Training Program Urged To Help Logging Industry

PORTLAND (UPI)—The logging industry needs a program of vocational training to supply it with skilled and semiskilled employees, a panel moderator at the 54th Pacific Logging Congress said Thursday.

C. H. Willison, an official of Crown Zellerbach from Portland, said the industry was faced with a growing pool of men wanting work, but untrained for the jobs there are to fill.

George Stenzel, a panel member and professor of logging engineering at the University of Washington, said professional forestry schools should look with favor upon a vocational training program for young men to enter the industry as loggers.

Everett Barton, former Weyerhaeuser Co. official and an instructor at Lower Columbia College in Longview, said at least one effort was being made to provide young men with vocational training.

Larger logging trucks were suggested by Emmit Aston, Omak, Wash., lumber official. He said larger trucks carrying up to 800,000 pounds would reduce the traffic frequency by 23 per cent and increase the pay load by 23 per cent.

James Bagley, of the U. S. Plywood Corp. at Reedsport, said the industry may have to turn to dry-deck log storage to reduce costs. But he said there would be other problems when dry decking was used.

EXPERIMENTAL VISITORS — Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Fredericks (left) of London, England, and their children, Antoinette, 18, and Geoffrey, 10, chat with Lawrence G. Dixon (center), president of Econo-Car Rental System, during visit to the UN in New York. The Fredericks, the first foreign family to make free tour of America, are winding up a 30-day trip about the country. Their visit was under the auspices of U.S. Department of Commerce's "Visit-USA."

British Tour Family Finds U.S. Bigger, Busier And Friendlier Than Expected

NEW YORK (UPI)—The head of an English family completing a one-month tour through 21 states under the "Visit-USA" program sums up the family reaction in these words:

"Your country is bigger than we thought, busier than we thought, and friendlier than we thought."

Anthony Fredericks, 50, of Chelsea, a London suburb, speaking at a luncheon here, served for 30 years in the British Army now is chief pharmacist of the Royal Hospital in Chelsea and the family lives in a 300 year old house designed by Christopher Wren, the noted architect.

There are seven children (an eighth on the way) ranging in age from 22 to 2½. Fredericks, two of the children, and his blue eyed, brown haired wife, Morry, 41, have completed a 5,000 mile see-America automobile trip to demonstrate that foreigners can visit the United States on a moderate budget.

All Expenses Paid All their expenses were paid and they got a lot of VIP treatment, but Fredericks figured a family of four easily could vacation as they did for about $200 per person per week. This, he explained, was averaging out cost of transatlantic trip (they came cabin class on a boat), plus food, lodging, fuel and incidentals once in the country.

"That's comparable to a vacation on the (European) continent," he said. Their trip took them as far north as New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts, as far west as Illinois, Michigan and Missouri and as far south as Louisiana.

In New Orleans, Fredericks, a trumpeter in the British Army band, was invited to sit in with a jazz combo. He did.

The Same Twist Daughter Antoinette (Tony), an 18-year-old brunette beauty who for two years has done fashion modeling, was asked in several cities to show the English version of the twist—"same as in America," she said.

Jeffrey, 10, said the high spot of the trip to him was to go aboard the ships "Susan Constant," "Godspeed" and "Discovery," the first ships to sail from England to settle the Jamestown, Va., colony.

"As for food, we found the hamburger eternal," Mrs. Fredericks spoke up. "But one doesn't have to eat it always, does one? I was impressed by the variety of your foods. You can do chicken tons of ways."

"If you asked me what is typically American," she added, "I'd say apple pie a la mode, cherry pie a la mode, pecan pie a la mode."

The Tea Problem The British family, which likes its tea stronger than Americans usually make it, found an easy solution to the

Scribe Learns Secret Of Analyzing Elections

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI)—After each election there comes a period of what is known in political circles as "analyzing the returns."

The ballots we cast don't just speak for themselves, you know. In order for us to understand why we voted the way we did, somebody has got to sit down and figure out what we meant when we voted that way.

