Memorizing Only Works For Short Period

By The Reading Laboratory
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Do you know what the capital of Kentucky is? What was the date of the First Continental Congress? Name the different kinds of algae. What is the precise formulation of Charles's Law?

If you had the answers to those questions on the tip of your tongue, don't bother to read any further. You already know how to memorize.

But if you couldn't anwer them all, here's why. At one time in your schooling, you had to memorize the capitals of the states. You probably remembered them. What happened was that you formed a kind of nervous "rut" in your brain between, say, Kentucky and Frankfort. On the test, when the teacher said "Kentucky," a little bell would ring, the nervous rut would connect Kentucky with Frankfort—and you'd get an A on your test. But once the test was over, you didn't use the rut any more and it gradually diappeared. That's why you didn't know it today. Because memorizing works over a short period of time, but it doesn't stick.

So never be satisfied with memorization without understanding. If you understand something, it'll stick; it becomes part of you. Straight memorizing doesn't stick.

But there are times when memorization is necessary. Dates in history, formulas in physics, definitions in math, selections of poetry—all may require memorization. But memorize them only after you've understood why they should be as they are.

There seem to be three different types of memories: visual, auditory and olfactory.

Most people (about 90 per cent) have visual memories. They remember pictures better than sounds. If you have a visual memory, use it. For instance, if you have to remember a long series of items, think of a picture you can associate with each item (the sillier the better), then tie all the pictures into a single big picture and just remember that. On a test, it'll be easy to "decode" the picture.

You may have an auditory memory. (If you're musically inclined, you'll probably be an "audiophile.") For you, the best way to memorize is in singsong, repetitive patterns—the more tuneful the better.

Another good way that seems to work equally well for both types of memories is to make nonsense words from the first letter of each item to be memorized.

A few people remember odors more easily than they remember sounds or pictures. Despite modern research with perfumed texts, no sure-fire memorization technique for the "odorophiles" has been discovered.

No matter what type you are, save the memorization until shortly before a test; it's the only way you can be sure it'll stick.

Candy Making School

Wednesday Oct. 16th

TWO SCHOOLS
2:00 - 4:00 - 7:30 - 9:30

MILLS SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

E. Remington Davenport has been a professional candymaker for 27 years and has traveled in Europe and all parts of this country, exchanging candy secrets with top professionals. He is the author of two books on candymaking. One of these will be available for those desiring them . . . but no one has any obligation to purchase it.

LEARN HOW TO MAKE DELICIOUS CANDY AT HOME!

Mr. and Mrs. E. Remington Davenport demonstrate candy making technique. They have 27 years experience in candy making.

Learn how to make fudge, peanut brittle and after dinner mints

Mr. Davenport makes three candies before the class and thereby teaches ten kinds of related candies. In making creamed fudge he shows how to make such candies as fondant, divinity and Mexican penuche. In making after dinner mints, he shows how to make taffy and molasses suckers. And with the peanut brittle, he gives sufficient information to enable the class to make English Toffee, pop-corn crisp and nut glaze candies.

Find the answers to such questions as "What makes my candy turn to sugar?" "What makes candy curdle?" "Why do some recipes say cook without stirring?" "Why does it take so long for my fudge to get creamy?" and "For divinity to set-up?" These and other questions you may have will be answered in this interesting and informative demonstration-lecture.
