

Oregon Tech Faces PSC In Loop Opener

It could be the make or break game for the Owls. This is how the 1963 Oregon Collegiate Conference opener shapes up for Ron Pleister's Oregon Tech gridders as they prepare for the invasion of the Portland State Vikings.

"This game should tell how good or how bad we are in the conference," is the Owl mentor's appraisal of the forthcoming grid titan.

The Vikings, with little All-American Billy "Bye-Bye" White, step onto the Modoc Field turf Saturday night with an impressive 2-1 record.

Under new coach Jerry Lyons, ex-Madison High School grid coach, the Vikes have downed the Pacific Badgers of the Northwest Conference and opened OCC play last weekend with a 38-0 lacing of Eastern Oregon College at La Grande.

The Vikes opened with a loss to the Lewis & Clark Pioneers in the annual VPI gridiron tradition in Portland.

The Owls jumped into the win circle last Saturday night by outlasting a strong Grays Harbor Chokers team 34-20 to put their non-counting record as they enter conference action at 1-2.

"Of course our big concern will be White," offers Pleister. The ex-Oregon star adds, "This is an explosive guy and he can kill you either with his running or pass catching."

The Owls will have to contain White and his outside running, plus the running of ex-Milwaukee standout Andy Berkis up the middle and ex-Roseburg teammate of White's, Jerry Humphreys, also on the outside.

The Vikings also possess one of the better passing attacks in the league in senior quarterback Mike Schunk zeroing in on end Jim Hollingsworth or White.

This fact, plus the passing attack owned by the Owls, lends credence to the belief that the contest will be one of better games played this year in the conference.

Both teams have highly explosive offenses, with top running to be added to the aerial work.

The Owls worked their offense against Portland State defense in Tuesday's workout, with defense coming under the watchful eyes of the staff in today's session.

All hands were reported to have survived the pad-popping battle with the Chokers last Saturday night in good shape.

Additionally, Owls expect to be at full-strength for the Viking fray for the first time since the season opener against the Seattle Ramblers.

Returning to the club after a leg injury is starting defensive tackle John Harris and making his first appearance since a knee injury suffered in the Rambler game will be Vaughn Cartwright, a 217-pound guard.

Pleister has announced Claude Shipp as a definite starter in the Owl backfield against the Vikings through a performance last Saturday night. Shipp is a 152-pound halfback from Saco, Frisco.

The Owls' plan in facing the strong Vikings is ball control.

PORTLAND (UPI) — Oregon Tech quarterback Mike Glines and defensive end Ron Baker of Southern Oregon were named back and lineman of the week in the Oregon Collegiate Conference Tuesday.

Glines sparked Oregon Tech to a 34-20 victory over Grays Harbor Junior College and Baker helped Southern Oregon gain a 33-0 win over Oregon College of Education last weekend.

Conference statistics after three games showed halfback Frank Ellis of Oregon College and quarterback Bill Bailey of Southern Oregon as the top rusher and passer.

Ellis has gained 220 yards in 60 carries for a 3.6 average per carry and Bailey has completed 33 passes in 56 attempts for 291 yards and one touchdown.

As a result, Hannum is trying to rebuild the Warriors into a contender that will feature more shooting by the other players, operating from a more varied attack.

And he says that the seven-foot, one inch Chamberlain is in accord with him.

"I've never worked with a more cooperative player than Wilt," Hannum said at a press conference Tuesday. "He told me that if an average of 50 points per game would help us win the title, he would try to keep it up. But he is willing to make changes if we could win without the big point total."

Poor Finish
Wilt had a 44.8 average during the 1962-63 season as the customary big guy in the Warrior offense. But they finished out of the money and only drew 147,260 for 37 home dates in their debut as a West Coast team.

Hannum came to the Warriors last August after coaching the Syracuse Nationals, who were transferred to Philadelphia during the NBA's post-season shuffle.

"We're working to form a more varied attack and better defense," Hannum said. "Wilt will figure strongly in both departments as we try to set up an excellent shot rather than just a quick one."

Hannum said that he didn't expect "any miracles out of Wilt" defensively but that they were working to improve his backcourt play.

Not a Russell
"Wilt probably never will be a Bill Russell but he has the desire to improve on defense," Hannum said. "One thing about training camp—we got to know each other pretty well."

It was there that Hannum found out how much the club depended on the "Big Dipper."

"Wilt hadn't reached camp when I had a scrimmage between the veterans and the rookies," Hannum said. "The vets had grown so dependent on Wilt that the rookies took them apart."

The Warriors, who open a final exhibition road trip tonight when they face the Los Angeles Lakers at Stockton, Calif., still are looking for a good outside shooter.

