Round Up Santa's Reindeer

WILL you help the gnome above round up Santa's reindeer? As you can see, the animals are frolicking in pairs, and the gnome must travel some confusing paths to find them. Arrows indicate where round-up trail begins and ends. Only indicated paths may be used. Incidentally, can you name the members of Santa's team?

Answers: Blitzen, Comet, Prancer, Cupid, Dasher, Dancer, Donkey, Rudolph, Vixen, Yuletide.

You Have a Choice

SUPPOSE someone made you the following offer. How would you reply? Which would you rather have: a half-dozen dozen dollar bills, or six dozen dozen dimes? Answer quickly, without peeking below.

Answers: You'd be mistaken if you chose the dimes. The bills are worth $60. The dimes come to $60.00.

THIS THE night before the night before Christmas, and all through Santa's house, not a single thing is stirring, not even the proverbial mouse. But Santa's head is spinning... Teddy bears, dolls, and drums... a million sundry details... too many sugar plums. "Easy there, Dancer! Slow down there Blitzen!" Santa shouts to his team. "We're coming in for a landing. You're getting up too much steam!" Nick's vision halts abruptly. The outcome is pictured here [!]. Just add the following colors: G—Green, B—Blue, R—Red, Y—Yellow, Br—Brown, GR—Gray, T—Tan, P—Pink. Oh, dear!

Know Your Way?

HOW many of the following famous streets, avenues, etc., can you locate correctly in their respective cities?

1. Peachtree street .... Paris
  2. Via Veneto ..... Tokyo
  3. Fifth Avenue ..... Madrid
  4. Quai d'orsay ..... Chicago
  5. Cadillac Square ..... Athens
  6. Prado ..... New York
  7. Michigan Blvd. .... Atlanta
  8. Odos Carneadoud ... Vienna
  9. Ginza ..... Rome
  10. Loewelstrasse ..... Detroit
- Answers: 1. Atlanta, 2. Rome, 3. New York, 4. Paris, 5. Athens, 6. New York, 7. Chicago, 8. Vienna, 9. Tokyo, 10. Vienna.

Riddle Me This

WHAT never asks a question but demands many answers, especially at Yuletide?

Answer: The doorknob (or phone).

Fun in the Making!

IT'S easy to fashion an eye-catching holly wreath from plastic or paper. Simply embellish a cardboard base (12" dia., 2/3" wide) with artificial leaves, berries and a big, red bow.

Cut sufficient green leaves and red berries from plastic, cloth or colored paper to cover base—or substitute hand-colored paper.

Check This Out?

CAN you place 12 checks above so that there are just two in each horizontal, vertical and corner-to-corner row?

Answers: Top row: 1st and 2nd; 2nd row: 1st and 3rd; 3rd row: 2nd and 4th; 4th row: 3rd and 4th.

U.S. Soldiers Demonstrate Peace, Goodwill

By FREDERICK H. TREESH

Peace on earth and goodwill to men. This seven-word glad tidings from the Bible is, in essence, the dual role in which millions of American servicemen are cast around the world at Christmas, 1963.

Americans fight a bloody guerrilla war in Viet Nam, yet translate the spirit of Christmas of ill-clothed native children in the form of toys and candy.

Soldiers spend Christmas Day in barbed wire-enclosed gun emplacements along the 155-mile truce line in Korea, guarding the peace, while their comrades, a few miles back, express good will to men by holding a Christmas party for orphans.

In Europe, Army troops, airmen and Navy personnel pause amid their cold war duties to share their substance and the spirit of Christmas with underprivileged families.

And at home, military personnel from coast to coast and border to border have dug down to contribute a few dollars or hours of service to make Christmas a little merrier for their fellow Americans whose personal or economic circumstances deny them the opportunity to enjoy a happy, abundant holiday.

In war-torn Viet Nam, from the wild mountain ranges to the north to the tropical, steaming flatlands in the south, American servicemen will bring Christmas to more than 100 communities.

They will distribute gifts to youngsters orphaned by the guerrilla war and pass out candy and cakes to children of the Montagnard tribes of the central highlands who never before heard of the birth of Christ or the Christmas season observed in the Christian world.

Toys, clothing and candy, solicited from Christian churches in the states by military chaplains, will be distributed throughout the country. And the lean, tough Special Forces troops will take time at Christmas to hold parties for children at remote outpost villages.

In Korea, 50,000 American soldiers will play Santa Claus to underprivileged children. This has become an annual tradition since Americans first came to Korea 18 years ago, first to reconstruct it from Japanese rule and later to fight all Communist aggression.

In the Philippines, U. S. forces will brighten the Christmas season for civilians around major bases, like Clark Field and the naval installations at Sangley Point and Subic Bay.

All Units Help

In Europe — from England to the Iron Curtain, Bremerhaven on the North Sea to the boot of Italy — nearly every American troop unit will do something to make Christmas a little merrier for underprivileged youngsters and old folks.

The 14th Armored Cavalry will treat 2,000 children in villages along the Iron Curtain in Germany to candy, bubble gum, ice cream and toys — delivered by Army jeep with a German-speaking Santa Claus aboard.

In one of the most concerted programs the world around, the U.S. Marine Corps is collecting toys for needy children in its "Toys for Tots" drive. It's a project of the Marine Corps reserve but supported heavily by regular Marines.

All ships in the Navy's 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean have scheduled Christmas parties for children, entertainment at hospitals and orphanages.
