

'Resident Psychiatrist' Arrested In Worcester Hospital As Imposter

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI)—The "resident psychiatrist" at Worcester State Hospital has been arrested as an imposter, it was announced today.

Police said that Harold E. MacMillan Jr., 33, posed for at least nine months as Dr. William M. Blackwell from Fargo, N.D. MacMillan will be arraigned in district court later today.

As Dr. Blackwell, MacMillan served as resident psychiatrist at the state mental hospital since early this year and maintained practice in the city, police said.

MacMillan married Miss Carol G. Bengtsson, a registered nurse at the hospital Oct. 19 at Trinity Lutheran Church. They then went on an extensive honeymoon through 10 European countries.

MacMillan was arrested when he returned home Friday. He was charged with illegally practicing medicine.

MacMillan's wedding actually led to his downfall.

A story of the wedding mentioned that Dr. Blackwell was a graduate of Bowdoin College and Tufts Medical School.

A Bowdoin alumnus read the story and wrote to the college asking why no one had told him that a former school companion was a doctor in the area. After a search of its records, the college discovered that the real Dr. Blackwell was in North Dakota.

State police then were informed of the situation and the investigation began. Officials said MacMillan, a former resident of Portland, Maine, had a record for fraud in Maine.

MacMillan, a hulking 6-foot-4, 235-pounder was described as "a nice fellow" by hospital officials.

Dr. Richard Nelson, night superintendent, said MacMillan "was mild-mannered and very well liked by everyone here."

Nelson said the suspect, a resident in training who lived at the hospital, worked well with other staff psychiatrists and his knowledge of psychiatry and medicine never was doubted.

In Fargo, N.D., the real Dr. Blackwell, a 35-year-old X-ray specialist, indicated he knew who MacMillan was but he did not elaborate.

"I don't want to implicate anyone until I know the entire story," he said.

Speaker Reminds Diners Of America's Greatness

By JOSEPHINE REGINATO

"You can't succeed in business if you magnify your failures," Dr. R. C. "Scottie" Young told the Nov. 6 meeting of the Klamath Falls Knife and Fork Club.

"There are people who make a living selling America short," he continues, "and I am here to remind you of the obvious—the qualities that America has to give the world."

Dr. Young, a Scottish immigrant and a self-made man who now holds a doctor of philosophy degree, reminded the group that one of the two greatest qualities that have made America what it is—a leader in the free world—is the American mental climate, which results in peoples getting along and liking it, though historically across the globe, these same people have either fought bitter wars recently, or will soon. Here, these traditional enemies learn to respect each other's differences, from the school playground on through life. This makes America a living example of what the United Nations is trying to accomplish, he continued.

The second quality that contributes to America's greatness is the American respect and belief in the dignity of work.

"There is not a man here," Dr. Young states, "that isn't proud of the fact that his father or his grandfather came here with nothing and succeeded by hard work, leaving a good name and a good life."

The American "aristocracy" is based on "the help of God and hard work," a reversal of the European attitude of viewing work as beneath the dignity of the aristocrat.

When the underdeveloped and emerging nations look to America for leadership the speaker said, it is not for material leadership or even for economic guidance. The thing they seek, according to Dr. Young, is the means of developing the kind of climate in which a man can be free to seek out the kind of life he wants.

This is the basic difference between the free nations of the world, and the Communist bloc: Their respective definitions of man's place in the world. The difference, then, is ideological. The free world, of which America is the leader, believes that man as an individual has a certain dignity, and attains the highest level of his development by voluntary cooperation with others.

The Soviet-led nations, on the other hand, believe that man's highest level of development is reached when he merges himself in the nation; their philosophy fundamentally glorifies the collectivist man, not the individual man.

Nations seeking leadership must choose between the two philosophies, he continued, and America sells herself short every day by concentrating on her shortcomings, and showing the world only what she has accomplished, not the kind of man who does the accomplishing, which, according to Dr. Young, is the greatest thing about America.

"The greatest thing America has to teach the world," the speaker reiterated, "is this knowledge of how to live together, a knowledge which has never been learned on the other side of the globe."

The speaker forcefully illustrated his points with personal anecdotes, both from his life in America and from his youth in Scotland. He told the "American story," as the immigrant sees it, and told it dynamically.

Dr. Young was introduced by Noel Flynn, chairman of the evening. With him at the head table were Mrs. Flynn; president of the group Frank Drew and Mrs. Drew; and Chaplain William Thoresen who gave the invocation, and Mrs. Thoresen, from Kingsley Air Force Base.

