and arms with locks at the wrists and ankles. Over chains go ceremonies, giving Hall appearance of mummy (far left). Tape is over nose to keep water from entering. Hall jumps in water. (second from left), and moments later emerges from below surface struggling to remove chains (third picture). Within three minutes he is free and out of the pool (fourth picture). How does he do it?—that's a secret of the pool. —UPI Telephoto

AAUW Slates Slide Program

The International Relations Group of the Association of American University Women will hear a talk and view slides at the November meeting, Wednesday, Nov. 13. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the teachers' cafeteria of Klamath Union High School.

Speaker will be Mike Veatch, son of Mayor and Mrs. Robert Veatch, who spent the summer in Iceland as an American Field Service Student.

While AAUW-sponsored, anyone interested will be welcome.

Recorder May Hold Key To Mishap

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI)—The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) soon may learn from a flight recorder what caused an Eastern Airlines DC8 to lose an engine and fall 13,000 feet in 29 seconds.

Tom Saunders of Fort Worth, a CAB examiner, said board experts in Washington were studying tape from the recorder, known as a "black box."

Saunders hoped to finish Tuesday a hearing into the cause of the incident over the Texas Gulf Coast Saturday.

The jetliner, bound from New York to Mexico City, had its No. 3 engine ripped away and the plane fell from 18,000 feet to 3,000.

Seventeen persons were injured but the plane later made an emergency landing at Barksdale Air Force Base, Shreveport.

Several passengers were pinned to the ceiling because of the airliner's rapid fall after hitting the turbulence.

The 4,000-pound engine pod was found Monday 50 miles southwest of Houston. It gouged a five-foot hole in a pasture.

Saunders said discovery of the engine was "not particularly significant" to the investigation.
