

Document Asking Better Relations Triggers Sharp Debate In Council

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — A document calling for warmer Roman Catholic relations with Protestants and Jews touched off sharp debate in the Ecumenical Council today.

A liberal prelate, Joseph Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis, hailed it as "the end of the counter-reformation" — the Catholic Church's 400-year-old campaign against Protestantism.

But conservative Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini of Palermo, Sicily, decried the inclusion of a chapter that says Jews must not be made scapegoats for the crucifixion of Christ.

A third cardinal, Gaisepe Buono y Monreal of Seville, Spain, expressed hesitation about the overall scope of the document, saying that "to promote dialogue (with other Christians) can be a source of danger to the faith of many Catholics."

The Spaniard said the document "does not please" and "is not good for souls."

Representatives of Oriental Churches in communion with Rome were also critical of a document which has a section on ways of achieving reunion with the Eastern Orthodox Church.

His Eastern colleague, the Melchite Patriarch of Antioch Maximum IV Saigh, agreed that it was "out of the question" to treat the Jews in what was a Christian "family affair."

Ignace Gabriel Cardinal Tappouni, Syrian patriarch of Antioch, speaking on behalf of all his Syrian colleagues, said relations with the Orthodox Churches should be treated separately from those with Protestants.

His Eastern colleague, the Melchite Patriarch of Antioch Maximum IV Saigh, agreed that it was "out of the question" to treat the Jews in what was a Christian "family affair."

Alabama Governor Eyes Role In Two Primaries

DALLAS (UPI)—Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, puffing on a cigar and greeting everybody in sight, arrived in Dallas Sunday night and said he might run for the Democratic nomination for President in the Indiana and New Hampshire primaries.

Wallace said he was thinking about running in the northern primaries because of "the excellent reception" he had on his recent speaking trip.

"We don't want anybody coming in from the outside to tell us how to run our affairs," Wallace scoffed at foreign press criticism of racial incidents in Alabama and Mississippi, saying, "we shouldn't care what they think, they should care what we think."

"If India gets rid of her untouchables," Wallace said, "then maybe they can begin criticizing segregation. We can't just change our system of individual freedom for the sake of the Hottentots in Africa."

Wallace said a Dallas County (Selma, Ala.) grand jury investigating the use of a Justice Department car by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. to transport him from Birmingham to Selma "should expose the Justice Department for what it is."

Weekend Racial Blasts Probed By Authorities

By United Press International Authorities today investigated two weekend explosions which shattered windows in a Negro neighborhood at Tuscaloosa, Ala., and jolted a University of Alabama dormitory where the school's only Negro student resides.

Nobody was injured in the blasts, which occurred about 18 hours apart.

Gov. George C. Wallace advanced the theory that they may have been pranks of high-spirited students caught up in the enthusiasm of Saturday's Alabama-Georgia Tech football game.

The first blast occurred at 3:10 a.m. Saturday and ripped a hole in a campus street near Mary Burke Hall where Negro Vivian Malone resides.

The second explosion occurred at 9:38 p.m. behind a grocery in a Negro section of the university town and shattered windows in the area.

Other developments: Williamston, N.C.: Seven of 15 white New England ministers arrested during an anti-segregation demonstration chose to remain in jail here today as a continuing protest against the town's racial policies.

Statesville, N.C.: The Rev. James P. Dees, a local Episcopal minister, announced that he was breaking away from the church and forming a separate religious organization with segregated services and more fundamental teachings.

New York: The United Presbyterian Church disclosed Sunday it plans to discontinue financial dealings with companies that practice racial discrimination.

Chester, Pa.: Authorities have decided to drop charges against about 240 persons arrested during four days of civil rights demonstrations last week.

Atlanta: Civil rights demonstrators picketed the First Baptist Church Sunday to protest the arrest of the Rev. Ashtun Jones, an integrationist from California, Jones, currently serving a six-month sentence, was arrested at the church when he attempted to enter with some Negroes.

UPSY DAISY — Airman Anthony Cardoza flips YMCA program director Bruce Galloway over his shoulder as he demonstrates his prowess in judo. Cardoza, stationed at Kingsley Field, will be the instructor for the YMCA judo class. Galloway said a schedule of classes will be set up after registration is completed. He emphasized that the judo to be taught will not be for self-defense, but rather for the entertainment and competition of the students. Those interested in joining a judo class were urged to contact the YMCA in Klamath Falls.

NEVADA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—Three ex-convicts were today charged with killing a highway patrolman and robbing a Sacramento bank of $44,646.

They were captured early Saturday, hours after Patrolman Glenn W. Carlson, 33, the father of three children, was shot to death on U.S. 40 at Donner Lake.

Roger M. Mealman, 29, who confessed to the shooting; Robert L. Burns, 31, who said he helped Mealman rob a suburban branch of the Bank of America, and Clifford R. Toyen Jr., 29, who drove the getaway car, will be tried here for murder, Dist. Atty. Harold Berliner said.

Carlson had stopped the car for speeding on U.S. 40 at the foot of Donner Summit about 9 p.m. Friday night, as the men fled from the bank robbery in Sacramento about three hours before. He later checked the vehicle's registration, learned that the car had been stolen, pursued them once more and was shot.

Mealman and Burns were arrested at Sacramento Airport when they stepped off a plane chartered in Reno. Police, again acting on tips, picked up Toyen in a motel at Truckee, three miles from the shooting scene.

All three last resided at Dallas, Ore., police said, although Mealman was a native of Marysville. They were working as construction workers following their recent releases from the Oregon State Prison at Salem. Police said that the three were also being questioned about robberies in Bakerfield and Phoenix.

