

Fish Leaves Three More Seriously Ill

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The latest victim of the rare but deadly botulism outbreak was reported in "very critical" condition today.

The patient, George Breault, 54, was placed in a respirator after the virulent food poisoning began to affect his respiratory system Thursday.

Two other persons were in "serious" condition at the University of Tennessee Hospital in Knoxville. The food poisoning, apparently stemming from packaged smoked whitefish, has claimed seven lives—five in Tennessee and two in Michigan.

Medical authorities said the supply of antitoxin should be adequate, as long as there are no new cases. They said some additional antitoxin has been located in Moscow and at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, but apparently no call has been made yet for these supplies.

There was uncertainty that all of the contaminated fish believed responsible for the outbreak has been found. Ohio health officials said Thursday there was a "distinct possibility" that some of the suspected smoked whitefish packed by the Dornbos Bros. Fisheries of Grand Haven, Mich., was sold in Ohio.

Type "E" botulism was responsible for the deaths in Kalamazoo, Mich., last Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Mitchell and the deaths Monday in Knoxville of David Cohen, 35, and his daughter Amy Beth, 10, according to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

Tests continued today in the deaths of F. W. Pruter, 36, Mrs. Anna Phelps, 51, and Mrs. C. Daley, 49, all in Nashville.

The deaths had been unexplained until Cohen, vice president of a furniture company, and his daughter died within 15 minutes of each other at University Hospital Monday morning.

Religious Issue Clouds Debate On Federal Aid To Colleges Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate edged toward the thicket of the religious issue today in debate on a $1.5 billion (b) program of federal aid to colleges.

Voting on the big education measure, however, was put off until Tuesday under an agreement that will limit debate then on amendments to 1 1/2 hours each and six hours on the bill.

With plenty of debating room left open for Saturday and Monday before showdown voting starts, backers began marshaling forces to steer the bill past the bristling religious issue.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said he would offer an amendment to bar any of the proposed grants and loans for classroom construction from going to sectarian colleges and universities.

Ervin said in an interview that he felt any use of public funds to support a religious institution would be a violation of the Constitution's First Amendment.

The North Carolina Democrat acknowledged that if approved, the amendment might bar any federal aid in the bill from going to Davidson College or Wake Forest College in his home state.

Ervin also said he would press for action on another controversial amendment permitting private citizens to challenge any grants by authorizing court suits to test the validity of such aid.

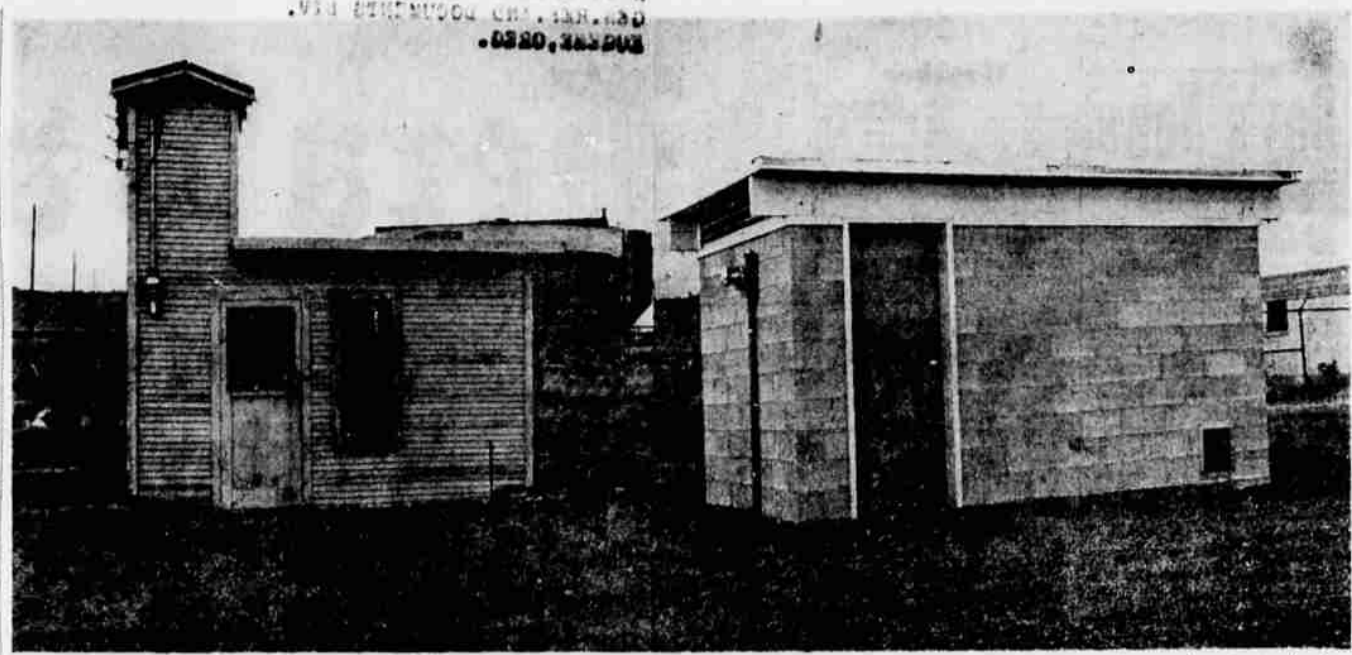

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., floor manager for the "second installment" on President Kennedy's broad 24-point education program, served notice he would oppose Ervin's amendment.

