

Gloom Still Continues In Assassination City

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—Snow, cold, flowers and contrite pilgrims today hovered over the spot where President Kennedy was slain 31 days ago.

The official mourning was ended Sunday, but the gloom hung on.

Wreaths still were on both sides of the street where, in 6.2 seconds, a sniper squeezed off three shots into the President and Texas Gov. John Connally. The curious and mourners still come.

An unidentified woman and her teen-aged daughter, dressed in black, knelt in the snow Sunday to lay a wreath near the spot. Many bowed their heads in prayer.

The weather has changed from a balmy, sunlit 68 degrees Nov. 22 to a sub-freezing, snowy pre-Christmas gloom.

Dallas, aware of the futility of grieving, braved the slippery footing that followed the tragedy and worked to redeem itself.

The Methodist churches Dallas started a $100 days of love" campaign. Bishop William C. Martin urged citizens in full-page newspaper ads to "carry the spirit of Christmas—charity, good will, love—into the new year."

This conservative, Republican city felt a political change. The Dallas Morning News said Sunday:

"On Nov. 22, ironically, it suddenly became socially acceptable to be a Democrat."

"Although there is little doubt the GOP is still the stronger organizing force in the county, the ever-present hand of fate already has begun etching signs of change."

Christmas decorations in the city were gay, but there were reports that retail sales were off. "I guess it was partly the warm autumn," one merchant said, "and that terrible thing."

President Will Decide Missile Controversy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A controversy between Pentagon civilian and military bosses over the eventual size of the Minuteman missile force is going to be put before President Johnson.

It was reported Sunday that the federal budget to be sent to Congress next month calls for defense spending of more than $50 billion in the fiscal year beginning July 1. The current estimated military outlay is $51 billion.

The major budget controversy will be laid before the President by the Joint Chiefs of Staff at a scheduled meeting Dec. 30 at the LBJ Ranch in Texas. It concerns future purchases of the solid-fuel Minuteman missile.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and his staff believe the Air Force needs 1,200 of the intercontinental rockets by mid-1969.

Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, wants 1,350 by the same period.

Both LeMay and McNamara base their goals on what they believe would be needed to survive a surprise ICBM attack and still destroy targets in Russia.

The final budget session also will permit the President to examine Pentagon plans to trim money requests for new Army weapons by as much as $1 billion under the current year's $3.2 billion.

Other big money cuts for the new defense budget are being aimed at weapons for the strategic retaliatory forces. With no more bombers being built and the heaviest missile expenditures behind it, the Pentagon has sharply cut new money in the strategic field.

By the end of the year, the U.S. ballistic missile force will comprise 691 operational weapons on land and undersea—123 Atlas, 106 Titan, 300 Minuteman and 160 submarine-launched Polaris.

Six Hurt In Mishap

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UPI)—Six persons remained hospitalized today with injuries suffered Saturday when a Union Pacific passenger streamliner plowed into a derailed freight east of here.

Officials said five of the 11 persons taken to Sweetwater County Memorial Hospital here Saturday after the accident were released Sunday. The six remaining were not listed in serious condition.

Hospital officials said the five patients released Sunday were Mrs. Frances Winter, 60, of Portland, Ore.; Susan Brown, 25, of Lincoln, Neb.; Theodore Alexander, 36, of Chicago; Guy Holmes, 75, of Boise, Idaho; and Mrs. Mary Golsen, 81, of Olympia, Wash.

They were passengers on the UP streamliner "City of Portland," which plowed into the derailed cars of a freight Saturday about 35 miles east of Rock Springs.

Most Rugged Winter Weather Of Century Batters Temperatures Across Southland

By United Press International

Some of the worst winter weather of the century hit Dixie today, dumping heavy snow from Ohio to Mississippi and pushing the temperature below freezing all the way to the Gulf Coast.

Fourteen inches of snow fell at Memphis, Tenn., probably the most to fall on the city since 1872. It was colder in Dallas, Tex., than it was in Anchorage, Alaska, and a reading of 11 was the lowest for this day since Dallas started keeping records in 1893.

Snow fell as far south in Texas as Waco, and statewide freezing temperatures threatened crops in the low Rio Grande. Traffic in Jackson, Miss., and Atlanta, Ga., was at a virtual standstill today because of snow turning to ice.

Air and bus service throughout Tennessee — one of the harder hit states — was sharply curtailed. Many roads were virtually impassable. All major roads out of Memphis and the Memphis — Arkansas bridge across the Mississippi River were closed Sunday night.

Heavy snow warnings were posted for most of the Eastern eight states — Ohio, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, the Virginias, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Indiana, New England and Delaware. Hard freeze warnings were posted from southern Texas to Florida.

Driving was hazardous throughout the South.

Wiley Lamaster, St. Louis, Mo., escaped injury when his single-engine Cessna 150 crashed south of Hohenwald, Tenn., Sunday night during the snow storm.

A number of weekend traffic deaths in Alabama and Mississippi was blamed on slippery roads. Six persons suffocated in St. Petersburg, Fla., in two separate fires — four elderly persons when a faulty flue sent deadly fumes into a home and a couple in a fire in their home.

The temperatures dropped to near or below zero in a huge triangle from the Great Lakes to Oklahoma to the Canadian border. It was colder in Dallas, Tex., than it was at Anchorage, Alaska.

At least seven weekend traffic fatalities in Texas were blamed on icy roads. A young couple injured in an expressway accident near Louisville, Ky., froze to death Sunday when they lay undiscovered in 9-degree temperatures for four hours. A young man and woman died from carbon monoxide fumes after their car crashed into a snow-covered ditch near Denison, Iowa, and they apparently elected to wait for help in 17-below temperatures.

A heavy snow warning and hazardous driving alert was out for Ohio today, and as the temperature dropped below freezing, water main breaks occurred in most major cities. Water Works Supt. Charles Bolton said the freeze caused at least 20 water main breaks in Cincinnati since Thursday.

A 5-year-old boy drowned in Washington, Pa., Sunday when he fell into a creek while playing with friends. Pranksters shoved a 1963 model car down the hill onto the frozen Allegheny River upstream from Pittsburgh, and police plan to let it sit until the river melts and then recover it.

The snowfall in Arkansas was the most in three years. The weather bureau called the snowfall in Arkansas and Tennessee a "rare occurrence." Two traffic deaths were blamed on the storm.
