

President Believes Russia Very Much In Moon Race

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy believes that Russia is still very much in the moon-space race despite recent statements by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev — and so is the United States.

"I would not make any bets at all upon Soviet intentions," he told his news conference Thursday. "I think that our experience has been that we wait for deeds, unless we have a system of verification, and we have no idea whether the Soviet Union is going to make a race for the moon or whether it is going to attempt an even greater program."

The President said he did not interpret Khrushchev's "cautiously worded" statement on the Russian space effort last weekend to mean that the Soviet Union was abandoning the race to the moon.

"The fact of the matter is that the Soviets have made an intensive effort in space, and there is every indication that they are continuing and that they have the potential to continue," Kennedy said. "I would read... (his) remarks very carefully. I think that he said before anyone went to the moon, there should be adequate preparation. We agree with that."

The Chief Executive said the U.S. space program was "essential" to the nation's security, not merely because of the moon race itself, but because it is vital that the United States have "the competence" to master the space environment.

On other subjects at the news conference:

Forces—Kennedy moved to calm West German jitters caused by reports of a U. S. troop reduction in Europe. "We intend to keep our combat forces in Germany as they are today; that is, more than six combat divisions." He added there were plans for some reduction of "non-combat" personnel, however.

Politics—Kennedy went about as far as he could to quash rumors that Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson would be dropped from the 1964 Democratic national ticket. Asked if he wanted Johnson on the ticket and expected that the Texan would be on the ticket, he replied "yes" to both questions.

Cuba—Kennedy said he could not give a precise number of how many Russian troops were still in Cuba, but that the numbers have "steadily been reduced... and since the first of January there has been a reduction of..."

Thus it is important that "the modern physician realize that aspects of preventive medicine, mental hygiene, sociology, economics and public health are as valid indications for contraception as hemophilia or psychosis."

"It is not unrealistic," Kistner said, "to suppose that the ability of a couple to limit the family to the number they can realistically raise and educate might eliminate many world health problems."

At his news conference, Kistner said he believes a drug will be available — "in maybe 10 years, maybe tomorrow" — which will permit use of the so-called "rhythm" system of birth control without danger of conception.

Kennedy Flatly Assures U.S. Troops To Remain

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy has given flat assurance that U.S. combat forces in Germany will remain there at present strength.

Moving to calm West German jitters caused by reports of a U.S. troop reduction, Kennedy told his news conference Thursday: "We intend to keep our combat forces in Germany as they are today; that is, more than six combat divisions."

Kennedy said that as part of a reorganization of the Army's European logistics (supply) forces, there are plans for some reduction of "non-combat" personnel.

"But we do not," he said, "intend to bring back any units or personnel whose return would impair the military effectiveness of our forces in Germany."

Pentagon sources indicated some combat reductions had at one time been proposed, but were overruled in the face of strong West German objections. Earlier Thursday reports from Europe had predicted return of 5,000 or more men, including an armored cavalry regiment from Germany.

Kennedy told newsmen that not only would the six U.S. Army combat divisions stay in Germany, but also six additional combat units sent in during the 1961 Berlin crisis would remain "as long as there is a need for them."

The combat divisions and additional combat units total some 106,000 men. With their necessary support units they involve, over-all, about 212,000 men.

Wild Parties At Harvard Blamed On Liberal Rules

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—Harvard University students decried the moral climate of their hallowed, ivy-covered halls today even though a dean contended coed visits to men's rooms permits "wild parties and sexual intercourse."

University rules allow girls to visit male students' rooms—behind closed bedroom doors if they wish—but the undergrads deny this has led to sexual excesses on the grounds of the nation's oldest and perhaps most staid university.

Harvard men charge that attention focused on a letter to the student newspaper from Dr. John U. Monro, dean of Harvard College, had created a distorted, largely false impression of what goes on at the alma mater of a succession of American luminaries from John Hancock to President Kennedy.

More Prevalent

Monro also called the attention of Eastern university presidents to a report by a Harvard psychiatrist which concludes that sex relations between college men and coeds are becoming more prevalent.