The first test vote, however, was expected to come on a substitute bill sponsored by Sen. Winston L. Prouty, D-Vt., to have the Senate accept a House-passed $1.2 billion aid to education bill.

Prouty said his sole aim was to "get an education bill this year" and not have differing House and Senate versions "hogged down hopelessly in conference or in the House Rules Committee."

By accepting the House bill intact, Prouty said in opening round debate, the Senate could send the measure directly to the White House.

The Senate bill provides loans and grants to colleges over five years for construction of science and engineering classrooms and libraries. No funds could be used to build Bible colleges or classrooms devoted to instruction in theology.

THE OLD AND THE NEW — A new storm water pumping station this week replaced an old one at the foot of Owens Street. The old station (left) was built in 1933, but was found to be inadequate and was torn down to make way for the new facility (right). One pump was transferred to the new station from the old, and two new pumps were installed. Storm drainage water from Mills Addition collects under the station and is pumped into surface ditches. The total project also included the revamping of the storm drain system under Owens and White streets to eliminate flooding. Total cost was $10,000, half of which went for the station. City crews did the work. The station was designed by Robert G. Kyle, city manager.

Exiles Offer Medical Aid

MIAMI (UPI) — About 1,500 exiled Cuban doctors have volunteered to return to their Communist homeland and help their countrymen recover from the ravages of killer hurricane Flora.

The offer was made by the 1,500-member Cuban Exile Medical Association Thursday after Cuban broadcasts said there was a critical need for medical aid in the storm-torn provinces of Camaguey and Oriente.

Dr. Enrique Huertas, president of the association, said the doctors would return under the protection of the United Nations and the International Red Cross.

Huertas emphasized the physicians would stay in Cuba only until the emergency passed, then headed out at the "cruel and incredible rejection by Fidel Castro of the American Red Cross aid."

Havana Radio reported only 47 known dead from the vicious tropical twister, but there were indications the Castro government faced a major catastrophe.

Tiny French Singer Dies

PARIS (UPI) — Edith Piaf, France's "sparrow" of the streets, died today in her Paris home after a long illness. She was 47.

The petite singer died of an internal hemorrhage, a medical spokesman said.

She returned Thursday by ambulance from her Riviera villa, where she had spent most of the summer recuperating after falling ill last winter during her last public performances.

The frail, mop-haired little woman with the great voice was a French symbol for more than a generation in music halls around the world.

Her story, one of illness and tragedy, showed itself in her powerful delivery of French love songs.

Friends of the singer said Miss Piaf fell into a coma at her villa about 2 a.m. Thursday and was rushed by plane and ambulance to her Paris home.

She was to have been admitted today to the American Hospital at Neuilly.

Negro School Boycott Expected To Continue

PLAQUEMINE, La. (UPI) — Negro students who have been teargassed by police for the past three days in protest marches in Iberville Parish (county) today were expected to continue their boycott of Negro schools.

The students are seeking desegregation of public schools and other anti-discrimination action.

Student leaders were vague about the plans but police stood ready to break up any demonstrations and Sheriff C. A. Griffin said he found information to link the marches with the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

Griffin said he found "an official paper" in the pocket of arrested Negro leader Charley Oubre, 19, linking Oubre with CORE. The students have said they were not connected with CORE.

A state district judge issued an injunction Thursday forbidding CORE from demonstrating in the parish. Ronnie Moore, CORE Louisiana field secretary, said the injunction would be appealed.

Although about 1,400 students stayed away from three schools Thursday, only 50 took part in the demonstrations and a rally.

Arrested with Oubre was James Payne, 28, of Birmingham, Ala. Both were charged with disturbing the peace and refusing to move on. Payne was additionally booked with inciting a riot.

Sheriff's deputies fired about 10 tear gas projectiles over the heads of one marching group led by Payne. Another group headed by Oubre dispersed when deputies pulled out tear gas equipment. Both groups were made up of about 25 Negroes.

Elsewhere in the Nation: Birmingham, Ala. — Negro leaders continued preparations today for a possible resumption of massive racial demonstrations with a number of "nonviolent workshops" teaching tactics for demonstrations. Integration leader Martin Luther King Jr. is expected to return to Birmingham Monday.