VIKINGS NEXT FOE — Oregon Tech's outstanding pass receiver, Vic Ventura, will attempt to duplicate his successful receiving job against the Portland State Vikings at Modoc Field Saturday night as the Owls open Oregon Collegiate Conference play. Ventura pulled in a pair of Mike Glines' passes good for 33 and 32 yards among others in the Owls' winning effort last Saturday against Grays Harbor JC.

Pelicans Prepare For Conference Opener Friday With Grants Pass

Another difficult test. This is the outlook for coach Bob Williams' KU Pelicans this weekend as they travel to Grants Pass for a return meeting with the strong Cavemen and the start of Southern Conference play.

The Pelicans are still seeking the initial victory of the season after having dropped decisions to the Cavemen, South Salem, Corvallis and North Salem in that order.

Last Friday night the Pels came on with their most impressive offensive and defensive show of the young season, although being tagged with a 19-2 setback.

Still, for 44 minutes, the outcome of the contest was in doubt, with the Vikings holding only a slim advantage. And it wasn't until the final four minutes that the talented Vikings broke loose for two quick touchdowns to sew up the win.

The entire Klamath Falls defensive unit was impressive even in defeat as they threw up a rock defense to battle off a second North Salem touchdown in the first half and in the second half stopped the vaunted Viking running attack on numerous occasions and forced at least two fumbles.

And the KU offense continued to impress between the five-yard lines of the field, but was not able to push across for the vital six points.

Work this week will again see offense and defense polished, with both keyed to the type of offense and defense offered by the Cavemen.

Last Friday night the Pels were without the services of Mike Kitching, one of the top rushers on the club and this week he is expected to be ready for the conference opener.

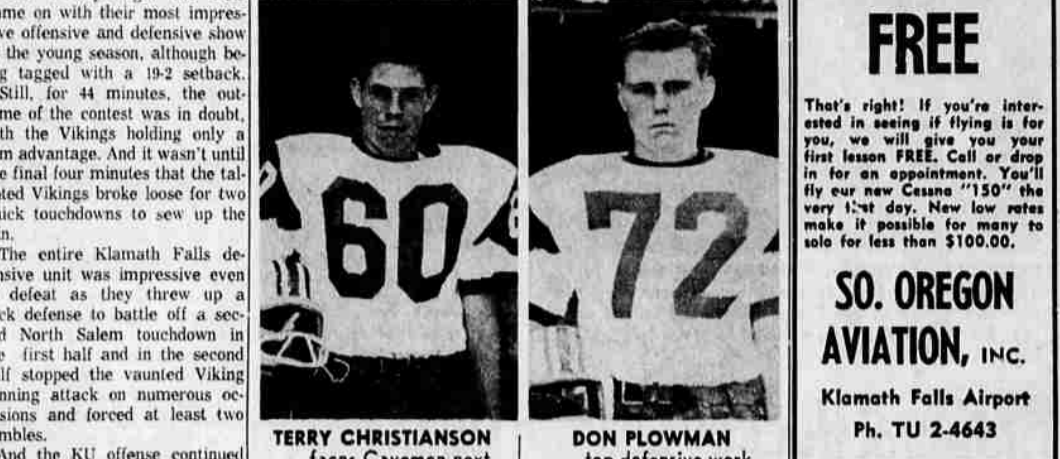

The loss of Kitching, prior to the North Salem contest, left the lion's share of the work to full-back Chuck Mills and he responded in fine fashion by giving the Pels valuable yardage throughout the contest.

With both Mills and Kitching back in action, the Pelican offense could see a vast improvement against the Cavemen.

Grants Pass has been improving steadily since the season opened at Klamath Falls when a 12-0 decision was recorded over the Pelicans.

The Cavemen now boast a 3-0 record, with the deadlock coming at the hands of North Salem on the Viking field.

The Pelicans will again be underdogs in the contest as they have in each outing thus far.

Top Women Golfers Begin Play

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The top women golfers in the nation get in their first action here today in the pro-amateur prelude to the $15,000 Ladies National PGA golf championship which starts Thursday over the Stardust Golf Club course.

Heading the 45 women links stars is Mickey Wright, winner of a dozen tournaments on the ladies tour this year. Miss Wright is seeking to regain the ladies PGA championship she surrendered last year to Judy Kimball after winning it three times.

Miss Kimball is back to defend her title in the field that includes the winners of every woman's tournament this year in the feminine pro ranks.

Others who will be challenging include Kathy Whitworth, winner of five tournaments; Marilyn Smith, who took top money in three tournaments and single tournament winners Betsy Rawls, Marlene Hagge, Shirley Englehorn, Ruth Jessen, Mary Mills and Barbara Romack.

Torres Is Favored

TEANECK, N. J. (UPI) — Jose Torres, a slugger from Puerto Rico, will be an 11-5 favorite to beat Don Fuller of West Jordan, Utah, here tonight in a scheduled 10-round middleweight bout.

Fullmer's brother Gene will be in his corner for the bout.
