

Khrushchev Pleas For 7-Year Plan

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev threw the full weight of his oratory today into a final plea for a seven-year economic plan that is likely to curtail Soviet defense and space budgets.

The 69-year-old government and party leader started his windup speech before the plenary session of the Communist party's ruling Central Committee today.

Khrushchev was expected to speak for two hours, with official reports on the speech expected later tonight.

About 5,000 party experts and technicians attending the plenum heard Khrushchev expound on the urgent need of a 42 billion rubles ($46.2 billion) investment in the chemical industry during the next seven years.

The plan to revitalize the chemical industry, with particular emphasis on chemical fertilizers to boost the nation's chronically failing agricultural program, was the sole item on the agenda.

Khrushchev himself presided over the special committee which drafted a decree approving the seven-year project.

The plenum was held in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses.

The plenum was running an extra day, through Saturday morning, to allow the 173 voting members to give formal approval to the project for a chemical revolution that is bound to affect other parts of the Soviet budget.

Saturday's meeting, attended only by the 173 full members and 155 alternates, will allow them a private discussion on organizational and other matters.

N. K. Baibakov, chairman of the State Committee on Chemical and Oil Industries, claimed that with the advances projected in the new plan, the Soviet Union would surpass the United States in oil output by 1970.

He said the 1970 Soviet oil production would be between 350 and 390 million tons of oil as compared to an annual production now of 285 million tons.

Legion Plans 'Bunny Bop' Despite Strong Protests

HARMONY, N.C. (UPI)—It's getting traditional for local American Legionnaires every year about this time to go rabbit hunting with sticks.

Despite vigorous opposition from the Humane Society, Saturday apparently will be no exception. The event is scheduled on the farm of W. B. Norris Olin.

The rules of the hunt, much to the horror of the Humane Society, are quite simple. Hounds flush the rabbits from the brush and Legionnaires, armed with sticks — and sometimes stones — beat the bunnies to death. No guns are allowed.

The rabbits are skinned, dressed and frozen, for use later in the Legion's annual charity barbecue. Proceeds usually go to children who cannot afford school lunches.

Officials of North Iredell County Post No. 113 contend the "bunny bop" is fair because the rabbits have a chance to escape the stick-wielding hunters. And they point out the hunt is all in the interest of charity.

The Humane Society thinks differently — in no uncertain terms. "Barbaric and cruel" are some of the milder criticisms of the event.

The society has waged a bitter battle in recent years to have the hunt outlawed. They fought the event all the way up to the state Supreme Court without success.

They did win out in 1961, however, though public opinion. Publicly given their fight brought such a national storm of protest that Legionnaires canceled the event that year.

But the hunters were back with their sticks the following year, although the hunt was staged on the sly because of public indignation. National Legion Commander Dan K. Foley of Indianapolis also condemned the hunt last year but to no avail.

Local Legionnaires are speaking softly, but they're still carrying big sticks.

Contralto To Retire

NEW YORK (UPI)—Negro contralto Marian Anderson announced her retirement Thursday and said she would dedicate herself chiefly to aiding the civil rights movement.

Miss Anderson, the first Negro to sing at the Metropolitan Opera, told a news conference she planned a farewell worldwide concert tour next year and would end her 30-year career with an Easter Sunday Carnegie Hall concert in 1965.

She said her tour, arranged in consultation with the State Department, would take in Europe, Asia and North and South America. She said it would begin next October.

Miss Anderson, 61, spoke of the civil rights struggle as "activities which interest me deeply. I plan to do what is within me to do—not to follow others."

She was first acclaimed as an artist after her 1935 debut in New York's Town Hall following her return from Europe. She began her career in 1925.

Mourning Will Last One Year

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Forecasting public appearances, and wearing the traditional black of the widow, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy will observe a one-year mourning period for her dead husband.

Mrs. Kennedy's decision was announced Thursday by her press secretary, Pamela Turnure.

Asked if there was a possibility that Mrs. Kennedy would campaign for President Johnson next year, Miss Turnure said Mrs. Kennedy would remain in mourning and would not accept any public engagements.

The former first lady and her two children, Caroline, 8, and John Jr., 3, plan to spend Christmas holidays in Florida.

After the holidays, Mrs. Kennedy will move into a new home in the Georgetown section of Washington.

