

British Ryder Cup Players Eyeing U.S. For Larger Golf Tournament Jackpots

ATLANTA (UPI) — Fearless Fraley's fairway shots and figures from the Ryder Cup golf matches:

The televised "World Series of Golf" which now matches the U.S. and British Open, Masters and PGA champions will become a true "world series" if current plans mature.

Ed Carter, one of the brains behind the current TV spectacular, has opened offices in London to put on an all-Britain "World Series" among champions of Ireland, Scotland, Wales and England.

"Once we get this on the road we envision on all-Europe event, all-Asia and all-South America," he discloses. "Once we get those running, we can bring all of the sectional winners together in a real world series."

Big Jackpots

Carter is moving in Britain because he believes that pay television will be a reality in England before it will in the United States ... and there, bub, is where the big jackpots will be hit ...

Four of the British Ryder Cuppers are planning to return to the United States in January for a crack at the rich U.S. pro golf tour. They are Weishman Dave Thomas, Ireland's Christy O'Connor, Scotland's George Will and Briton Neil Coles ... and you can't blame them when you consider that Britain's leading money winner grossed only $19,600 this year — while U.S. leader Arnold Palmer has banked $127,555 ...

Coles, 29, has a wild and woolly head of hair. When he teed off at East Lake against Julius Boros and Tony Lema, the gallery remarks were something to hear. "It's Doctor Zorba," said one, referring to a Dr. Ben Casey television character. "No," said another, "it's one of the three stooges." ... another allowed he wouldn't be fooled and that Coles had nylon hair ...

Will Unperturbed

Will, the slender Scotsman, wasn't the least bit perturbed at facing Arnold Palmer even though it was the young Briton's first Ryder Cup appearance.

"We came here to play the Americans," he shrugged. "And Palmer is an American, isn't he?"

Bill MacDonald, Miami sportsman on hand as a member of the PGA advisory committee, was more engrossed in horses. He said that when Tropical Park, in which he is a part owner, opens on Thanksgiving Day, the track through a charity day program hopes to raise $100,000 for the University of Miami ... to buy football players? ...

They played "God Save the Queen" and the "Star Spangled Banner" to open the Ryder Cup matches in Atlanta ... several hundred waited around afterwards and expressed disappointment that the band did not also trill out the strains of "Dixie."

Dow Finsterwald had the best explanation of the U.S. team's strategy in the Scotch foursome matches, where two-man teams play alternate shots.

"You hit it," he told his partner, "and I'll help you look for it."

IMPORTANT MEASURE — Officials had to get the tape out on the sixth hole during the first day of the Ryder Cup Matches Friday, when British players Brian Buggett and George Will, who were playing against Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper, asked to see which ball was farthest from the cup. The British won. The U.S. was closer which gave the British players a chance to study the green, with the U.S. putting first. —UPI Telephoto

Turner Loses First Pro Bout To Third-Ranked Jose Stable

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Welterweight Jose Stable easily beat champion Emile Griffith because Dick Turner fights the same way as the champ.

Stable, windmill-punching Cuban, handed Turner of Philadelphia the first defeat of his pro

"I will finally get my chance at Griffith," Stable said. Matchmaker Teddy Brenner of New York said Stable would "positively" get a chance at Griffith in early 1964.

Stable's victory stopped 24-year-old Turner's victory string at 13 bouts.

This was Turner's first defeat in 21 pro bouts, including one draw. The 23-year-old Stable scored his 22nd victory in 25 fights. He lost two and fought one draw.

Weed Tops Eureka For 14th Straight

By DAN WALTERS
Herald and News Staff Writer

WEED, Calif.—Weed's Cougars, showing the ground power and speed that have made them a legend in Northern California, knocked off Eureka's Loggers here Friday night, 32-6, for their 14th straight win.

Weed rarely passed, but ground out the yardage on the legs of halfback Robert Delgado and fullback Omri Hildreth.

Eureka, on the other hand, attempted numerous passes, but couldn't get their offense rolling.

The Loggers' one tally came early in the second quarter when halfback Ed Weekly slipped over right tackle and through the Cougar secondary for a 70-yard touchdown gallop from the Eureka 30.

But that was all for the Eureka and the Cougars mastered the rest of the game.

Before the one Eureka score, the Cougars had already made two touchdowns.

Delgado plunged over from the four-yard line for the first tally, but a Eureka lineman was able to block the conversion kick attempt.

Eureka fumbled the ball on the first Eureka play following the kickoff and Weed recovered on the Eureka 45. But the Cougars lost the ball on downs and Eureka took over again on the Eureka 36.

The Loggers quickly gained a first down when Eureka halfback Lief Flak caught a pass on the

Youth Uses Bicycle In Taking Deer

The grandson of a Klamath Falls couple, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Searles, recently added a new twist to deer hunting.

Rather than a high-powered rifle and jeep, Don Hansell, 16-year-old junior at Red Bluff High School, used a different method in bagging his buck.

Hansell used a bicycle and a 30-06.

He and a friend went out on opening day and shortly before noon they were borne with a forked horn draped across the rear carrier of Hansell's bike.

The deer weighed in at almost 100 pounds field dressed.

This method was not new to Hansell as he used the same bicycle and same rifle in taking his deer last year — near the same place.

"In spite of this, he can kick and returned and asked for this chance. Mr. Pfeister, whom he had been told was one of the finest men in his field, gave David a chance.

"I hope you don't feel I am out of line ... we will be in Klamath Falls again next Saturday for the game and regardless of who is given recognition, we will buy the paper to read all about it.

"Sincerely, Mrs. V. C. Kirksen."

Comment:

I stand corrected and I hope Dave continues his outstanding work. The PAT department is anything but small—it's one of the most important phases of the game of football.

And Dave is another to whom youngsters may look for additional spark when things seemingly are too tough. Another player who has overcome some handicap to win his place.

OREGON END WILL BUY POINTS

At Oregon, the Ducks' Rich Schwab literally can't buy a touchdown.

Each week prior to Oregon games, he has played a coin in the end zone of the opponent. It started at a penny and last weekend reached a quarter against West Virginia.

The Oregon end feels he should be able to collect at least one TD aerial.

Saturday against Idaho the price went to four bits.

If he didn't score Saturday, the knot hole gang will begin to follow his every step. . . .

Illinois Valley Cougars Smash Henley Hornets In League Play

The Henley Hornets saw an early lead against the Illinois Valley Cougars melt to a 20-19 deficit at halftime and then completely vanish as the host club collected a 46-19 win over the Hornets.

It was two big quarters for the Cougars—the second and third—

Bears Rally To Tie Duke

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—California's underdog Bears, led by the cool quarterbacking of Craig Morton, rallied in the fourth period Saturday to earn a 22-22 tie with undefeated Duke.

The Bears got a break during the final minute of play when Duke was penalized 15 yards for coaching from the sidelines after the kicking tee had been thrown out on the field toward fullback Curtis.

The infraction set the ball back to the Cal 23 and on the final play of the game Curtis failed for the third time to boot a three-point.

Trailing 22-14 with 9:56 minutes to play, the Bears gained the standoff when Morton connected on a 31-yard scoring pass to Jack Schraub who took the ball in the end zone with three defenders around him.

Then Morton accounted for the vital two points by passing to Jerry Mosher after starting to boot the ball around right end.
