

Tax Vote And Special Session Topped Oregon News In '63

PORTLAND (UPI)—Oregon's 1963 legislature went 141 days in the longest regular session in the state's history.

It finally passed a $48 million income tax increase bill and a $12 million one-shot measure to raise $60 million needed for a $404 million general fund budget.

But the taxpayers said no-loudly. An hour after the polls closed Oct. 15 Gov. Mark Hatfield admitted the tax bill had been defeated. The final count was by a 3½ to 1 margin.

The tax election and the resulting special legislative session ranked as Oregon's top news story of 1963, according to balloting by United Press International editors. The special session passed no new taxes, although it did again approve the one-shot withholding tax bill. And it gave Hatfield the powers he asked to trim the budget.

Money figured, also, in the state's number two news story, the long summer lumber strike. The strike - lockout started June 5 and spread throughout the Douglas Fir region. At one time an estimated 20,000 workers were idled. It began against two members of the Big Six employer group and the four others shut down. Settlement came in mid-August, generally along lines of a 30% cent hourly wage hike spread over three years.

Stories listed here is how the editors rated the top 10 stories for the state this year.

1. Tax election and special session.
2. Lumber strike.
3. Seaside riots for second year in a row.
4. The regular, record - long legislative session.
5. Civil defense cutbacks.
6. Boardman.
7. The state's record highway death toll.
8. Death penalty vote set for next year and appeals of condemned slayers Jeannette Freeman and Larry Shipley.
9. October Eugene Republican conference.
10. President Kennedy's visit to Tongue Point.

To say if they want to abolish the death penalty, Miss Freeman, who would be the first woman executed in Oregon, and Shipley, meanwhile, continue their appeals. Two other persons also are on death row in Salem.

Young people at Seaside rioted over the Labor Day weekend for the second year in a row. This story was barely nosed out for number two by the lumber strike.

Highway Toll Huge

The state had a record number of highway deaths — with the official count standing at 343 as of Dec. 26. The old record was 422 in 1959. The victims included State Rep. W. O. Kelsay, D-Roseburg; promising fighter Bobby Horn and Oregonian entertainment editor Bob Walters.

A preview of the 1964 presidential primary was seen at the Western Republican Conference in Eugene this fall when Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York now a declared candidate, and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, considered a front runner for the GOP nomination appeared separately on the same day. The late President John F. Kennedy paid a brief visit to Oregon in September, announcing at Astoria that the old Tongue Point Navy station would be put to use. He had planned to visit Portland, too, but threatened picketing by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People led him to cancel his trip here.

Stories which also received strong voting included, in order: Problems of higher education; racial problems in Portland; the projected Oregon Dunes seashore; Portland's new baby elephants; the slaying of cattle herds Irene Davis in Portland; the proposed power intertie with California; threats to Gov. Hatfield; continued salvage of blow-down timber from the 1962 October storm without a feared forest fire loss; the mail fraud and conspiracy trial resulting from sale of arid lands in Harney County, and Hatfield's firing of industrial accident commissioners Emily Logan and Sidney Lewis.

NO EVACUATION ORDERS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said early today that no orders had been issued yet for evacuation of any Americans from strife-torn Cyprus, but routine alert procedures have been taken.

The department said that U.S. Ambassador Fraser Wilkins had "for some time" been contacting all Americans on the island to advise them about evacuation procedure.

Who's Calling Who Handicapped

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our very handsome son is going to marry a nice girl who was crippled in an accident during childhood.

The girl's mother is making arrangements for a church wedding and it appears that they plan to go all out. Since the girl has this bad limp, don't you feel it would be in better taste if they had a modified ceremony and not the traditional one where the bride walks down the aisle on her father's arm?

My husband says he doesn't want to get involved in this. Do you feel I should mention it to my son, to the girl or to her mother? They are accustomed to the girl's limp so naturally they do not see it as others do. A word from someone objective, such as myself, seems in order.

Please advise.—MOTHER OF THE GROOM

Dear Mother: Keep quiet and let the bride and her mother make whatever wedding plans they wish. The girl deserves a great deal of credit for adjusting to her problem. In my opinion you are more handicapped than she is.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a secretary to a wealthy and prominent business man. My work-load is tremendous, but because I'm a conscientious person I manage to keep current by coming in early and working late.

The problem is the boss' wife. She waltzes in three or four times a week and says, "Write a letter to so-and-so," and then she begins to dictate. Some days I spend two hours on her social and organizational letter-writing. By rights this woman should hire a private secretary.

My boss has a partner who also has a wife, but she never comes near the office nor would she dream of taking advantage of his secretary's time.

Confederate chaplains were appointed by President Davis, carried no special rank and their pay varied.

Dear Heartache: One of the good things about a rough experience is that sometimes we learn from it. I suspect you've learned plenty — and that's good.
