Perry Como Leads Same Relaxed Life Privately As On TV Screen

By VERNON SCOTT UPI Hollywood Correspondent HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Don't let anyone tell you Perry Como's relaxed television image is an act.

The sleepy-eyed singer is as easy-going off screen as any millionaire ex-barber could hope to be. And now that his show will appear sporadically this season rather than on a weekly basis, Perry is ecstatic.

It will give him time for: (1) Golfing (2) Loafing (3) Fishing (4) His grandchildren (5) Loafing

Perry has two choices for flaking out: his roomy home in Sands Point, Long Island, N.Y., and a plush pad in West Palm Beach, Fla.

"This new schedule is good for me," Como says. "I'm looking forward to having some time off this year to catch up on some of the things I enjoy."

Uncomplicated Life The 51-year-old star keeps his private life as uncomplicated as his low-pressure show.

Even in relaxed conversation Perry never is specific when he can generalize. Ask him what kind of home he has, and he'll answer, "Well, I don't know. The roof doesn't leak."

What about his servants? "We've got a few running around the place. Some of them I haven't met yet. And sometimes I end up waiting on them."

Actually the Comos — Perry and his wife, Roselle, have been married 30 years — have three servants. But the singer shies away from discussing any of the manifestations of his enormous wealth.

High Temperatures He will admit, however, to owning a swimming pool which was a joy to the family until he installed a heater. Now he keeps the water temperature at a steaming 93 degrees.

"I only used our backyard waterhole twice a year until I had the heater installed," he explains. "It was too cold for me. Now the kids complain that it's too hot for them."

The Como offspring have fled the coop; not because of the bathtub in the yard. Ronnie, 23, lives in South Bend, Ind., and is the father of the two Como grandchildren. David, 17, is in his first year at Villanova, and daughter Terri, 16, is attending a private school in West Palm Beach.

But two French poodles, Buzz and Flipper, keep things from getting too quiet around the house.

"Every so often Ronnie stops by for a visit with the kids," the proud grandfather grins. "They are cute as hell. It's always good to see them because this house has a lotta room for a lotta kids."

Whenever he can sneak away from his television schedule Como jumps into his Cadillac and heads for the golf course—he plays most often when he's in New York.

In West Palm Beach it's a different story. Como dons battered old clothes and fishes off his own property that fronts on Jupiter Inlet to Hobe Sound.

He's expert at catching pompano and bluefish, but when it comes to the big fighting fish

Perry is a bust. His sons have hooked sailfish and other trophies, but Papa Como has yet to bring one to gaff.

When the family headquaters in Florida daughter Terri lives at home.

The Comos rarely entertain: "I get enough conversation and socializing when we're rehearsing the show. Once in a while a few clowns stop by for a drink or dinner."

Italian Cuisine Como, of Italian extraction, adores pasta and other Italian food, but rarely eats it. "I'd weigh 800 pounds if I ate what I liked, so I stick with steaks and chops. They aren't very tasty, but I guess I'll have to live with 'em."

When Perry returns from a day's work in Manhattan (it's an hour's drive to Sands Point) dinner is waiting whether it is 8 or 11 p.m. Usually Roselle postpones her own dinner to eat with her husband.

Perry reads a little bit and will play cards when pressed. But when an evening stretches ahead with no commitments Como likes nothing better than to plo down, switch on the television set and spend the night turning the dial.

"I'm a real TV nut," he says.

ANETTE CASHES IN — Actress Anette Funicello, who turned 21 years old Oct. 22, is shown here in the Los Angeles county clerk's accounting department after she collected $46,950 in Savings Bonds which had been put away under a contract with Walt Disney Productions.

Vince Edwards Prepares For Post Ben Casey Years

By VERNON SCOTT UPI Hollywood Correspondent HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Beetle-browed Vince Edwards has escaped the poorhouse when Dr. Ben Casey gets a malpractice notice from ABC.

Edwards does not want to die with Casey. When the show goes off the air, probably in two years, the barrel-chested star plans to carry on in movies.

"I wanted to make some deals while I'm still in demand," Edwards said from a divan in his plus Desilu dressing room. "It's sort of an insurance policy for me."

Five Major Pictures "So I'll be doing a major picture every year for the next five years. I've already done

"The Victors" and I've got four more coming up. And when I say 'major picture' I mean one that costs two million dollars or more."

