

Lt. Col. Alger Commands Radar Squad, Keno Station

Lt. Col. Martin P. Alger, 48, has been named commander of the 87th Radar Squadron and the Keno Air Force Station, replacing Maj. Gerald I. Nelson, who was reassigned to Pakistan.

He is a graduate of the Air Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and was graduated in 1941 from the Fort Dodge Junior College in Iowa.

Among the officer's decorations are the Air Medal with one oak leaf cluster, the Silver Star, and the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Colonel Alger is married to the former Dorothy F. Oldman. The couple has three children, and the family resides at 404 Westbrook Drive in Falcon Heights.

Housework Prescribed

LONDON (UPI)—A scientist drew the fire of British women today by ordering more housework as a cure for boredom.

Prof. Dennis Gabor, electronics expert and fellow of the Royal Society, declared that modern trends of expendable crockery, freeze-dried food and push-button cooking leads only to frayed nerves on the part of the housewife.

The happy way to run a home, he said, depends on women being house-proud and able to provide gracious living.

"We are now going the opposite way, in the direction of women having less to do and yet being bored to death with their housework," he said.

"We shall have to reverse this tendency if our civilization is not to come to grief by the bad nerves of its dissatisfied women," he said.

LT. COL. MARTIN ALGER

Colonel Alger entered flying school at Ontario, Calif., in May, 1941, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in January, 1942.

During World War II he served in Hawaii and New Guinea and later had assignments in Newfoundland, Japan and Alaska. He comes to Kingsley Field from a tour of duty as commander of an aircraft control and warning squadron at Fire Island Air Force Station, Alaska.

Boy Fall 9 Stories And Lives

SWANSEA, Wales (UPI)—Four-year-old Anthony Davies looked up from his hospital cot and said: "I flew like a bird, dad."

He did, too—nine floors—and suffered only minor chest injuries in the fall.

Women saw him plunge 100 feet from his parents' bedroom window like a bundle of rags and bounce on the sloping lawns below the apartment house.

Two men told his mother: "We're afraid your little boy is dead." She collapsed.

Anthony was not dead. He was alive and crying for his mother.

Doctors who were awaiting him were astonished when he arrived at hospital. The boy was conscious and suffered no broken bones.

HUNTING THE HARD WAY — An eight-point buck lies dead on car of John Poulin of Berlin, N. H., after it came crashing through his windshield and landed beside his seat. Poulin, who was not hurt, is a woodsman and was returning home from work when the deer hit his car.

Maid Guilty Of Assault

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The enamored former maid of George Montgomery was found guilty Friday of simple assault against the actor.

At the same time, Ruth Wenzel, 37, was acquitted of a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. She was accused of shooting at Montgomery in his home Aug. 27 after waiting three days for his return.

The German-born former housekeeper, who indicated during the trial that her intimacies with Montgomery contributed to the break-up of his marriage to singer Dinah Shore, had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity.

Miss Wenzel's attorney said a decision would be announced Monday on whether his client would continue the second plea.

Waiter's Trip Called 'Good Thinking'

By DICK WEST United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI)—Now about this business of a head waiter accompanying members of the U.S. delegation to the NATO parliamentary meeting in Paris.

I don't understand why that should cause so much controversy. After all, there is nothing novel about it.

Some waiters go off on long trips every time you give them your order.

Frequently, the temperature of the food they bring back leads me to believe they have been to Iceland.

In my opinion, taking the head waiter of the House dining room to the NATO meeting was like good thinking. Paris, as you know, is the fountainhead of fine cuisine. And head waiters are nothing if not parliamentarians.

Kills Two Birds By including the waiter, Ernest Petinaud, in the party, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who headed the delegation, killed two birds with one stone.

Chances are they will turn up on the menu next week. Under glass.

What I mean is, the trip exposed Petinaud to the culinary skills of France and it exposed members of the delegation to the parliamentary talents of Petinaud.

Thus both stand to gain something from the experience. Which is more than can be said for most congressional junkies.

I frequently have lunch in the House restaurant and I can say this about it—the food may not be much to brag about but the service leaves a lot to be desired.

Actually, the quality of the food is of little concern to me. Man does not live by bread alone. Not as long as Metreclal is available.

Goes For Scenery I go to the restaurant mainly for the scenery. I sit at a table overlooking a waiter who overlooks me.

But in suggesting that the service is sometimes less than impeccable, I should in all fairness add that the meals are cheap. And so is the clientele.

You might think from the size of the appropriation bills they pass the members of Congress are lavish tipsters. Well, I hate to disillusion anyone but candor prompts me to report that certain lawmakers are known to the waiters as "the last of the big misers."

As for the press table, the tips that we newsmen leave our waiter every day would feed a family of five for an entire week. Five hummingbirds.

After careful consideration, there is only one point on which I would be critical of the Paris trip. They should have taken the head chef along, too.

Committee Slices Budget Voluntarily

At their first meeting since the voters rejected the tax bill on Oct. 15, the state legislators on the Legislative Council Committee voluntarily reduced their own committee's budget for 1963-1965 by $19,089.

The self-imposed reduction is proportionate to cuts being made by agencies in the executive and judicial branches of state government.

The committee's action was taken even though it was just last week given an additional function. By reason of recent House and Senate action overriding the governor's veto of House Bill 1451 of the 1963 regular session, the review of the rules of state agencies was assigned to the committee.

The principal purposes of such a review, which could be undertaken at the request of any person, would be to determine whether an agency's rule conforms to the intent of the legislature and whether the rule was legally adopted.

The committee's determinations with respect to rules reviewed would be reported to the legislature for its consideration.

Members of the Legislative Council Committee are Rep. C. R. Hoyt, chairman, Corvallis; Rep. Juanita N. Orr, vice chairman, Lake Grove; Sen. Donald R. Husband, secretary, Eugene; Speaker of the House Clarence Barton, Coquille.

Rep. J. E. Bennett, Portland; Sen. Harry D. Boivin, Klamath Falls; Rep. John R. Dellenback, Medford; Sen. Robert L. Edstrom, Salem.

Sen. Thomas R. Mahoney, Portland; President of the Senate Ben Musa, The Dalles; Rep. Robert W. Packwood, Portland; Sen. Edward N. Fadelcy, Eugene, alternate for Sen. Musa; Rep. Don McBain, Gresham, alternate for Rep. Barton.

The committee's main responsibilities are publication of Oregon Revised Statutes, providing bill drafting and legal counseling to the legislative branch and conducting a law improvement program. Its staff, headed by the Legislative Counsel, operates throughout the biennium in the performance of these and other services.