Lakeview Girl Wins Slalom

VAL D'ISERE, France. (UPI)—Jean Saubert of Lakeview, Ore., won the ladies giant slalom at the "mint criterion of the first snow," traditionally the first big international alpine ski meet of the season.

The 21-year-old Oregon State University student streaked over the course in 2 minutes, 1.4 seconds to beat Teresa Obrecht of Switzerland by almost a full second.

The Swiss skier was timed in 2:02.2 with Marielle Goitschel of France third in 2:03.63.

Firm Locates At Grants Pass

Second Education Aid Bill Expected To Pass

WASHINGTON (UPI)—For the second time this week, Congress was expected to approve a large federal aid to education bill.

The Senate was to vote on legislation providing $1.5 billion to expand federal aid to vocational schools, increase government loans to college students and continue assistance to schools crowded by children of federal workers and servicemen.

The House earlier this week approved compromise vocational aid bill, and finished work on a group of education and training measures that included approval of a $327 million bill to expand and extend the life of the 1962 manpower training program. The House retraining bill would have to be meshed with differing Senate legislation on the same subject.

The Senate vocational measure carried authority to increase federal aid for job training schools from the present yearly level of $38 million to nearly $300 million in four years.

It would provide $394 million in new money to continue operation of the 1958 National Defense Education Act for an extra year through June 30, 1965.

The third provision would extend, until June 30, 1965, at a cost of $327 million, expiring portions of the so-called "impacted areas" elementary and secondary school aid program for areas with high federal installations.

Other congressional news:
Aid: The battered foreign aid authorization bill was expected to be approved and sent to the White House. The $3.6 billion measure authorizes another year of military, economic and technological aid to friendly countries around the world. Appropriation of the funds still must be done.

Saturn-1 Flight Postponed, Titan-2 Fires Perfectly

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The first orbital test of the Saturn-1, a huge missile the late President Kennedy said would give America rocket power superiority, has slipped into January.

But U.S. hopes for an early unmanned test of the two-man Gemini capsule, received a boost Thursday with the near perfect 5,700-mile flight of a powerful Titan-2 rocket.

The versatile missile, capable of delivering a warhead equal to 18 million tons of TNT over a 6,300-mile range, is being readied for an attempt in late February to place an unmanned 7,000-pound capsule into an earth orbit. Manned flights may begin late next year.

President Kennedy, in the last address before his assassination, predicted the Saturn-1 would put the United States ahead in rocket power for space. Kennedy visited the Saturn launching complex six days before his death.

The Titan-2 test followed an Air Force announcement that two more squadrons of the rocket, at Wichita, Kan., were combat ready. Two squadrons with nine missiles apiece were already war ready at Tucson, Ariz., and two more are expected to become operational at Little Rock, Ark., later this month.

The Saturn-1 will be used to send three-man teams of astronauts in orbit around the earth prior to a moon flight.

The Saturn-1 had been set to fly with a live second stage for the first time next Tuesday, but engineers Thursday discovered cracks in pneumatic lines in the first stage.

The troubles will take at least three weeks to correct and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the test was put off until late January.

The Saturn-1 first stage has had four straight successes, each time with a dummy upper stage. The next test will be an attempt to orbit a 16-ton satellite using the live second stage—a cluster of six hydrogen engines.

Wind, Cold Belt Northern Plains States

By United Press International
Temperatures skidded toward zero across the Northern Plains today and 45 mile an hour winds whipped snow into drifts in the Dakotas.

Near-blizzard conditions were expected in parts of Minnesota and western Wisconsin but the weather bureau said the massive storm which churned down from the Rockies last weekend was beginning to blow itself out.

Blizzard warnings were withdrawn for the North and Central Plains and upper Midwest. The storm still sent heavy rains across the Southland. Tahassae, Fla., reported 1.25 inches during the night. Up to one inch fell in sections of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

About an inch or two of fresh snow fell Thursday night in Kansas but the rest of the snowbelt showed only a trace of precipitation.

The U.S. Army Engineers said today that Lake Michigan and Lake Huron had equalled all-time low levels for December set in 1933. The weather bureau blamed the severe drought this fall for causing many rivers in Missouri and Illinois to approach record low levels.

The wintry storm dumped up to six inches of snow on New England Thursday before heading out to sea. The Massachusetts Department of Public Works had 1,000 men and 500 trucks trying to keep highways cleared.

At least 60 weather-connected deaths were counted by United Press International in the series of wintry onslaughts that roched to Texas and eastward to the Atlantic.
