

Grounded Astronaut Leaves AF

HOUSTON (UPI) — Maj. Donald K. (Deke) Slayton, 39, whose "grossly irregular" heartbeat made him the only original U.S. Mercury astronaut never to make a space flight, has given up his Air Force career.

He will continue with the national space agency as a civilian. "Maj. Slayton feels that in a civilian capacity, he can better carry out his supervisory activities," a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said.

Slayton said in his letter of resignation from the Air Force that he felt that as a civilian, he can participate in selection of flight crews without the possibility of appearance of partiality toward any one branch of the service. He asked that the resignation be made effective Nov. 20, giving proper time for processing of his records. Slayton will then be appointed a civilian astronaut and coordinator of astronaut affairs through civil service.

He will be the third civilian astronaut among America's first 16 chosen for space. The others are former civilian test pilots Neil Armstrong Jr. and Elliot See.

"Being a civilian gives Slayton a sense of permanency," the NASA spokesman said. "It means that he will not just be assigned here as an Air Force officer, but will be here with us permanently."

All military astronauts are on loan to NASA from the various branches of the service.

Mrs. Givan, M. Brauner Named On County Boards

Two long-time residents of Klamath County have each been named to serve on one of two county boards, effective immediately, the Klamath County Court announced late Wednesday.

The two appointees, Mrs. Joanna Givan and Martin F. Brauner, have been named to fill the unexpired terms of their predecessors.

MRS. JOANNE GIVAN

Mrs. Givan, retired teacher and librarian at Bonanza High School, has succeeded Mrs. Margaret Whitlatch on the Klamath County Library Board and will serve with the five-member board through Jan. 1, 1964. Her predecessor, Mrs. Whitlatch, served a number of years on the board before resigning Aug. 31.

Mrs. Givan was born in this county and has lived here all of her life except for several years when she attended Oregon State University. She is a resident of Bonanza.

Brauner, owner and operator of the local plumbing supply house of that name, has relieved Dick Hicks as a member of the Klamath County Parks Commission. Hicks, who served on the now defunct city park and recreation committee with his successor some years ago, resigned from the post Oct. 1 to open a business at Grants Pass. His term on the board was to expire Sept. 1, 1964.

Brauner was born in Idaho and came to Klamath Falls in 1934 where he was employed as purchasing agent for the Lorenz Company.

When that firm terminated its business some eight years ago, Brauner opened the supply company now bearing his name.

He and his wife, Opal, live at 1010 North Seventh Street. They have two daughters, Katie, a sophomore at Oregon State University, and Judy, a graduate of Lewis and Clark, now residing in San Francisco.

Point Road Will Get Seal Coat

The Klamath County Court has indicated that a seal coat would be applied to an eight-tenths mile strip of road near Rocky Point sometime early next year, it developed about noon Wednesday during a session between the county commissioners and representatives of the Upper Klamath Lake Grange.

The members of the grange told the commissioners that the unimproved strip of road bearing north from the paved highway to Rocky Point was the source of voluminous clouds of dust created by passing automobiles.

The dust is a continual discomfort to summer home owners in the area, the representatives said. They also pointed out that traffic has increased along the road since the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce has had road signs erected indicating that the thoroughfare is part of the route on Pelican Loop No. 1.

Seal coating of the road has been deferred until after next winter when the project will be of greater benefit to property owners in that area, the commissioners said. Representing the grange were William Glidewell, Warren David Baker and Ira G. Parish. County commissioners include Ken Allison, Judge Robert Walker and Frank Ganong.

Park Wins Korea Vote

SEOUL, Korea (UPI)—Former President Posun Yun conceded defeat today in Korea's presidential election in a telegram congratulating the winner, military junta leader Park Chung Hee.

Park, the ex-general who overthrew the last civilian government in 1961, won by little more than 150,000 votes and failed to get a majority of votes cast.

It was the first time the loser of a Korean election had sent such a message to the winner.

Wednesday, Park cabled Yun urging him to participate in forwarding Korean interests.

In an apparent reference to the narrow margin of victory, Yun's message urged Park to "strive for the development of democracy of our country, paying due respect to the people's mind expressed in the election."

