Assembly To Examine Church Role

More than 160 qualified delegates, representatives, departments, divisions, and committee chairmen will meet in Eugene's Central United Presbyterian Church for the Oregon Council of Churches 29th Annual General Assembly on Nov. 13-20.

These voting delegates will be joined by church members who will register as visiting delegates to share the problems facing the 800 churches which belong to the council through their denominations and jurisdictions.

Bishop A. Raymond Grant, resident bishop for the Methodist Church, will preside over the three-day session. The meetings are open to all persons interested in the cooperative work of Oregon's major denominational churches.

Highlighting the participation of the delegates will be the six sections dealing with the role of the Servant Church in Oregon. Churches and their members all over the state are concerned about what the church is doing or will do to meet the needs of the laity, the aging population, and youth. They are also concerned about the churches' programs in the area of racial discrimination, Oregon's low church membership, and how the church is meeting rapid change.

Two 30-minute sessions will be devoted to these six discussion areas: one on Tuesday afternoon, and the other on Wednesday morning. The delegates will attempt to arrive at a consensus or recommendation which will be presented to the entire assembly in a plenary session on Wednesday before adjournment.

Addressing the theme of the assembly, "Servants Of The Eternal Christ," Right Rev. Russell S. Hubbard, bishop of the Episcopal Missionary District of Spokane, will speak four times during the assembly. Bishop Hubbard will deliver the message at the Ecumenical Worship Hour on Tuesday evening in the Central Presbyterian Church sanctuary.

A colorful procession of executives, bishops, and pastors will be preceded by robed members of the choir from the cooperating churches in Eugene and Springfield, Dr. Norman Conard, minister of the First Methodist Church, and Dr. George R. Ashwood Jr., host minister of Central United Presbyterian Church, will collaborate in the assignments in the order of worship.

The Ecumenical Worship Order of Service is based on the Evanston World Council of Churches service conducted in 1954. Local clergymen from the Eugene and Springfield area will participate in the service.

The Council's Department of Migrant Ministry will hold its annual meeting on Monday afternoon, with Rev. Ben Fraticelli of the First Christian Church of Dos Palos, Calif., as guest leader.

Sarah Hall Goodwin is the director of the Department of Migrant Ministry for the council, and Rev. Kent D. Lawrence is chairman of the department.

The Christian Education Division will be chaired by Rev. Clayton F. Rice, with Ruby Pellegrine of Pacific University as the division consultant. The division's concerns fall into the areas of adult and family life, camps and conferences, children's work, campus ministry, youth, religion and education, and leadership education.

Ten Oregon churches will be honored at the Annual Church Improvement Awards Banquet on Tuesday evening, when Jean Lovejoy, director of the Sears-

Roebuck Foundation, Seattle, will be present to make the cash awards to the winning churches. Rev. Cyril Dorsett, minister of the First Methodist Church, Newberg, Ore., is chairman of the council's Town and Country Church Committee and will preside as master of ceremonies at the event.

Rev. Damien Jentges, OSB, abbot of the Mount Angel Seminary, St. Benedict, Ore., will deliver the luncheon address on Wednesday. Father Jentges will speak of the dialogue now going on between Protestants and the Roman Catholic Church leaders and will speak of the impact of the Ecumenical Council now meeting in its second session at the Vatican in Rome.

A special "commitment" dinner has been scheduled for the congregation of Klamath Lutheran Church at 5 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 24, at the church.

All members and their families are urged to attend. A program, including movies, will be presented for the children by the Luther League.

At the dinner, members will have an opportunity to make their commitments of time, talents, and treasures to the church effort for the coming year.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"IF ANY MAN SIN"

"And if any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ." (1 John 2:1)

All men do sin. Some sins are secret. Some are of the heart. Some sins are open. Some are deliberate and malicious. Still others are because of weakness. Whatever they are, they keep us out of heaven and eternal salvation.

Sins must be forgiven. Only Christ is able to do this. He is our Advocate and our propitiator. His Gospel reveals the means by which He forgives us. We can be acceptable only when "We keep his commandments." (1 John 2:3)

Today is the day of salvation (2 Cor. 6:2). Have you obeyed the Saviour?
