Freeman Reports Policy Centers On Family Farm

PORTLAND (UPI) — The National Grange Wednesday had direct word from Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman that the family farm is the keystone of agriculture policy of the Kennedy Administration.

Freeman flew west to the Grange's 97th annual convention and made the statement of policy in a speech Tuesday night.

"Just as the amazing productivity of American agriculture is the solid foundation for our unparalleled standard of living, so the family farm is the rock upon which we have built the achievement of American agriculture," he said.

Freeman said the family farm was essential to the strength and well-being of the nation. National farm policies, he added, have been shaped and will continue to be shaped to enable the efficient family farm to maintain its independence.

Freeman said a study by the National Agricultural Advisory Commission described the family farm as one that does not hire more labor than the family provides.

The distinguishing feature of the family farm, he said is the incentive that ownership and management of a family operation vests in the family that does most of the work.

Pit River Indians Plan Vote

ALTURAS — Louis Phelps, attorney for the Pit River Indians in their claim against the U.S. government for payment of lost land, announced this week that there will be a new ballot on the vote by the Indians, this time by mail.

The Pit River Indians voted "no" to acceptance of the government offer of 47 cents per acre on their land Sept. 28 in Alturas. At that time the Pits voted 105 to 75 against acceptance of the payment of around $800 per Indian. This offer was made to the Mission and Indians of California on the same claim.

Phelps has contended that the vote at Alturas was not large enough to be "fully representative" of the Pit River Indians' wishes. He said out of 750 Pit River Indians eligible to vote, only 180 votes were cast.

It was pointed out that the Mission Indians also voted at less than 50 per cent strength, but in this case a "yes" vote was cast. A second vote has not been called for the Mission Indians.

The attorney told the commission that there are several Indians in penal institutions who will be eligible for any settlement that might be made with the Indians, and they should be deemed eligible to vote.

Phelps said the ballots are now in the mail. Opponents of the recent announcement denounced the "mail ballots."

"It seems that the white man can always come up with two sets of rules when dealing with Indians, even in elections. We thought the hearing in Alturas was fair because only in that way could all the details and ramifications of the proposal be openly aired and explained. Certainly all the Indians received fair warning of the meeting," a local Indian spokesman said.

Society Slates Portland Meet

PORTLAND (UPI) — The American Society of Range Management, Pacific Northwest Section, will meet here Nov. 18-19.

The 15th annual conference will host delegates from Oregon, Washington and British Columbia, according to Grant Harris, president.

Nearly Half Of KU's 1963 Graduates Are Continuing With Higher Education

Nearly half of Klamath Union High School's 1963 graduating class has gone into higher education.

This statistic is contained in a report by the guidance staff of the school on the 362 students who graduated from Klamath Union High in June.

The staff, in contacting the former high school students, found that 162 of them are attending college in Oregon. This is 28.2 per cent of the total class. Another 28 students—or 7.7 per cent—are attending out-of-state colleges.

Four students have entered nursing schools, 20 are attending Oregon Technical Institute and 16 are at other trade or vocational schools. In all, 46.8 per cent of the students have taken steps to further their education.

Eighty-two members of the class—22.6 per cent—are working in the Klamath Falls area and another 27 former students (7.4 per cent) former students are working away from this area.

Twenty-three graduates have entered the military service. This is 6.3 per cent of the class. And 33 female graduates are now classified as "homemakers."

Twenty-five of the 362 have entered the ranks of the unemployed, 24 of them locally and one away from Klamath Falls. The counseling staff was unable to locate one member of the class, one has returned to his home overseas and a third member is under local medical care. Three members of the class are deceased.

Turning to the brighter members of the class, the counseling staff found that 72.2 per cent of the top 10 per cent of the class scholastically are now in college either in Oregon or out-of-state while 73.4 per cent of the top 25 per cent are attending college. Of the top 50 per cent, 61.2 per cent are in college.

Besides college, 13.8 per cent of the top 10 per cent of the class have entered vocational schools and most of these are at Oregon Technical Institute.

It was found that 8.3 per cent of that same top 10 per cent are working in Klamath Falls while not one is working away from the city. None of this top group is in military service, one has returned overseas and one is classified as a "homemaker."

It was found that four per cent of the top one-half of the class is unemployed.

Rock Hounds View Slides

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Black, 882-B Vincent Drive, Falcon Heights, were hosts Nov. 12 to 14 members of the Rock and Arrowhead Social Club. Also present were 16 visitors, among them six juniors.

Slides of cases and booths at the Gem and Artifact Show at the Army in September were shown followed by entrancing slides of Japan, its pagodas, beautiful gardens, parks, temples, flowers and the Japanese people taken by Mr. and Mrs. Black on a recent trip to the Orient.

There was a display of fire opals and obsidian cabs and pieces, extraordinary arrowheads from Oklahoma, and two fine local flaking tools shown by a visitor. The meeting adjourned after a visit to the shop at the Black home for instruction and demonstration on cutting obsidian to bring out the sheen, rainbow and purple velvet found in obsidian, a product of a recent field trip into Northern California by club members. The next meeting, Dec. 10, will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond White, 2327 White Avenue in the Mills Addition with Mrs. Eva Brownell as hostess. The meeting will be a Christmas party.