In sharp contrast to his video role, Edwards is a smiling, easy-going soul who'd rather throw scalpels at a dart board than use them for carving.

To avoid being another television flash-in-the-pan Edwards is picking his movie roles as carefully as he is choosing a wife (he's still a bachelor).

"It would be silly for me to play a doctor in a movie," he grinned, draining a glass of imported beer. "Audiences would laugh me right off the screen."

Plays A Soldier "I play a soldier in 'The Victors.' That's plenty different from my doctor role in the show."

"I don't want to become too closely associated with Casey. That's why I'll probably quit when my five-year contract is up. Why should I stay? What am I trying to prove? I certainly wouldn't continue in the role just for the money."

"I think the Dr. Casey image is already being dispelled a little—thanks to some of my guest appearances on TV and my night club act. More people call me Vince now. It used to be Ben.

"Jim Garner and Steve McQueen made the switch from television to movies. Nobody calls Jim 'Maverick' anymore, and most people have forgotten that Steve played a bounty hunter for a couple of years."

Talent Counts "If I'm a good enough actor people will eventually forget that I played Ben Casey."

Edwards is branching out in another direction. He has directed one segment of his series and plans to take the helm of several more this season.

He's also formed his own production company.

Despite Varied Personalities And Close Quarters Filming Of Movie Rolls Along Without Problems

By JOHN ALIUS United Press International MISMALOYA CLAB, Jalisco, Mexico (UPI) — This man-made Garden of Eden on the shores of the Pacific is presumed to have serpents of trouble behind every tree. But so far, very few have raised their ugly heads.

When director John Huston built his movie set on the sea 400 miles west of Mexico City, ingredients for trouble seemed to abound.

Huston is filming "The Night of the Iguana." Richard Burton, male lead in the film; his friend, Elizabeth Taylor, and Ava Gardner, a volatile leading lady who was expected — perhaps hoped, by publicity men — to vie with the younger Miss Taylor for Burton's affections; and 18-year-old Sue Lyon of "Lolita" fame.

Apart from personalities, the film faced the problems of having its protagonists living in spectacularly beautiful but very close quarters; of being in an area where entertainment facilities are, to say the least, limited; of having to get all food and drink brought on the premises by dugout and motorboat.

But after four weeks of filming and of living in unwanted togetherness in nearby Puerto Vallarta and this resort settlement, life among the cast and work on the picture is almost as smooth as the Pacific.

Strictly Business Miss Lyon has invited her boyfriend here from Santa Monica, Calif., and appraises Burton with a strictly professional eye.

"He's the greatest," she says. "But a romantic interest in him?"

"How can one have a romantic interest in a married man," she counters. "And one with children? How could one be happy in such a situation?"

Miss Taylor, for her part, apparently has found no difficulty in finding happiness with Burton, who is the husband of one of Britain's leading actresses, and father of two children.

In the evenings, Burton and Elizabeth stay pretty much to themselves in a luxurious six-bedroom house climbing three stories up the side of one of the many hills of Puerto Vallarta.

The house, called "Casa Kimberley," has high retaining walls, is glistening white, has an enormous living room furnished in modern Mexican, a large stone patio, its own white jeep and its own armed guard.

Expresses Few Opinions Miss Taylor, who gives one the impression of acting during her every moment in public, does not express many definite opinions of things. In the monotonous adjectives of movie people, she says Burton is "marvelous."

One decided opinion she has regards the city of Montreal, Canada.

"I was appalled," she says. "The things they asked us there as we were en route to Mexico were horrible. I'll never go back if everyone is like the people we encountered there a few weeks ago."

"Do you know what they asked Richard? she queries. "They asked him if he planned to make love to all of his leading ladies!"

For the moment, at least, she should have no worries.

Miss Lyon, a senior, is occupied after shooting hours with her high school work and her boyfriend, Hampton Francher III, who gets banished from the premises at 9 p.m. Miss Deborah Kerr, also in the cast, is accompanied here by her husband, Peter Viertel, and Miss Gardner, who also lives at Puerto Vallarta in a luxurious house with her sister and a couple of servants, has shown no romantic inclinations for anyone.

Silent On Plans Miss Taylor and Burton, who will get a minimum $50,000 for the picture, do not reveal the personal plans they have after completion of "The Night of
