History, Goals, Methods Of Communism Outlined By Kingsley Field Expert Before Realtors Meet

"I have the privilege to announce that the United States has entered World War III."

With these startling words, Capt. Waddell Williams, a Kingsley Field Air Force engineering officer, opened his talk Monday before the Klamath Board of Realtors.

Williams traced the history, structure, goals and methods of world communism for the realtors at a luncheon meeting at the Winema Hotel.

He said the war between the United States and communism is the "greatest conflict" the world has ever known. "There are very few guns involved in it," he said.

"The outcome of the war will determine who controls the minds of men on this earth," he said.

He said communism is out to control the whole world and the United States is the "last bastion" of resistance to the Communists.

Captain Williams, who has made a private study of communism, said the modern Communist movement is generally believed to have started in the mid-1800s with the writing by Karl Marx, a German, of the "Communist Manifesto."

He said this book is the basis for the Communist movement which advocates violent overthrow of present non-Communist governments throughout the world.

"None of the ideas are original," Williams said of the Communist Manifesto.

He said Europe in the mid-1800s was in a state of political and economic turmoil with the peasants becoming tired of one feudal system and "preparing for revolution." It was into this political turmoil that the Communists stepped, forming secret societies throughout Europe.

Communism was formally organized in 1847, Williams told his audience, with a meeting in London of the Communist League. After this secret meeting, Marx was appointed to condense the policies of this meeting and form a Communist view of history.

This history was traced by Williams on a chart. It shows that the Communist theory of history as beginning with primitive society in which man lived in communal units. This was replaced, the chart showed, with ancient society and a master - slave relationship, then with the feudal society and a lord - serf relationship. The chart shows capitalism with the bourgeois-proletariat arrangement as the next step and this is where the world stands today. The Communist plan shows socialism as the next step with the dictatorship of the proletariat and the masses, and this, theoretically, is supposed to be replaced by "pure" communism and the "classless society" or "upotia."

But, William noted, present Communist leaders show no desire to step down and form the classless society.

Modern communism came to the foreground in 1917 with an organized revolt of hungry persons in St. Petersburg, Russia.

This protest was then taken over by Communists, Williams said, and the royalty was assassinated.

But into this void stepped a man known as "Karenski" who established the first and last democratic Russian government. It was soon toppled by Communists led by Lenin, who came into Russia from exile, aided by the German government which was then at war with Russia.

Lenin lasted until 1922, when he died of a heart attack. Williams said Lenin was less concerned with developing Russia than he was in eliminating opposition to himself during his brief reign. After his death, Stalin and Trotsky battled until Stalin won control and Trotsky was exiled to Mexico. He was later assassinated.

Williams said that despite everything, "Stalin was quite a leader in his own right." The captain said Stalin concentrated on developing Russian agriculture and industry.

After Stalin's death in 1953, another battle raged until Khrushchev eventually emerged as the chief of the government which he still heads. Williams said Khrushchev has shifted the internal Russian emphasis from agriculture and industry to education and science and somewhat has slowed the spread of world communism.

He said there is no doubt that Russia is "the second strongest nation in the world right now."

Turning from history to present strategy, Williams said the Communists in Russia move ahead with their policy of conquest with three main weapons — treaties, propaganda, economic aid and military might.

Williams said that since 1917 the Soviets have negotiated 33 major treaties and hundreds of minor ones. Of the 33, he said, 32 have been broken by the Soviets, leaving only the latest—the nuclear test ban treaty. Of the minor treaties, Williams said, only about 25 per cent have been kept.

He said the Russian attitude toward trreaties has been expressed by Lein:

"Promises are like pie crusts—made to be broken."

Said Williams:

"These are men with whom we are making treaties."

The captain said the Soviets have, of their weapons, developed propaganda "to the utmost," and use every trick known to man in their propaganda war.

He said the Russians place the emphasis on immediate local results in their economic aid so as to get the most in propaganda value from local residents of countries throughout the world. And economic aid is tied to the training of local insurgents, he said.

In military might, Williams said, Russia is second only to the United States. "Therefore, she's not going to do anything to us on a large scale."

He said the Soviet policy of world domination now is one of the local insurgency and guerilla warfare, such as in Cuba, Laos and Viet Nam. "Piece by piece, that's the only way they got it."

Williams said there has been a recent awakening in the United States as to the type of limited, local warfare being fought by world communism and that those U.S. personnel in armed and foreign services now are being trained to fight this type of war.

One of the greatest weapons, he said, is the new policy of military and civilian services of requiring foreign language studies. Person - to - person contact, he said, is the best hope for combating the Communists worldwide.

As a side note, Williams said he will next month leave for Korea and that he plans to study Korean as preparation for his tour of duty in that country.

He encouraged his audience to acquaint themselves with the history and policies of communism through reading and thereby become active in the fight against world communism.

Legion Chief Says Russia Now Trying To 'Buy Time'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The national commander of the American Legion said Tuesday that the United States cannot sit idly by while the Soviet Union is showing signs of weakness.

Daniel F. Foley told the AFL-CIO convention that the Russians are trying to "buy time" while they try to iron out their internal problems, including agricultural failures.

Foley said recent developments in Russia — including agreement to the limited test ban treaty, wheat purchase and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's contradictory statements about the moon race—indicate that Russia "presently is in no position either to continue nuclear testing or to compete in a race to the moon."

