me I'd have said six or seven."

Manager Ralph Houk was surprised, too.

Before the series he said he didn't look for either team to win it in four games "because we are so evenly matched."

"The Dodgers have a great club," added Houk, who suffered his first series defeat. "As soon as my players came into the dressing room after the game, I told them they have nothing to be ashamed of. They're going to be winning a lot more in the future."

He refused to single out any Yankee player for blame.

"The things which happened to us in the field could have happened to anyone," he reasoned.

fourth games of the series, each time beating Ford, the Yankees' 24-game winner.

Houk steadfastly refused to fault the Yankees in any way. "We didn't hit and it's a question of whether we were in a slump or that fine Dodger pitching just overpowered us," he said.

Alston, with a smile, called his pitching "mighty good."

"I expected it to be because it has been fine all season," he added.

But he refused to be drawn into any controversy on the respective defensive and offensive merits of the two clubs.

The Yankees were rated superior in both those departments before the series opened with the Dodgers given the edge in speed and pitching.

It turned out that the Dodgers had the edge in everything and thus brought about their baseball miracle.

Koufax Takes Bow As Yankee Killer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — On the banquet circuit this winter they'll toast Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers as the man who contributed most to the misery of the proud Yankees in 1963.

Koufax started the Yankees on the skids to their most humiliating World Series defeat last Wednesday in New York. And he dealt the knockout blow Sunday with a superb six-hit, 2-1 victory that completed the Dodgers' four-game sweep before 55,912 fans in sunsoaked Dodger Stadium.

He gave up six hits in each game, yielded a total of only three runs, and struck out 23 Yankee hitters, including a record 15 in the opening game.

But while Koufax is the glamorous boy who won the sports car as the outstanding player in the series, there were several other Dodgers who turned in "clutch" performances in the final game of the sweep.

Excuses Peptone's Error

This did he excuse the downcast Joe Peptone's failure to hold a throw from third baseman Cleve Boyer which would have retired Jim Gilliam in the seventh inning. As it was, Peptone lost the ball in the crowded background of the left field stands, and Gilliam raced all the way to third on the error. A few seconds later, Gilliam scored the winning run after Willie Davis fled deep to Mickey Mantle.

As soon as he spoke to his players, Houk went into the Dodger clubhouse to congratulate Alston and the Dodgers.

"If we had to lose," said Houk, a champion in defeat, "I'm glad it was to a club like the Dodgers. I'm glad for Alston. After the frustrating season they had the year before if somebody else had to win I'm happy it was a club like the Dodgers that won."

Houk was nettled by whispers and even some opinions expressed right out that the Yankees did not belong in the same league as the Dodgers.

"I wouldn't mind if the Dodgers were in our league," he said. "I'd like to play them all year. Some people might say they'd run us into the ground but I don't think so."

There was big Frank Howard, who in the fifth inning had delivered a mighty 450-foot homer off Ford for Los Angeles' first run.

And there were others who ignored the odds, refused to flinch before the favored Yankees and helped pull off this biggest World Series upset in several seasons.

In the end, it was a break which won for the Dodgers. Yet they had the alertness and the drive to capitalize on such advantages.

Mantle Homered

Howard's fifth-inning home run was offset in the top of the seventh by Mickey Mantle's homer into the left field stands which tied the score at 1-1. Mantle's homer was his 15th in series competition, tying a record set by Babe Ruth.

Ford, who gave up only two hits in the seven innings he worked, was sabotaged by his defense right at the start of the seventh.

Cleve Boyer at third made a fine, leaping grab of Gilliam's bouncer and threw to first for what appeared an out. But Peptone lost sight of the ball in the crowd background and it bounced off his wrist and chest and fled past him to the stands.

Gilliam took off for second base, took a look over his shoulder at Peptone still pursuing the ball and headed for third. He made it easily. Willie Davis then delivered the winning run with a fly to Mantle and Gilliam crossed the plate without sliding.

Koufax yielded a one-out single in the eighth to pinch-hitter Phil Lutz, who promptly was erased in a double play in which Dick Trucacci picked up Tony Kubek's grounder, tagged Lutz and threw to first base for the second out.