Official returns compiled by the central election committee in Seoul gave Park a margin of 151,995 votes, with only 20,000 still uncounted of the 19,857,062 votes cast.

New Spacemen Will Be Named

HOUSTON (UPI) — A new class of 10 to 15 astronauts will be introduced to the world Friday by the United States space agency.

Three women had applied for the elite corps, but apparently none was accepted.

Official 'Cold Shoulder' Bothers Mme. Nhu

WASHINGTON (UPI)—South Viet Nam's traveling first lady, Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, appears to be peeved at the reception—or lack of it—accorded her visit by official Washington.

The Capitol debut of the sharp-tongued sister-in-law of Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem took place Wednesday in a hotel only a few blocks from the White House, but there were only two administration officials in attendance.

She criticized the Kennedy administration and said the "Vietnamese government looks much more anti-Communist than the American government." She claimed there were "distortions and blackouts" in news dispatches from Saigon.

The administration's studied coolness was not the only rebuff Mme. Nhu suffered Wednesday. She sought in vain for a meeting with her father, Tran Van Chuong, who quit as Vietnamese ambassador to the United States this summer in protest against the actions of his daughter and his government in repressing the Buddhists.

She went to Chuong's home in northwest Washington Wednesday night but he was not home. He has said he will not see her.

The cold shoulder from her father may have hurt South Viet Nam's first lady, but it was the chilly non-reception accorded her by official Washington that bothered her more. She told the Women's National Press Club Wednesday that though hers was an unofficial visit and "I cannot expect the red carpets, there are hundreds of ways" in which the U. S. government could have shown "more courtesy" in welcoming her.

She said she had evidence that some Kennedy administration officials have "no eagerness to win the war against Communists" in South Viet Nam.

Mme. Nhu criticized as political pressure a recent withholding of U.S. commercial aid to Saigon. "I cannot see how such a thing can be done without reason against a government which is winning the war."

The state department has ordered a delay in payment of a reported $12 million in grants this month which would help South Viet Nam finance commercial imports. The move was interpreted here as a mild form of pressure to remind the regime of Mme. Nhu's brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Diem, of the heavy support it gets from the United States.

Mme. Nhu said the aid restriction "shows real evidence there is no eagerness to win the war against the Communists." She said the Vietnamese government "surely is more anti-Communist than a few members of the Kennedy administration," emphasizing the word "few."

She also explained her much-criticized phrase, "Buddhist barbecue," which she used to describe Buddhist monk protest suicides-by-fire. She said her 18-year-old daughter picked up the expression from Americans she overheard in a Saigon snack bar. Mme. Nhu said she herself used the expression hoping to prevent future suicides through ridicule, but that she meant no harm. "So you see," she said, "I am only the victim of American advice."

It was the "Buddhist barbecue" phrase that finally prompted her father to quit his embassy post after nine years.

Chuong is a Buddhist. Mme. Nhu, who is a Roman Catholic, claimed Wednesday her father didn't quit, he was fired.

F102 Lost Near Base

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI)—A member of the 317th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron from Elmendorf AFB here was missing and presumed dead when his F102 jet fighter crashed in Cook Inlet, 10 miles southwest of here Wednesday, the Air Force said.

The pilot was Capt. Terry F. Olmsted, 29, East Peoria, Ill. His wife, Shirley, and three young children live here.

Alaskan Air Command officers said Olmsted was making his final approach for landing at Elmendorf, in a formation of four other F102s returning from Tyndall AFB, Fla., where they had competed last weekend in the Air Force's world wide weapons meet.

The team had finished second in the F102 competition and the 317th's commander, Lt. Col. Joseph W. Rogers was the top F102 pilot in the competition. Rogers and three other members of the team had landed prior to Olmsted's crash, three miles offshore.

Scranton Says He Won't Run

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton says he will block any move to draft him as a Republican presidential candidate in 1964.

Scranton, who will go to the National GOP convention next year as a "favorite son" candidate, said Wednesday, "We're no longer in the Harding era where your friends surprise you with a draft. It can't be made without one's knowledge."

Scranton, here to attend a meeting of his Council on Science and Technology, often is mentioned as a dark-horse presidential or vice-presidential candidate.