Drew announced the next meeting of the group will be held in the Winema Hotel on Thursday, Jan. 23, when John Crutcher will discuss "How the Other Half Lives in Europe and Asia."

State police then were informed of the situation and the investigation began. Officials said MacMillan, a former resident of Portland, Maine, had a record for fraud in Maine.

MacMillan, a hulking 6-foot-4, 235-pounder was described as "a nice fellow" by hospital officials.

8 Injured In Crash

ALBANY (UPI)—A four-car crash on Interstate Highway 5 north of here Friday night injured eight persons, one of them critically.

State Police said the accident occurred at nearly the same spot as a chain-reaction crash in the fog which killed two people last month.

Listed in critical condition at Sacred Heart Hospital in Eugene with head injuries was Sixto Torres Jimenez of Portland. Hospitalized at Albany General Hospital were Franklin Payton, 34; John H. Howard, 38; Charlie Jones, 20, and Willie Summerville, 35, all of Portland.

Roger Junior Scott, 35, of Portland; Sharon Bush, 23, of Rufus, and Sherry Lee Jager, 21, of Milwaukie were treated and released.

State Police said the accident occurred when Mrs. Bush swerved to pass a truck and struck a car driven by Everett A. Chrusoskie of Coos Bay. Jimenez' car struck the Bush car, driven by the Jager woman, piled into Chrusoskie's car.

All the injured men were members of a Southern Pacific Railroad extra gang riding in the Jimenez car.

2 Youths Appear In Court On Housewrecking Charge

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (UPI)—Two university freshmen appeared Friday in Suffolk County Court to answer indictments stemming from the $10,000 housewrecking that followed a debutante's coming out party last August.

Eleven others indicted, including a teen-age girl whose grandfather is the duke of Marlborough, stayed away and let their attorneys do the talking. All 11 were released in $200 bail or their attorneys' custody for later hearings.

The young members of society's upper crust are charged with "destruction of property" that allegedly took place in a mansion in Southampton on Long Island following the debut Aug. 31 of Fernanda Wanamaker Wetherill, 17.

Memorial Fund Buys Book Set

The Margaret Sheridan Memorial Fund at Klamath Union High School was established in May, 1963, following the death of Mrs. Margaret Sheridan, who at that time was an active member of the KUMS Board of Directors. Mrs. Sheridan had served on the board for eight years.

After her death on May 8, a group of citizens formed the Margaret Sheridan Memorial Fund and donated the sum of $295.70. The school board has decided to purchase a set of books entitled "Great Books of the Western World" to be placed in the KUMS Library.

The set consists of 54 volumes. When placed in the library, each book will be marked in commemoration of Mrs. Sheridan.

Group Outlines Student Visits

LAKEVIEW — The Lake County Student Exchange Committee, in cooperation with the American Friends Service, is making plans for the visit of two groups of students from other lands in accordance with the aims of the program.

Some exchange of educational exhibits has already been made with the Henry Henderson Secondary School at Blantyre, Nyasaland, with which Lakeview High School is affiliated. Two young men from that area are attending school in Portland and it is planned to have them visit here for a few days.

Reclamation Group Elects

BEND (UPI)—Jack Hoffbahr of Medford was elected president of the Oregon Reclamation Congress at the conclusion of its annual meeting here Friday.

Hoffbahr succeeds John Stewart of Klamath Falls.

Ben Evick of Madras was elected vice president. Paul House of Nyssa was re-elected treasurer and Myron Shearer of Corvallis was re-elected secretary.

The organization called on Congress "to enact a law so clear and unambiguous as to be incapable of evasion" to resolve conflicts between the federal government and the states over water rights.

Portland was selected as the site for the group's 1964 convention.

Goldwater Rates As Political Phenomenon

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's formal announcement that he is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination has emphasized the fact that the man he has to beat is Sen. Barry Goldwater. In the following dispatch veteran UPI political writer Raymond LaRue takes a long look at the senator from Arizona.

By RAYMOND LARUE

United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI)—Barry Goldwater is a political phenomenon, pushed to the front rank of the GOP by a disregard for some of the maxims of politics, strict obedience to others, and luck.

He is the junior senator from Arizona, twice elected from a state which for years had been Democratic territory. He is also the winter book favorite to win the Republican presidential nomination at the party's national convention in July.

Goldwater is still an unannounced candidate but no one doubts any longer that he will be a declared candidate in January if not earlier. His only active competition now comes from Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, the erstwhile favorite who became a longshot after his divorce and remarriage to the divorced mother of four children.