Russia's actions and pronouncements all could be designed with no purer motives than to buy time for solving internal problems and for renewed aggression when the time is right," he said. "America cannot afford to nap while the Soviet Union administers oxygen to itself."

Foley said he favored a suggestion made recently by Allen Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, that the United States move forward, confident of superior power, to a "peaceful confrontation with communism."

Foley said the confrontation should be made in the areas of international trade, relations with newly independent nations and education.

"I shudder to think of the possibilities should the Western world, and America in particular, show any signs of weakness, which the Communists believe they could exploit, and this is why I say that a healthy national economy has significant international implications in this era of cold war."

Clubs Hold Joint Meet

Modoc Toastmasters of Klamath Falls met jointly Nov. 16 with the Lakeview Toastmasters in Lakeview for dinner and a speech program at Hunter's Lodge.

Glen Tyler, president, Lakeview group, gave the greetings. Klamath Falls members furnished the program of table topics, speakers and the toastmaster, President Dick Wylie. Lakeview provided the evaluators and timer.

Bob Kennedy, Klamath Falls, spoke on "Logging"; Bob Knuths on "Railroad Engineer Casey Jones," and Leonard Gilson on "Agricultural Problems." Table topic subjects were given out by Norman Gould of the Modoc Club. General critic was Dick Haney, Lakeview; individual critics, Ken Drahos for Bob Kennedy; Phil Lee for Leonard Gilson, and Erving Elle for Bob Knuths. Bill Augustine was grammarian, and Phil Lee was timer.

Present from Klamath Falls were Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wylie, 2 Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gould, Bob Kennedy, Bob Davies, Dick Wentworth, Bob Knuths, Ollie Wolcott and Leonard Gilson.

Wholesale value of the 1962 U.S. king crab pack (canned, frozen and fresh) exceeded $13 million.

Old Ship Will Begin New Role

HONOLULU (UPI)— The 85-year-old four-masted sailing ship, the Falls of Clyde, has come back home—not to die, but to begin a new life.

The 1,800-ton ship tied up Sunday at Honolulu Harbor's Pier 14, where she will be converted into a maritime museum.

As the Falls of Clyde rounded Diamond Head, she was met by a National Guard helicopter, several Air Force jets and the fireboat Abner T. Longley.

Unofficially, she was met by dozens of small craft which cruised around the mass of rotted timbers and rusted steel.

The helicopter showered the Falls of Clyde with masses of flowers, the fireboat shot five streams of water around her, and the jets tipped their wings in a homecoming salute.

Too feeble to travel by herself, the Falls of Clyde was towed on the 20-day, 2,300-mile trip from Seattle by the Navy tug Moctobi.

Just off Waikiki, the Moctobi cut the two-line and let two smaller Navy tugs complete the trip to Pier 14.

One of the VIPs at the welcoming program was Fred Klebingot of San Diego, who was the ship's first mate 45 years ago.

STRESSES RELATIONS

ROME (UPI)—Algerian Ambassador to Italy Taleb Boulharouf said Monday night that predominantly - Moslem Algeria will soon establish diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

At an embassy reception for Algerian Ecumenical Council fathers, he stressed the good relations between the state and the Roman Catholic Church in Algeria.

POLLY'S POINTERS

All Hats In Sight

POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—Cut windows in all your hat boxes. Tape a piece of plastic food wrap over the opening. This enables you to find the hat you want without opening all the boxes.

After washing a pleated skirt, hang it on the clothesline on a skirt hanger. While still dripping wet, pinch the pleats in place with your fingers and secure them at the bottom with clip clothespins. Allow the skirt to drip dry. Ironing is much easier.

When planning a trip, trace the route on a map with colored pencil. Fold the map with the traced route facing outward and clip it to the driver's sun visor for quick reference. —SUZI

GIRLS—Be sure not to glance at the map while the car is in motion. Stop — then look. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Reading the letter about marking a child's presents with the letters of her name reminds me of another way to make a child's birthday fun. Mark a number of packages with the time—8 a.m., 2 p.m. and so on. There could even be a small gift to open each hour of this special day. Nicer gifts could be opened during a party and little things at other times. Candy should be marked for after meals. —FERN

DEAR POLLY—For freshening suede gloves, put on the gloves and rub hard with a slice of stale bread, changing to another slice as the bread becomes soiled.

When the glue on envelope flaps does not stick, try a quick and thin application of clear nail polish. Dries quickly and leaves no smudges.—MRS. R.O.

GIRLS — The bread really freshens suede gloves but what a mess. Be sure to spread newspaper on the table to catch the crumbs. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have just finished washing high windows and woodwork without having a single drop of water run down my arm. I simply take an old sponge, make a slit in the middle, dampen the sponge and slip it on my wrist. When it becomes saturated, squeeze out the water and put it back on the wrist.—THERESE

DEAR POLLY — My hint has been helpful to me when I knit. Press a snap fastener into your knitting to mark the place where the last increase or decrease was made. This saves counting of rows.—SHERRIE

TO DISCUSS NATO

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)— Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower meets with a group of Republican congressmen today to discuss the present status of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., chairman of a special GOP "task force on NATO unity," said in Washington Thursday "the matter of the NATO trade conference that convenes Monday in Paris will be a major topic."

Honolulu, capital of Hawaii, is situated on the island of Oahu.