Washington — A presidential team reported to President Kennedy Thursday on its personal study of the Birmingham situation. Former Army secretary Kenneth Royall and former Army football coach Earl Blaik refused comment on their report except to say "we had excellent cooperation by Negroes and whites."

Washington — The Defense Department ordered all military installations in the United States with 500 or more military personnel to submit semi-annual reports on off-base racial discrimination.

Oxford, Miss. — A Mississippi highway patrolman has filed suit against the United States for serious injuries he claims to have suffered during the University of Mississippi integration riot Sept. 30, 1962. Patrolman Welby Brunt, asking $150,000 in damages, claims he was struck on the head by a tear gas projectile fired needlessly and carelessly by a U.S. deputy marshal.

Seven Latin Words Cause Controversy

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Seven Latin words about papal infallibility are causing controversy at the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council.

The words are: "Ex sese, et non ex consensu ecclesiae."

Freely translated, they mean that the Pope's infallible teaching authority is exercised "from himself" — that is, in his own right — and is not dependent on the "consent of the church."

In other words, the Pope doesn't have to poll the bishops of the church before defining an article of faith which all Catholics are bound to believe. Theoretically, at least, he could proclaim a dogma to which 99 percent of the bishops and theologians of the church were opposed. And it would become, for Catholics, an infallible declaration of divinely revealed truth.

The seven Latin words which express this concept were adopted by the last Ecumenical Council, which met at the Vatican in 1870. While there is no question of repealing them, some of the bishops attending the current Ecumenical Council would like very much to see them "clarified" and "put into context."

His feelings were voiced in council debate Thursday by a noted U.S. prelate, Archbishop Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore. He noted, with wry understatement, that "the Catholic doctrine of papal infallibility gives rise to many difficulties with our separated brethren."

He suggested that this obstacle to Christian unity might be removed, or at least reduced somewhat in size, by taking "great care" at this council session to make clear that divine protection from teaching error in faith or morals is not a sort of magical personal prerogative which a Pope may exercise arbitrarily, but is rather a gift of God to the whole church, and in actual practice is always an expression of a consensus widely if not unanimously held among the bishops.

House Cuts Space Budget, Rules Out Joint Venture

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration counted on the Senate today to restore deep House cuts in the space budget, and to overturn a surprise resolution barring any joint U.S.-Soviet moon expedition.

The amendment, which caught administration forces unawares, was tacked on to the catch-all $13 billion independent agencies appropriations bill that included the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) budget.

Sponsored by Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., it banned use of space funds for any joint moon effort with Russia, as suggested by President Kennedy last month in a speech before the United Nations General Assembly.

Pelly said it would be folly to share in a moon venture with the Russians. The House, on a non-record vote, approved Pelly's amendment, 125 to 110.

At the same time the House approved a NASA budget of $5.1 billion for the fiscal year ending June 30. Members ignored warnings from space agency officials that anything less than $5.3 billion would set back the Apollo man-on-the-moon program by two years and increase its overall cost by from $2 billion to $3 billion.

The bill as it came to the House floor provided $600 million less for space than was originally asked by the President. But the House earlier had placed a $5.3 billion ceiling on space spending and the administration agreed to go along with the lower figure.

Soybeans Put Under Embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interstate Commerce Commission said Thursday that Galesburg, Ill., and the Pacific Northwest are full of soybeans.

As a result, the ICC ordered the Association of American Railroads to halt all future shipments of soybeans to the area.

In the Northwest, the embargo will apply to shipments of bulk grain as well as to soybeans. It will affect all shipments to Portland and Astoria, Ore., and Kalamazoo, Langview, Vancouver, Tacoma and Seattle, Wash.

Also embargoed are all shipments of bulk grain and soybeans consigned for inspection or diversion to Denver, Ogden, Spokane and all other inspection points west of those points.

McNamara Rejects Navy Bid For Nuclear Carrier

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a decision sure to set off a storm of protest Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has rejected urgent Navy proposals to build a second nuclear powered aircraft carrier for the U.S. fleet.

After many months of deliberation, the decision was reached Wednesday that a new conventionally powered flattop should be built instead of the atomic type recommended by Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover and other nuclear experts.

Official announcement of the McNamara action was expected today, though there was the barest possibility it could be held up by Navy requests for further consideration.

A Defense Department official acknowledged that Navy Secretary Fred Korth was likely to urge McNamara to reconsider. But this official regarded the decision as final and thought new pleas "won't do any good."

The chief reason for McNamara's action appeared to be economy. A nuclear powered carrier might cost $125 million more than the conventional type.

Korth and Adm. David L. McDonald, now chief of naval operations, would be willing to sacrifice several other ships in order to build the atomic carrier without enlarging the Navy budget. But McNamara was reported to have rejected this.