I have great admiration for election interpreters, mainly because I have never been able to master that art myself. But I keep on trying just the same.

In the wake of the elections this week, I approached a friend of mine who specializes in interpretations and asked him to give me a few pointers. Says It's Easy

"I'll be glad to," he said. "It's quite simple really, once you get the hang of it. When issues are involved you analyze the politicians, and when politicians are involved you analyze the issues. Got it?"

"I think so," I said. "Would you mind giving me an example?"

"Very well. Take the majority election in Philadelphia. A Democrat named James H. J. Tate defeated a Republican named James T. McDermott. How would you interpret that?"

"Could it mean that a majority of the voters felt that Tate would be a better mayor than McDermott?"

"The ostrich has two toes on each foot, thus differing from all other birds."

THE DOCTOR SAYS Diabetes Drugs Work As Team

By W. G. BRANDSTADT, M.D. Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Q—I drink enormous quantities of water and have to urinate once or twice every hour. My doctor says I have diabetes insipidus and that the only thing that can be done to relieve me is injections of pitressin. I am getting tired of sticking myself with a hypodermic needle. Is there any drug that I can take by mouth for this condition?

A—Injections of pitressin have been standard treatment for many years. Recently chlorothalidate and hydrochlorothalidate tablets have been used to treat this disease. They reduce the amount of water drunk and the quantity of urine by 30 to 50 per cent. This allows the victim to cut down on the number of injections, but not to stop them altogether. The tablets work best in those whose disease is not controlled by the pitressin. They will not work at all if you are taking cortisone or any of the related hormones.

Incidentally, there is no relation between diabetes insipidus and the common diabetes mellitus, usually referred to as just diabetes. In diabetes insipidus there is no sugar in the urine.

Q—I have had a vaginal discharge off and on for many years. My doctor says it's trichomoniasis. His treatment gives me temporary relief, but it always comes back. What can I do to get rid of it?

A—You have what is sometimes referred to as a ping-pong disease because when a wife is cured she may have passed it on to her husband. He takes treatment but meanwhile has reinfected his wife and so on. Unfortunately even when both husband and wife are treated simultaneously it is often hard to prevent recurrence. A new drug, metronidazole (Flagyl), is now being widely used to combat this disease. Reports are favorable in a large proportion of the patients treated, but recurrences are observed in about

Fumes Kill 6 Persons

WAYNE, W. Va. (UPI)—The badly decomposed bodies of six persons were found Wednesday in a frame house at nearby Shoals.

Authorities said the four women and two men were asphyxiated by fumes from a kitchen stove and living room heater which were found turned on when volunteers entered the house wearing gas masks.

State Police identified the victims as Carl Gorum McKee, 34, Laura Maude Peyton, 36, Clara Belle Isaacs, 40, and Ella Louise Jordan, 23, all of Huntington; Glen Brown, 44, of Lavalette, Wayne County, and Mrs. Sarah Jones, 63, owner of the house.

Police said Mrs. Jones and the Isaacs woman were sisters and the Jordan and Peyton women were their nieces.

"It was the most horrible thing I have ever seen in my life," said Wayne County Coroner Virgil Mills.

Man Hurt When Hit

A pedestrian was struck by an automobile in the crosswalk of Main Street and Esplanade Avenue about 3 a.m. today and was transferred by police car to the Klamath Valley Hospital with a head injury and bruises of the wrists and arms.

The injured was Ralph Walters, 56, of 1718½ Wall Street, who received eight stitches for a head wound and was released from the hospital later this morning.

Walters was struck by a car operated by Hugh Hemingway Fenwick, 40, of 2425 Summers Lane, as he stepped from the curb into the crosswalk leading from Main to Esplanade.

Police records indicate that Fenwick had been northbound on Main Street when he stopped at the intersection of the three-way street. He then turned into the jog on Main Street and was traveling about 10 miles per hour when he struck the pedestrian.

Police said that Walters was injured when he jumped back in an effort to avoid the car. The car hit him with its left fender and he fell striking his head on the pavement.

Fenwick was cited for failing to yield the right of way.