To his critics, who include Republicans as well as Democrats, Goldwater is a mere symbol of protest. They see him as a voice for Americans seeking simple solutions to complex problems and yearning to slough off the burdens of the cold war.

To his more zealous partisans, he is a kind of messiah, ordained to give new directions to the politics of the United States and the free world. If he should be denied the nomination, some Republican professionals fear that more GOP voters will sit out the 1964 campaign.

unrestrained criticism of organized labor made him a bogeyman to leaders of the labor movement.

He was also a loyal party man available for GOP fundraising speeches and campaign rallies whether for conservative, liberal or middle-of-the-roader.

His success at money-raising gave him two four-year terms as chairman of the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee.

His extensive travels in that post brought him into contact with pick and shovel Republicans who provide the money and the manpower during and between campaigns.

"All the fat cats are for him," said a former Goldwater associate.

If so, the current Goldwater drive will not be throttled by what western Republicans call "eastern money," the force that nominated Wendell L. Willkie, Thomas E. Dewey and Dwight D. Eisenhower and frustrated the late Robert A. Taft.

Likened To Taft

Goldwater is often equated with Taft inasmuch as both found their base of support in the conservative wing of the party. But the Taft who advocated federal aid for education and federal housing legislation was a moderate compared to Goldwater.

The Arizona senator has been an uninhibited conservative, a crusader against big government, without the faculty for compromise supposedly essential for members of the national legislature.

He can be a mediocre speaker reading a prepared speech or a vibrant personality talking off the cuff with an ear sensitive to what a conservative audience wants to hear.

Like Rockefeller, Goldwater supporters believe that the road to the presidential nomination runs through the states with presidential primaries. They believe their man can lock up the nomination by defeating Rockefeller March 10 in New Hampshire, the first 1964 presidential primary. They feel that later contests—in California and perhaps in Oregon—would be mere anti-climax.

Knowledgeable Republicans now rate Goldwater the favorite to defeat Rockefeller in both New Hampshire and California.

25 Years Ago Jews Faced 'Night Of Terror' In Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—Saturday was the 25th anniversary of a dark hour in German history.

On Nov. 9, 1938—21 years ago Saturday—began "Kristallnacht" (broken-glass night), the first great Nazi pogrom against Jews that foreshadowed Adolf Hitler's "final solution to the Jewish problem"—mass extermination.

It was a night of terror throughout Germany.

Reinhard Heydrich, SS chief Heinrich Himmler's deputy and later known as "Bongman Heydrich," in a confidential report to No. 2 Nazi Hermann Goering reported 46 hours later:

"The extent of the destruction of Jewish shops and houses cannot yet be verified by figures. 265 shops destroyed, 171 dwellings set on fire or destroyed only indicate a fraction of the damage so far as areas in question. 119 synagogues were set on fire and another 20 completely destroyed. 20,000 Jews were arrested. 30,000 were deported and these statistics injured were also numbered at 20. These figures still injured were Jews."

Millions Are Expelled

We said 7,500 Jewish shops were looted and a number of Jewish women raped. It is now believed that at least twice as many Jews were killed in the pogrom as Heydrich knew about when he made the preliminary report.

Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's wily propaganda minister, called it a "spontaneous demonstration of the German people" in reaction to news that a 17-year-old German Jewish refugee named Herschel Grynszpan had shot and mortally wounded the third secretary of the German Embassy in Paris, Ernst von Rath.

Grynszpan, half-crazed by Nazi persecution of his father and German Jewry generally, was seeking vengeance.

But after the war, a secret report on "Kristallnacht" was found. It showed that Goebbels himself, with Hitler and Goering in Munich for the annual celebration of the Nazis' 25th anniversary, had planned, organized and executed "by the SS and Gestapo during the night of Nov. 9, 1938."

German Report

The anniversary did not pass ignored in today's Germany.

Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, in a message addressed to West Germany's now scant 30,000 Jews, said observance of the 25th anniversary should "strengthen our will to make certain that freedom and the worth of the individual are defended as the supreme value."

"We grieve with the survivors and with Jews the world over," he said. "No man can repair the injustice but we are trying to make generous reparation for the material damage."

The German Evangelical (Protestant) Church, on the eve of the anniversary, announced plans to build a church dedicated to German repentance for crimes at Dachau, one of the most infamous of Nazi concentration camps.

Special church services commemorating "Kristallnacht" and the crusades of persecution that followed were held in both West and East Berlin Saturday and will be held in many other German cities Sunday.
