

The COMPLETE BOWLER

ARM SHOULD come forward until it is at least head high.

By RAY BLUTH
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If ever there was a follow-through, Harry Smith has it. He not only brings his arm all the way through, he leaps into the air.

Maybe Harry overdoes it a little bit simply because he is carried away or maybe because he is a great showman, but his form on the follow through is worth the careful study.

You may have a perfect approach, pendulum swing and a ball release, yet fail to score well because you did not complete the follow through. The arm should come forward until it is at least head high.

The follow through should be a natural continuation of your pendulum swing. Just forget you have relinquished the ball and keep your arm going in the same direction, in the same easy, natural manner that you executed the pendulum swing. Do this and your ball will have proper direction and natural speed.

HARRY SMITH
Jumping Harry Smith is noted not only for winning tournaments, but for the tremendous leaps he gives and body English he uses while waiting for the ball to strike the pins. The 33-year-old string bean (5-11, 148) has won more than 30 tournaments and rolled 42 perfect games (37 unassisted). He rolled two consecutive 300 games while scoring an 879 series in a 1959 exhibition. Smith, who is 33, was born in Cleveland and started bowling in 1911.

Beavers Continue Dominance Of Far West Tournament; Oregon Upsets Rams For Third

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State's once-beaten Beavers today looked ahead to a weekend series with Cincinnati after capturing their eighth straight Far West Classic basketball championship Monday night.

The Beavers posted their 10th win in 11 starts and sixth straight victory by coming from behind to defeat Brigham Young 66-53 in the finals of the classic before a record crowd of 13,912 persons.

Oregon State, which now has won 21 straight games in taking the tournament every year since its start in 1956, plays Cincinnati here Friday night and at Corvallis, Ore., Saturday night.

The Bearcats walloped the Beavers 80-46 in the NCAA semifinals last winter.

Counts MVP
Seven-foot Mel Counts scored 24 points and collected 16 rebounds for Oregon State against Brigham Young. He was voted the most valuable player in the four-day, eight-team tournament.

But the Beavers' victory didn't come easily—and not until 6-8 center John Fairchild of the Cougars fouled out.

Brigham Young was ahead by 11 points in the second half and held a 48-39 lead when Fairchild was called with his fifth foul with 12:07 left to play.

Oregon State then outscored the Cougars in the next seven minutes to take a 55-51 lead and never was headed.

Counts, who poured in 40 points in an opening round victory over Louisiana State Thursday night, made 15 of his 24 points after Fairchild fouled out. Jim Jarvis scored 19 points and Rick Whelan tallied 12 for the Beavers, who held a 29-27 halftime lead.

For the Cougars, Fairchild had 16 and Steve Kramer made 14.

All Stars
Named to the tournament All-Star Team with Counts were Fairchild, Jarvis, Steve Jones of Oregon and Charlie Williams of Seattle.

Counts' performance in the finals allowed him to break the tournament scoring record with 89 points in three games. The old mark was 76 set by Oregon's Charlie Warren in 1961.

A record 42,022 persons watched the classic.

Five Major Bowl Games Figured To Attract Thousands January 1

By United Press International

An estimated 300,000 college football fans are expected to ring out the old year and ring in the new year today and Wednesday at five major bowl games — one of which may determine 1963's No. 1 team.

The two-day football binge begins in El Paso, Tex., today with Oregon opposing Southern Methodist in the Sun Bowl before a crowd of 30,000.

Then, with a bleary-eyed national TV audience spinning the dials on New Year's Day, the bowl menu will be continued with four choice morsels.

—The Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., with Illinois (7-1-1) facing Washington (6-4) before a crowd of 100,000.

—The Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla., where Nebraska (9-1) will face Auburn (9-1) with a turnout of 72,000 anticipated.

—The Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, La., with Mississippi (7-0-2) facing Alabama (7-2) before a crowd of about 82,000.

—Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex., where Texas (10-0) takes on Navy (9-1) before some 75,000 fans.

face nationally second ranked Navy and its unpredictable Heisman player of the year award-winning Roger Staubach.

This classic match of sound defense and careful ball-controlling offense against varied and surprising offense will enable the winner to claim the national championship.

Texas coaches concede the brilliance of Staubach but have emphasized the quality of the rest of Navy's squad during pre-game maneuvers. At the same time Navy Coach Wayne Hardin has repeatedly emphasized the strength-in-depth of the Texas squad. The odds-makers have made Texas a timid one-point choice.

Fullback Junior Coffey's recovery from injury has lifted Washington's Rose Bowl hopes against a typical Big Ten football in depth-laden Illinois. The Big Ten representative has been installed as a 6 1/2-point favorite. Illinois is reported in perfect condition.

Mississippi Favored
Quarterbacks Perry Lee Dunn and Jim Weatherly plus fullback Bucky Randall give Mississippi a seven-point edge in the Sugar Bowl, according to the odds-makers. The big question mark for Alabama is injured fullback Mike Fracchia. Auburn is giving away height and weight to Nebraska but has been installed a 1 1/2-point choice.

THREE ALL-STARS — Oregon State's Jim Jarvis (10) and Brigham Young's John Fairchild (54) collide in the championship game of the Far West classic at Portland Monday night. Behind Jarvis is OSU center Mel Counts (21). All three players were named to the tournament all-star team as the Beavers won their eighth consecutive classic title.

Personal fouls: Colorado State — Anderson 4, Sigatoo 3, Boston 3, Wright 2, Matthews 2, Ellis, Hoffman, Wallace 2, Vidakovich 4, Oregon—Cooley 3, Jones 4, Johnson 4, Barnett 2.

