Dad's 'Future' Leads To Battle

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my husband started to tell me how great his father is. After about five beers his eyes got sort of watery and he said, "If my father ever got too sick to work I'd hock everything in this house to take care of him."

I told my husband if he so much as sold one stick of furniture I would take the children and move out. After all, I worked six years before the children came and every dime went into this house. It's just as much my house as his, and I'm not about to let him hock things to help out his dad.

We got into a big argument and I'd like you to tell me if I am right or wrong. Thank you.—JOSIE

Dear Josie: Why waste time and energy arguing about something that hasn't happened, and probably never will? It would make a lot more sense if your husband helped his dad work out a program whereby he saved a part of his weekly check. This beats fighting about problems which don't exist.

Dear Ann Landers: Last week my obituary appeared in the newspaper. Of course I did not die, but the person who did die had the same name as mine, and the same middle initial. He was two years older than I am.

I have lived in this city for less than two years. Most of my friends and colleagues know very little about my family.

My wife received several cards of condolence and a few hand-written notes. Eight or ten people phoned her to say they were sorry. Naturally she told those who called I was alive and kicking. But what should she do about the cards and notes? She feels it would be stupid to do anything about them. I say if these people were good enough to express sympathy she should respond by letting them know I am all right.

right. Please advise us—PULSE NORMAL

Dear Norm: The folks who wrote should be notified by telephone—and I hope your wife will do it promptly — before someone who wrote a condolence note bumps into you on the street and has a coronary.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 16 years old, but today I feel like 90. It's too late for advice, but maybe my experience will prevent some other girl from making the same mistake.

I live in a city where there is a state university. Any high school sophomore who can get a date from a guy at the university is considered pretty special. I was thrilled when a 21-year-old junior asked me out. He was handsome and on the football team besides. My success really went to my head.

I figured since this guy was older than hand-holding in the movies and a goodnight kiss at the door would be kid stuff to him so I decided I'd do anything and everything to keep him interested. Believe me this was the biggest mistake of my life.

After he got what he wanted he dropped me like a hot coal. Now I feel like a cheap tramp. Just tell the girls for me, Ann, that once you become a conquest instead of a challenge the boy loses interest.—DUMB ME

Dear You: I'll agree you were pretty dumb but your letter indicates you've smartened up considerably. Thanks for writing and I hope your newfound wisdom will be reflected in your future conduct.

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" ($2.95) is now available at your book store.
