County Cattlemen Elect New Officers, Draft 13 Resolutions For State Meeting

Klamath County Cattlemen's Association members in annual session Oct. 26, elected officers, drafted 13 resolutions to be presented to the Oregon State Cattlemen's Association in Baker, Nov. 6, 7 and 8, and adopted new bylaws.

Norman Jacob, Merrill, president; Louis Randall, Bonanza, vice president; Ray Peterson, Klamath Falls, and Lee Holliday, Klamath Falls, were all returned to office.

Newly adopted bylaws provide for a five-man board of directors, Jim Lane, Lorella; Stewart Henzel, Jim Marshall, Bill Marshall, all Klamath Falls, and Dayton, Hyde, Williamson River, who will serve with past president Alvin Cheyne.

In resolutions the association:

1. Gave support to the policies and procedures of the Oregon Game Commission and expressed membership opinion that the Game Commission is doing a good job of managing deer and other big game.

2. Favored a reasonable fee for big game tags of all types, suggested that these funds be used only for studies and improvements in the winter ranges for big game and that no increase be made in the general hunting license fee.

3. Favored passage of a bill which makes it illegal to possess a loaded gun in a vehicle on a public road and resolved that the Klamath Cattlemen's Association urge law enforcement officers to make a greater effort to discourage road hunting.

4. Opposed a regulation that would authorize a veterinarian at the livestock auction markets to condemn cancer-eyed cows and thus prevent them from being slaughtered but would give the veterinarian in the auction yard the authority to prohibit cancer-eyed cattle with advanced lesions from going through the sale ring.

5. Agreed that the Secretary of the Interior appoint to the National Advisory Board of Administration of Public Lands, a user of Section 15 Lands from each state and give more attention to these special problems.

6. Opposed the "National Users Fee" and resolved that national parks continue to make charges for those who use these areas on an individual park basis.

7. Opposed the proposed changes in the standards for feeder cattle grades being proposed by the United States Department of Agriculture as resulting in considerable confusion to livestock producers.

8. Proposed that the present law be changed to permit turning any recognized registered beef breed bulls on the open range and to let the producers grazing cattle in common in a range area, decide what they consider a beef breed.

9. Favored Senate Bill 557 which would impose additional duties on beef imports over annual quotas and do all in their power to secure passage of this bill and urged the senators and representatives from Oregon to support this bill.

10. Favored the lowering of the fat requirements for the choice grades by one degree on all youthful cattle.

11. Went on record as opposing the new dual grading system proposed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture which is merely the old dual grading system to which has been added a confirmation score in the quality of the carcass grade, which would result in forcing producers to sell cattle on the rail and thus take all the advantages of bargaining away from the producer and place on him all risks in grade and yield.

12. Favored past policy of working toward brand inspection in all changes of ownership of beef cattle.

13. Opposed the grazing of diverted acreage during the crop year for which the acreage has been diverted.

Brunel Christensen, Lilely, Calif., former president of the California Cattlemen's Association, spoke on the new proposals on grading and beef importation.

A banquet in the evening for members of the association and the Klamath County Cow Belles was attended by about 100 persons.

'Prize' Daughter Upsets Dad

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter Belinda who is 16 belongs to a club. There are 25 members, 11 high school girls between 15 and 18 years of age. They do some interesting things and raise money for good causes. My husband and I always thought it was a worthwhile group.

Last night our daughter told us that they are planning a raffle. The tickets will sell for 25 cents apiece. The first prize is a date with Belinda—all expenses paid. My husband was absolutely horrified. He said no daughter of his is going to sell her time like a you-know-what. Frankly, I thought it was a rather ingenious idea and saw nothing wrong with it.

Belinda was terribly disappointed. She thought it was a high honor to have been selected as the "prize." We have decided to leave it up to you. Is it immoral as my husband says? Or is he being square and old-fashioned as my daughter says?—TWO AGAINST ONE

Dear Mother: Sorry, dear, but I just evened the odds. No, no! Yes. But speaking strictly as a mother I wouldn't want my daughter raffled off as if she were a kewpie doll at a tent-show. Since the girls seem to be so full of novel ideas, let them think of something else.

Dear Ann Landers: A few days ago one of the women in the office mentioned that she had a fairly expensive handbag which she had carried only a few times. She recently married and her husband doesn't like the bag. She asked if I could use it and I suggested that she bring it in and I'd see.

This morning she brought the bag in and I liked it. I thanked her warmly for her generosity and told her I appreciated her thinking of me. She then said, "I didn't mean it as a gift. I had in mind selling it to you." We were both terribly embarrassed and I told her I didn't wish to buy it.

All my life I've been giving away clothes. I wouldn't dream of selling anything to a friend. Will you please tell me if I am stupid or if she is just too commercial to be considered a friend? Thank you.—BAGLESS

Dear Bagless: Generally speaking it's a bum idea to sell used articles to a friend. Rarely do both parties feel they made a good deal.

In this instance the girl should have made it clear from the outset that she wanted to sell the bag. Her failure to do this put you in a difficult position and it didn't do much for the friendship.

Dear Ann Landers: I was very much interested in the letter signed, "Keeper Of The Closet Keys." This woman wanted to know if she should tell her grown children that their father who had been dead 15 years was really a scoundrel, rotten to the core, and not the fine man she had taught them to believe he was.

The reason? Well, she was having an affair with some joker who promised to marry her "when he retires" in 1966. Her children did not approve of her traveling with this man since they are not yet married. Her attitude was, "Why should they criticize me when I protected their father's reputation for so many years? I'm an angel compared with what he was."

I have some news for the foolish woman. Discrediting her dead husband in the eyes of his children won't make her look one bit better, and, furthermore, this guy won't marry her in 1966 or 1976 either.—WISER NOW

Dear Now: Thanks for writing. I hope "Keepers" sees your letter. She should throw those keys in the lake, and forget where that door is.

Do you lack self-confidence? . . . have trouble making friends? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.