Prince Demands U.S. Aid Strings Be Cut

(UPI) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk made another statement over the weekend "to clarify the situation" on the future of U.S. aid to Cambodia, but it had American officials here as puzzled as ever.

Kennedy Says Business Aided By His Policies

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — President Kennedy said today that measures taken by his administration have greatly benefited business and helped to raise profits to an all-time high.

Kennedy appealed to businessmen to work with the federal government "in harmony instead of hostility" and promote prosperity for all.

He said in a speech prepared for the Florida Chamber of Commerce that passage of his $11 billion tax cut proposal was "indispensable" to continue economic expansion next year.

The President defended his taxation and spending policies and denied that federal budget deficits or the mounting national debt would lead to bankruptcy or inflation in the United States.

Africans Seeking Settlement

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI)—An emergency meeting of African foreign ministers appointed a seven-nation arbitration commission today to attempt a settlement of the Algerian-Moroccan border dispute.

The 32 foreign ministers of the Organization for African Unity (OAU) decided on Nigeria this morning as the seventh member. Ethiopia, Mali, Senegal, Ivory Coast, Tanganyika and Sudan had previously been agreed upon in behind-the-scenes negotiations.

Even as the arbitration commission was named, Algerian spokesman Mohamed Yazid reaffirmed that Algeria is opposed to any revision of its frontier with Morocco.

Ghana, Sierra Leone and Liberia had also been reported as candidates for the seventh seat on the commission, which went to Nigeria.

The arbitration commission will try to determine which nation was responsible for the fighting which flared up Oct. 8 along the poorly-defined border between Algeria and Morocco in the western Sahara and will attempt to offer a solution.

Algeria and Morocco agreed last month in a truce conference at Bamako, Mali, to have an arbitration commission set up by the ministers council of the OAU in special session.

Neither country committed itself to accept the commission findings or recommendation, however.

States must withdraw its military mission from Cambodia and cut all strings attached to military aid.

There was no comment from the U. S. Embassy, but officials were concerned over the reasoning behind the latest taxes were at an all-time peak after rising 43 per cent since his election.

Even though prices have been more stable than in any comparable recovery period, he said, business leaders fear inflation.

He said that the economy is expanding at a faster rate and record-high profits have not been eaten up by inflationary costs or tax increases.

"We have reversed the dismal trend toward ever more frequent recessions which are the greatest enemy of profits," he said.

"By next April, with the indispensable help of the pending tax cut bill, the United States will be sailing with the longest and strongest peace-time expansion in our nation's economic history," he added.

"All this is not due to the administration alone—but neither is it all accidental," Kennedy said. "The fiscal and monetary policies of any modern American administration are the key element in whether the economy moves down a path of expansion or restriction."

Kennedy said legislative and executive actions since he took office have increased markets at home and abroad, raised consumer buying power, modernized plants, boosted productivity and curbed the wage-price spiral.

These measures were taken to benefit the nation and not just for the sake of business, he said, dismissing as "meaningless" the labels of "pro-business" or "anti-business" attached to them.

position on his position. Informed sources said his anti-aid policy indicates to them that he fears the activities of the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and is afraid it is plotting to overthrow him.

They said Sihanouk is behind the coup in neighboring South Viet Nam and that a similar fate could be in store for him.

Sihanouk called a news conference Saturday to clear up a series of conflicting statements.

A man noted for his changeability, Sihanouk switched position several times in the past two weeks about American military and economic aid.

Sihanouk had rocked Western chancelleries first by declaring that Cambodia would renounce neutrality and end all Western economic aid if the United States did not silence by next Dec. 31 radio broadcasts by rebel forces who he said are plotting against him in neighboring Thailand and South Viet Nam.

By design or coincidence, the broadcasts stopped almost immediately.

Then on Nov. 10, Sihanouk announced that starting next Jan. 1, the nation's export-import business would be nationalized.

Then, on Tuesday Nov. 12, Sihanouk decided to cancel American aid after all, starting next Jan. 1, a move that would cost Cambodia $10.4 million yearly in U.S. economic help and $18.8 million in military aid at current rates.

"We'll be poorer, but we'll be more independent," Sihanouk said.

But two days later, he said that American military aid could continue if it was offered without strings attached. He added that cultural or project aid also would be acceptable provided the United States helped Cambodia halt the activities of the "Free, Kimer" rebels. He apparently remained convinced that the rebel group is being sheltered in South Viet Nam and that it would be a simple thing for the United States to stop it.

However, Sihanouk's real views are uncertain.

Aide Deplores Policy Which Assists Russians

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball said today Western long-term credits are allowing the Soviet Union to keep its military production in high gear and to shore up its agricultural crisis, informed sources said.

Ball addressed a special session of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) permanent council, convened to discuss U.S. concern about growing trade links between Western Europe and Communist countries.

Informed sources said Ball appealed to the Western Alliance to refuse more than five-years credit. He urged tight coordination of Western trade to the East, they added.

The sources said Canadian External Affairs Minister Paul Martin and Edward Heath, president of the British Board of Trade, disagreed with Ball. Britain and Canada have recently expanded trade with the Soviet Union.

Ball said the Soviet Union now is undergoing severe agricultural difficulties and long-term Western credits allow it to continue to earmark money for military expenditure which otherwise it would be forced to use to increase consumer goods and agricultural products.

He said the West was helping the Soviet Union over present difficulties and thus directly hurting itself.

Teachers Study Armed Services

GEARHART, Ore. (UPI) — Language teachers from throughout the Pacific Northwest wound up a two-day convention here Saturday by learning how the armed services run their language program.

Col. Lloyd H. Gomes, director of the Defense Language Institute, Washington, D.C., told some 300 teachers the basic difference between the armed services method and that of the schools in language instruction "is that we concentrate heavily on speaking and understanding a language."
