Seed Industry Challenges To Be Aired

A discussion of the challenges facing the seed industry will keynote the 23rd annual meeting of the Oregon Seed Growers League Dec. 9 to 11 at Portland.

Growers and seed industry representatives attending the meeting will hear J. R. Cowan, Oregon State University farm crops department head, outline several important industry challenges, including the necessity of maintaining genetic purity in seed. Cowan points out that keeping seed genetically pure is as important as keeping the seed free from weed seeds and other physical contaminants.

Cowan will discuss the possibility of strengthening seed certification programs — the only way to maintain genetic purity.

Another area of importance to the industry will be discussed by Ray Hille, head of the Oregon Crop Reporting Service, who will explain the methods and problems involved in arriving at crop estimates.

Crop reporting procedures have met with some dissatisfaction among seed growers in the past. Seed League members will review the whole area of seed crop estimates in relation to industry needs, during annual committee meetings.

The competitive position of Oregon seed is influenced considerably by seed crops in British Columbia and a Canadian grower, Stanley Weston, will talk about current trends in seed production in his area.

Dr. Virgil Freed, head of the OSU Agricultural Chemistry department, will discuss "Agriculture Chemicals, Good and Bad."

Another important topic is the weather, particularly since much of Oregon's seed production success depends on warm, dry weather at harvest time. Larry Zimmerman, Weather Bureau representative stationed at Oregon State, will discuss weather in removal of smoke during fall stubble burning.

Other speakers scheduled during the three-day program include Alenby White, Northrup-King Seed Company, Minneapolis, Minn.; Jack Wells, Seed and Grain marketing specialist, Foreign Agricultural Service, Washington, D.C.; Grant E. Blanch, OSU agricultural economist, and Congressman Robert Duncan, Medford.

White will talk about the importance to the seed industry of private seed development; Wells, the problems of producing seed for foreign markets; Blanch, the current tax situation, and Congressman Duncan, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, will review legislative activities.

League president Goldie Marcott, Sublimity, will conduct the meetings.

Programs for the Seed League meeting are being mailed to all Seed League members. Programs are also available from county extension agents, or from Rex Warren, OSU extension farm crops specialist, who is also secretary of the Oregon Seed Growers League. The entire proceedings will be available in printed form following the meeting.

ROCK'EN 4'ERS

The Rock'En 4'ers 4-H Club had a meeting Nov. 11 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting was held at the Jimmy Deshon home. Four out of five new members were present. They were Cheryl Wells, Mark Hall, Paul Bradbury, and Janice Bradbury. Maureen Ott, also a new member, was not present.

It was suggested that we paint our mailboxes over, and also paint the Panhandle road signs over, that gives the name of the people and the mileages to the people's house. We discussed this and decided to do both of these suggestions for our community project.

We also discussed what we should do for a party during this winter. We decided that we would have an ice skating party if the Tule Lake freezes over. If it doesn't we would plan something else in the future.

Basin Potato Shipments Show Rise Over Last Year

Potato movement from both the Klamath Falls area and the Redmond area is showing an increase over last year at this time.

M. D. Murphy, supervisor for fruit and vegetable federal-state shipping point inspections, said potato shipments from the Klamath Basin were about 600 cars ahead of last year and in the Redmond area about 300 cars ahead of last year.

Yields were heavy in both areas this year. At Redmond some growers ran out of storage space and have been temporarily storing in pits.

State Department of Agriculture figures for October show total potato shipments at 2,219 cars. Totals of all fresh produce for the month were slightly over 3,601 cars.

The Klamath Basin shipped 1,297 cars of potatoes in October and had 6,293,200 pounds of processing potatoes. Redmond had 928 cars. Malheur County shipped no potatoes but had 196,989,682 pounds of processing potatoes. In addition to this the Salem area shipped 6,300 pounds of potatoes; Milton - Freewater three-fourths of a car; and Portland, 32 cars.

Onion yields in Malheur County are high this year because of the long growing season. Despite above normal shipments out of this area some onions are still in temporary storage. The state total on onion shipments in October was 600.3 cars.

Malheur County had 801 cars and 13,047,299 pounds of processing onions.

Western Oregon shipped 99.3 cars of onions with 90 per cent of these going to the Far East, mostly Japan. Eighty four of the cars were from Brooks; 14 from Gaston and .3 of a car from Medford.

October pear shipments totaled 337 cars. By early this month Medford's total for the season was 143 cars, with 115 of these shipped in October. The pack for the area was only 15 to 20 per cent of normal.

By early November pear shipments from Hood River were only about half of last year. In October that area shipped 222 cars and had 2,400,000 pounds of processing pears.

This year's crop of filberts and walnuts began moving out in October. Salem shipped 144 cars in-shell filberts and three cars of in-shell walnuts. The Portland area shipped 19 cars of in-shell filberts.

Apple shipments in October were: Malheur County four cars; Milton - Freewater 70 cars; Hood River 145 cars; and Portland eight cars.

Salem shipped 23 cars of brine cherries during October and a Hood River 20 cars of brine cherries.

One car of miscellaneous vegetables moved through shipping point from Portland.

Oregon Delegation Asks More Control Of Affairs

Oregon's delegates to the American Farm Bureau convention in Chicago will be seeking more state and local control over such things as land tenure, game refuges and federal land fees.

Oregon's two delegates are Harold Beach, Hermiston, Oregon Farm Bureau Federation president, and Barry Brownell, Oregon City, OFBF first vice president. The two men were instructed by the board of directors to place emphasis on six major points in representing Oregon at the national meeting:

1. Request amendments to the Taylor Grazing Act so as to provide greater security of tenure to the public land user.
2. Strengthen federal laws to give the state greater control

Angus Meet Taps Warren

Scott Warren, an angus breeder from Klamath Falls, has been elected a delegate to the 1963 annual meeting of the American Angus Association. The 80th anniversary meeting and banquet is being held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago on Dec. 3.

Warren was one of four Oregon Angus breeders elected to represent their state at the annual event. The meeting is traditionally held the evening following the angus breeding cattle show at the International Livestock Exposition in the Amphitheatre at the Chicago Stock Yards.

Delegates are elected by Angus breeders of the states they represent. The delegates who attend the annual meeting then elect the president for the coming fiscal year and new members to the board of directors of the national beef cattle registry with headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo.