Illinois Remains Six-Point Favorite

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Illinois remained a steady, six-point favorite today to end Washington's string of victories in the Rose Bowl Wednesday and re-establish the Big Ten's domination of the New Year's Day football classic.

The hard-grinding Illinois team frequently has been called unspectacular as it relied upon its defensive strength to force opponents into mistakes. But Coach Pete Elliott hinted that the Illinois might open up the game with more of a razzle-dazzle offense.

Illinois piled up a record of seven victories, one loss and one tie in capturing the Big Ten championship. Washington carried a record of six wins and four losses into the Rose Bowl, poorest in the history of the game. The Huskies hold a two-game Rose Bowl winning streak.

Coffey Fractures Bone
The game originally had been considered a battle of powerful fullbacks with Washington's Junior Coffey competing against the Illinois' Jim Grabowski. But the injury-prone Coffey 10 days ago suffered a hairline fracture in one of the small bones of his left foot, behind the little toe.

Coffey still may see some action but Coach Jim Owens said he was depending on Charlie Browning and Mike Kublenki to carry the load at fullback.

Both teams have able quarterbacks and Washington was strengthened by its return to action of Bill Siler, who missed all except the opening game of the season due to illness. As a result, Bill Douglas took over and developed into an excellent signal-caller.

The Illini alternate Mike Taliaferro and Fred Custardo at quarterback where they have done more running and ball-handling than passing. The speedsters for the Illini are halfbacks Sam Price and Jim Warren.

The Huskies have a pair of capable halfbacks also in Ron Medved and Dave Kopay and a scabback punt and kickoff return artist in Steve Bramwell.

Texans Suggest 'Award'

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — The White House has announced that President Johnson had received "several" requests from Texans that Navy quarterback Roger Staubach be given a special award at the LBJ Ranch at 2 p.m., CST, New Year's Day. That is the time that the game between Navy and Texas starts in the Cotton Bowl.

Madison Gets New Grid Coach

PORTLAND (UPI) — Washington High School head football coach Larry Keek was named to the same post at Madison High School Monday.

Keek, who held the job at Washington for two years, resigned to take over for Warren Bolin, who stepped down after one year in the Madison post.

Bolin will remain at Madison as an assistant coach.

TITLE MAY WITHDRAW
NEW YORK (UPI) — Y.A. Tittle of the New York Giants, who suffered a knee injury in Sunday's 14-10 National Football League title loss to the Chicago Bears, is expected today to withdraw from the league's annual Pro Bowl game scheduled at Los Angeles for Jan. 12.

Outstanding Sports Figures Missing As New Year Starts

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

MIAMI (UPI) — It's off with the old and on with the new tonight but spare a moment for those who won't go into 1964 with us.

Should auld acquaintance be forgot . . .
Such as dapper Doc Kearns, who was counted out at 80 still dreaming of another champion. Davey Moore, owner of the featherweight title before he died in the ring at a mere 29. Jack Root, the first light heavyweight champion, who passed 83, and Spike Webb, the 74-year-old Navy ring coach who also trained Gene Tunney.

And never brought to mind . . .
Like Lee Wallard, who stretched it out another 12 years until he was at 82. Remember how he won the Indianapolis 500 in 1951 and almost perished in a crash a few weeks later at Reading.

For auld lang syne, my dear, Baseball was a big loser. It was a year which took Home Run Baker, 77-year-old Hall of Famer of the Athletics; Andy Coakley, 81-year-old Columbia coach who developed long departed Lou Gehrig; Karl Drews 43-year-old former pitcher with the Yanks, Browns and Phils; Bump Hadley, who at 39 looked back on his years with the Yanks and five other clubs, and 66-year-old Rogers Hornsby, seven-time National League batting champion.

For auld lang syne . . .
Gone, too, are Joe Judge, one-time Washington first baseman, at 68; "Honest Dickie" Kerr, who won two games for the 1919 Black Sox and in 1940 converted Stan Musial from a sore-armed pitcher into an outfielder; Wiley Moore, 65, with his memories of the mighty 1927 Yankees; Hall of Famer Eppa

Rixey at 72; minor league President George Trautman, 73, and, at the same age, Oscar Vitt, manager of the 1949 Cleveland Indian "cry babies."

We'll drink a cup to happiness . . . Remembering the nice times with some of our own guys, Harry Heeren, sports copy editor at the New York Times; Harry Carlin, the New York Herald-Tribune racing writer; Art Mann, who went from the typewriter to Branch Rickey's aide and back again, and Ray Trullinger, the New York World-Telegram and Sun hunting and fishing editor. And wherever they are, they just might be listening to organist Gladys Gooding who jumped the keys at Ebbets Field and Madison Square Garden.

For auld lang syne.

Should auld acquaintance be forgot . . .

"Barefoot Ed" Dudley, former PGA president, holed his last putt at 63. And along with him went Horton Smith, the two-time Masters champion and golfing Hall of Famer at 53.

And the sake of auld lang syne . . .

It never really materialized for Ernie Davis, the 23-year-old Syracuse All-America of 1961, who dreamed of making it big with the Cleveland Browns. And there was shock to the manner in which Big Daddy Lipscomb, at 31, checked in his equipment. Football also lost Willie Weston, the 48-year-old hero of Michigan's turn-of-the-century "point a minute" teams, and Adm. Oliver Kessing, 72, former commissioner of the defunct All American Conference.

For auld lang syne, my dear, Baseball was a big loser. It was a year which took Home
