

State School Board To Again Consider Regulations On Allocations For Part Time Parochial Students

SALEM (UPI) — Regulations governing allocation of basic school support funds to schools enrolling parochial students part time will be considered again by the State Board of Education here Dec. 12-13.

The formula was tabled in October to give superintendents an opportunity to discuss the plan with the board.

Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton has ruled public school districts, in making basic claims, may include the average daily membership of nonpublic pupils attending public schools on a part time basis.

Thornton also recommended that the board adopt rules and regulations governing computation of shared time in distributing the basic money.

Also on the agenda is a partial plan for school district reorganization in Douglas County. The proposal would establish administrative school district 19, made up of school district 19-Canyonville, and school district 19-Myrtle Creek.

The controversial Polk-Yamhill reorganization plan also is before the board again. Yamhill County officials have rejected the proposed reorganization, and suggested an arbitration board be established.

Other items up for action include:

- Requests from local school districts for supplemental funds to pay for hiring substitutes for teachers attending workshops. Schools requesting supplemental funds are Lane County district 32-Bethel, Jackson County district 34C-Medford, and Clackamas County district UHS-Milwaukie.

- Reconsider allocation of 1963-64 biennial appropriations for community college capital construction.

—Declaration of existence of an emergency because of a short supply of elementary teachers. Each year since 1943 the state board has authorized issuance of emergency elementary certification. During the 1962-63 school year 1,795 such certificates were issued, and to date 1,530 have been issued for the 1963-64 school year.

POLLY'S POINTERS Shoppers' Guide

POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY — With Christmas shopping with us, my hint is for male shoppers. I keep an up-to-date card in my billfold with my wife's measurements, shoe size, favorite brands in clothing, perfume and cosmetics, her favorite colors and other likes and dislikes. When she drops a hint as to needs or preferences, I jot it down on the card. This saves returning a lot of merchandise as well as giving me the opportunity to shop at sales or at my leisure. I always have something on hand for that unexpected surprise.—N.C.

DEAR POLLY — It was always hard for me to take aspirin tablets. They would dissolve before I could swallow them. Now I put them in the refrigerator. When I need one, I get out a glass of cold water and an aspirin at the same time. They go down easily.—MARY

DEAR POLLY — The reader's suggestion of making a Thread Tree reminded me of a sewing plaque my mother-in-law gave me as a bride 22 years ago. Use a piece of 1-inch-by-12-inch board, about 15 inches long. Sand the ends and rough spots. Drive in two rows of finishing nails, properly spaced to accommodate spools of thread. In the remaining space arrange the following: a cup hook at each end for scissors and a tape measure, a small cork to slip a thimble on, and a small pin cushion. Do not add the pin cushion until you have painted the board. Tack a strip of heavy ribbon on the top edges of the board so it can hang on the wall.

I put a coat hook in the back of my closet and on it I hang all the empty coat hangers. They do not clutter up the rod and a hanger is always ready without having to rummage around for one.—MRS. H. L. McA.

GIRLS — The sewing plaque would be a nice Christmas gift idea — different and not expensive. Sorry, girls, it is impossible to return hints to you that we cannot publish.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When light switches are taken off the wall to be painted, insert the screws (which fasten them to the wall) into holes punched in the end of a paper cup or a small box. Painting the heads of the screws is then a cinch.—MRS. B.B.

TEXAN IN THE WHITE HOUSE (5)

In 1956, southern Democrats launched a drive to get Johnson, "Can-Do" man of the Senate, the presidential nomination. It got nowhere. In 1957, Johnson guided the first civil rights bill in 80 years into law. In 1960, he made a determined bid for the nomination, but the well-planned campaign waged by Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy was irresistible. Then, to the surprise of everyone, Johnson accepted Kennedy's offer of the vice presidential spot.

After the election, Johnson toured extensively as roving personal representative of President Kennedy. Circling the world, he gained firsthand knowledge of many countries and leaders, both allies and otherwise. Suddenly, with the brutal finality of an assassin's bullet, he found himself President of the United States.

