

NEW ARRIVALS — Mr. and Mrs. Ted Morrow, recently of Portland, have accepted a position with the Klamath County Juvenile Home in Klamath Falls. He will serve as superintendent, assisted by Mrs. Morrow.

Husband, Wife Team Direct Juvenile Home

Director of the Klamath County Juvenile Office, Francis L. Mathews, has announced the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Morrow of Portland to act as superintendent and assistant at the juvenile home.

The couple previously lived in Klamath Falls for about two years when Morrow was employed as an appraiser in the county assessor's office.

He is a graduate of Washington State College, Pullman, Wash., 1927, with a bachelor of science degree, and of Penn State University, in Penn State, Penn., with a masters in science, 1930. He then taught for two years at Penn State, in the field of agriculture.

They have a daughter and one grandson living in Pennsylvania.

They have lived in Oregon for 25 years. Mrs. Morrow is a native of Oregon City. They were married in 1939.

After leaving Klamath Falls, they spent some time in Tehama County, Calif., where he continued as an appraiser and where they were in charge of three youths on probation from the juvenile court.

For one year prior to coming to Klamath Falls they were house parents at Gutman Rehabilitation House, Portland, operated under jurisdiction of the State Mental Health Association. Patients from state institutions were cared for during transition back to society.

They are members of the Congregational Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow will be on duty five days and nights a week, with two days off. They presently have an apartment at the juvenile home but plan to buy a home where they will stay on days they are not on duty.

Mrs. Morrow is now doing much of the cooking at the home in addition to supervising girls, planning the menus and doing the buying. A second couple will be added to the staff, probably in December, as assistants.

Gov. Connally Reflects On 'Whys' Of Tragedy

DALLAS (UPI)—Gov. John Connally emotionally asking why he was spared and the President slain, said from his hospital bed that John Kennedy might do in death what he could not do in life.

"That is so shock and stun the nation, the people and the world of what is happening to us, of the cancerous growth that is being permitted to expand and enlarge itself upon the community and the society in which we live, that breeds hatred, bigotry and intolerance..."

The wounded Texas chief executive reflected upon the "whys" of last Friday's assassination of President Kennedy in a closed circuit television press conference Wednesday that was his first public utterances since being shot by the President's assassin.

Connally also gave a vivid account of those fateful seconds when, as he tersely put it, "we went from great joy, great anticipation, to great tragedy."

Speaking of the "magnificent" motorcade tour through Dallas, the governor said:

President Slumped
 "We had just turned the corner (into Elm Street)... we heard a shot... I turned to my left, and the President had slumped."

"He said nothing."
 "As I turned I was hit and I knew I was hit badly. I knew the President had been hit and I said, 'My God, they are going to kill us all.'"

"Then there was a third shot and the President was hit again."

"When he was hit, she (Mrs. Kennedy) said, 'Oh, my God, they have killed my husband—Jack, Jack.'"

"After the third shot the Secret Service said, 'Get out of here and get us to a hospital.'"

Connally said they didn't tell him the President was dead until the next day, Saturday. "After I was conscious enough to really understand, it was no news to me because I was almost sure he would be after the two shots I felt he had taken... because I personally felt that I had been killed, too, when I received my shot."

Connally was shot through the back by the sniper from a window of a building 100 yards away. The bullet fragmented. It broke three ribs, cut a lung, shattered his right wrist and made a slight wound above the left knee. Four hours of surgery saved him.

Some Speculation
 The governor said he knew that there was some speculation that he, and not the President, was the real target of the gunman.

"Of course, I had been campaigning all over Texas all last year on horseback, in cars, on street corners, where I could have been easy prey for anyone with no security whatsoever, so I don't put any steel in this."

"I think the man did what he intended to do—shoot both of us."

Connally said that the assassination, which, he said, "could have occurred in any other city in America," was "an open manifestation of extremism on both sides that is the genesis of our own self-destruction if we are ever going to be destroyed."

"I am not the least fearful," the governor continued, "of any foreign enemy as long as we have within ourselves not hate but human understanding, not passion and prejudice but reason and tolerance, and not ignorance but knowledge and the willingness to use that knowledge."

"That is the only answer I can give as to why he is gone and I am not."

Red Cross Stamp Issued

The government of the United States honored the 100th anniversary of the world-wide Red Cross movement with the issuance of a special commemorative postage stamp marking the International Red Cross Centenary and the American Red Cross contribution of the historic Cuban prisoner exchange program.

The design of the stamp was inspired by a photograph taken on board the SS Morning Light, one of the Red Cross mercy ships that sailed to Cuba with relief supplies in exchange for the Bay of Pigs prisoners and returned with Cubans and Cuban-Americans seeking entrance to the United States.

The stamps may be obtained at the local postoffice. The local chapter received one first day of issue cover commemorating the centenary.