Dr. Graham B. Blaine Jr. of the university's health services blamed the trend on the easy accessibility of bedrooms in college dormitories. Monro sent his mimeographed article to Harvard administrators and to presidents of Radcliffe, a woman's college which shares classrooms with Harvard, and other East Coast schools.

Replying to an editorial urging liberalization of girls' visiting hours, Monro wrote in his letter to the Harvard Crimson that he and Dean of Students Dr. Robert W. Watson were "badly shaken" by some severe violations of rules and decent standards of behavior.

"Trouble has arisen," Dean

Monro said, "because what was once considered a pleasant privilege (entertaining women in men's rooms) has now, for a growing number of students, come to be considered a license to use the college rooms for wild parties or for sexual intercourse."

Escapes Attention

Monro's letter appeared in the Crimson Oct. 9 but escaped attention outside the campus until Thursday.

Blaine's article, entitled "Sex Moves in Transition," said colleges unwittingly encourage the trend toward premarital relations through liberal visiting rules.

Harvard was mum on what happened at the "wild parties" Dean Monro referred to but student sources indicated they involved heavy drinking but little sex. Certainly, the students said, they couldn't be classified as orgies.

Space Couple Will Wed

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet space woman Valentina Tereshkova will be married Saturday to cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev in a unique ceremony that will be televised to the nation, it was confirmed today.

The entire space colony and perhaps Premier Nikita Khrushchev himself were expected to attend the brief civil service in one of Moscow's two "palaces of marriage."

Publicity such as this for a Soviet wedding, involving public figures, is almost unprecedented in the Soviet Union.

Valentina, the world's first cosmonette, went about her official duties on the eve of her wedding—delivering an address to the trade union congress in a Kremlin hall packed by 6,000 delegates. There was no sign of her husky 33-year-old fiance.

Council Faces Controversial Issue

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Ecumenical Council, which began a four-day recess today, is heading into what may be its stormiest debate on a "declaration of independence" for bishops.

The issue of whether the bishops should be allowed to run their own dioceses without undue interference from the Roman Curia is one of several controversial matters in a draft document entitled "of bishops and the government of dioceses."

Formal debate on the document will begin Tuesday, when the council fathers return from their recess, which was called because of All Saints' Day today and an Italian holiday Monday.

Council sources said the debate is certain to arouse strong feelings. The issue is the decentralization of the church's authority — giving individual bishops or national hierarchies some of the powers now held by the various "congregations" of the Roman Curia.

Birth Control Advocated As Means Of Solving Many Health Problems

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Birth control may be the answer to many of the world's health problems, Dr. Robert W. Kistner of Harvard Medical School told the American College of Surgeons today.

And thus, he said in a speech prepared for delivery, the surgeons should follow the lead of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists in adopting a resolution urging that "scientific research be greatly expanded in all aspects of human fertility and the interplay of biologic, psychologic and socio-economic factors influencing population change."

Kistner backed his suggestion with arguments that so-called "medical" reasons are not the only important ones in deciding whether to use birth control, but the economic and social problems are equally important and far more common.

In his formal report to the surgeons, Kistner said that the various social and economic aspects of child-bearing actually affect the medical aspects of birth control.

Family limitation and child spacing are of vital importance to a married couple, he said, if a wife has a disease such as progressively severe diabetes, incapacitating heart disease, far advanced tuberculosis or various other conditions limiting her activity or life expectancy.

In these cases, he said, the major problem is not that the mother will be killed or disabled in giving birth. Rather, it is the problem of "how will this woman, with limited activity, be able to deal with the physical as well as the economic aspects of having three, four or possibly five more children?"

Describes Medical Conditions

"There are only certain familiar diseases and rare medical conditions which specifically contra-indicate pregnancy and delivery," Kistner said. "Actual 'medical' indications for contraception are almost as rare as those for therapeutic abortion."

But, he said, the World Health Organization has defined health as a "state of complete physical, mental and social well being."

Per capita use of paper and paperboard in the United States in 1962 rose to 457 pounds, highest in the world.