"I am a free man, an American, a United States Senator and a Democrat, in that order," said Lyndon B. Johnson in 1958. "I am also a liberal, a conservative, a Texan, a taxpayer, a rancher, a businessman, a consumer, a parent, a voter, and not as young as I used to be nor as old as I expect to be — and I am all these things in no fixed order." And on Nov. 23, 1963, his first words to the American people as President were: "I will do my best. That is all I can do. I ask for your help and God's."

SKI SEASON OPENS — Ted Swan, left, ski instructor, and Dave Peterson, head of the Mt. Shasta Ski Bowl ski school, assess the early snow pack which opened the bowl to winter sports enthusiasts in mid-November. This marks the earliest skiing season since the bowl was established.

New Head Of Ski School Likes Mt. Shasta Slopes

MT. SHASTA SKI BOWL—"I like this mountain" is the comment of David Peterson, who is getting acquainted with the ski slopes of Mt. Shasta after arriving a week ago to head the bowl's ski school.

Peterson, who holds a master's degree in psychology and has been doing graduate work at the University of California for the past two years, said he feels "at home" in accepting this new assignment.

He expressed enthusiasm for developing the new ski school area at the bowl which will have its own rope tow. This new area is a gently sloping expanse to the north of the lodge and chairlift, away from the heavy skiing traffic of the bowl proper.

Thanksgiving Day was Peterson's first big day and the pace picked up for the remainder of the weekend when hordes of winter sports enthusiasts poured into the bowl to enjoy the four-foot snow depths, the earliest skiing since the bowl opened.

Peterson said he is still completing his full-time staff of instructors but hopes to have the roster complete by Dec. 14, when the bowl shifts from weekend to full week operation. He expects to have a full-time staff of five plus a weekend pool of five more instructors.

Professional ski instruction is a real enthusiasm of Peterson. "The average skier can at best spend only weekends skiing. Why not save time, money and energy in perfecting the basic techniques and move on to real enjoyment of the sport?"

Safety on the slopes and skiing etiquette is also taught in ski school, Peterson pointed out.

Peterson plans to work with the bowl management in preparation of ski reports. He said he will stress snow coverage, temperatures, weather predictions, and snow conditions rather than snow depths alone.

"Mt. Shasta usually has spectacular snow depths by mid-winter," Peterson commented, "but more snow is needed here for top skiing because of the physical structure of the bowl." He said last year's policies will continue in that all ski instructors, lift and tow operators will be qualified to administer first aid. The ski patrol program will continue to insure bowl safety and as far as possible ski instruction will be on a personalized basis.

Peterson said he started skiing 10 years ago after completing naval service. Two weeks after his first chairlift ride, he started giving ski lessons at Mammoth Mountain under the direction of Hans Jeorg, veteran ski instructor and internationally known ski figure. He has alternated college and ski instruction ever since, teaching at Mammoth Mountain, Reno Ski Bowl, Snow Valley and China Peak.

Hoffa Attorney Indicted On Six Counts Of Tampering With Jury

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A local attorney for Teamsters President James R. Hoffa was indicted Friday on three counts of tampering with juries involved in federal court cases against Hoffa.

U.S. Attorney Kenneth Harwell who conducted the grand jury probe, said "other matters" were uncovered which require further investigation by his office and the FBI.

The federal indictments charge Z.T. Osborn Jr. with three attempts to bribe or influence jurors in Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial here and the union leader's forthcoming trial on jury-tampering charges.

The indictments bring to $95,000 the amount allegedly offered as bribes in the two cases.

Osborn, a former assistant U.S. attorney who earned national fame as the winning lawyer in the historic Tennessee re-apportionment case, could be sentenced to 15 years in prison if convicted.

When reached at his home Friday night, he said: "I'm innocent, and I have the best lawyer in the country—Mr. Jack Norman Sr. (of Nashville). I am entirely innocent. Mr. Norman thinks I am innocent."

The 44-year-old lawyer has represented Hoffa since the Teamsters' president went on trial in 1962 on charges of conspiring to receive an illegal kickback from a trucking firm.

That trial was declared a mistrial when the jury was unable to reach a verdict. A federal judge then ordered the grand jury probe which led to the indictments of Hoffa and 10 others on jury tampering charges.
