Plan Your Play First

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
The time to do your serious thinking about the play of a hand is before you commit yourself to a line of play. Once you get yourself into trouble no amount of celebration is likely to rescue you.

South won the first trick with the ace of clubs and promptly led three rounds of diamonds. His idea was to get rid of his club loser and if diamonds had gone around three times everything would have been pleasant. Unfortunately for South's plan East dropped the nine of hearts on the third diamond.

Now South started to think but the boat had sailed. He still discarded his losing club return, but he was doomed to defeat.

He led the king of trumps. East rose with the ace and led the jack of diamonds. South ruffed with his last low trump, played his queen of trumps and started on spades. If spades had gone around twice he would have been able to discard dummies last club, but West ruffed the second spade and set the hand with a club trick.

How did South go wrong? He didn't stop to think at trick two. If he had done so, South would have led the king of hearts. East would take his ace and play clubs. South would ruff the second club and lay down the queen of hearts.

Then he could play either spades or diamonds. It wouldn't make any difference. West would get his jack of hearts, but that would be all.
