Hansell Demands Details On Higher Education Cuts

SALEM (UPI)—A demand that the Board of Higher Education outline in detail where it plans to make $6.1 million in budget cuts was voiced today in the Ways and Means Committee by Rep. Stafford Hansell, R-Hermiston.

Wilbur Hickson, 42, of Beatty and Perry Chocktoot, 30, of Klamath Falls have been arrested on the indictments and are scheduled to be arraigned Thursday morning before Circuit Court Judge Donald A. W. Piper.

The pair is charged with the beating of George Phillips during a brawl in Klamath Falls last March.

Phillips and his brother, Jim, became involved in a fight between the two defendants and Chocktoot's mother-in-law, Mrs. June Dunn.

The two allegedly appeared at Mrs. Dunn's home, 1226 Kane Street, and Chocktoot was reported to have said: "I'm going to kill you."

The woman ran next door to the home of the Phillips brothers and they became involved. In the fight that ensued Mrs. Dunn was knocked down and beaten and the brothers fought with the defendants in trying to aid the woman.

Authorities say the defendants became enraged at Mrs. Dunn because they believed she implicated them in a horse-stealing case.

Penny Collection Stolen

Three thousand pennies and other money from a collection were stolen Tuesday afternoon by a neat burglar who apparently knew what he was after.

The burglary was at the home of Mrs. Arch Foster, 620 Division Street, and occurred between 2:20 and 6:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Police said the burglar cut a small hole in a kitchen window, then used a stick to unlatch the window and climbed in. Officers said he apparently went straight into the den next to the kitchen and took the money without disturbing other things in the house.

The 60 rolls of pennies were in a small cedar chest. Also taken were a can containing five rolls of nickels and five silver dollars and a "coorsage" made of two five-dollar bills.

Plans Laid For Curtailing Commercial Tree Cutting

Landowners, law enforcement officers, and representatives of forest agencies met at the Klamath Forest Protective Association headquarters Tuesday to coordinate their efforts to curtail the activities of commercial tree cutters who illegally cut and remove Christmas trees from timberlands.

The meeting is held annually under the joint sponsorship of the KFPFA and the Winema National Forest. George Wardell, supervisor of KFPFA, said that foresters and law enforcement officers meet about this time each year to discuss methods of seeking out unscrupulous people who steal Christmas trees from forest lands and sell them to the public.

The usual penalty for such an offense is six months in jail or a $500 fine, or both, in addition to a fine equal to double or triple the stumpage value of the trees, Wardell said.

WONT STAY HOME CAMBRIDGE, England (UPI)—Clarence Gordon, 3, wandered into the Grove primary school the other day and was so impressed that he has reported for classes every morning since.

"I just can't keep him away," the tot's mother said. "He keeps nipping up the road and trying to get in."

Headmaster Norman Walker finally put a stop to Clarence's scholastic zeal by posting a student in the driveway to intercept the boy.

"Come back when you are five," Walker told the child.

To avoid arrest when transporting Christmas trees, commercial cutters are required to have a bill of sale from the land owner and a harvesting permit from the State Forestry Department.

At the meeting Tuesday, representatives of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, district attorney's office, state police, and forest agencies, as well as others, discussed, in particular, the various laws which may apply to prosecute such violators.

The group will meet later next month to suggest new legislation which would further curtail the illegal cutting.
