Here is a hand from the 1964 world championship team trials that should really furnish a field day for second guessers.

Seven of the nine North-South pairs in the trials reached five-club contracts by means of the bidding in the box or something fairly similar. One North player opened with one heart and after rebidding two and three diamonds, dropped his partner at four clubs. The other South player got all the way to six clubs.

Playing at five or six clubs, South held himself to nine tricks. He would play dummy's queen of spades at trick one and take East's king with the ace. Then he would take a first-round heart finesse in hope of getting two quick discards. The heart finesse would lose. East would take two spades and West the ace of trumps.

The one South who played four clubs went after trumps at trick two. He lost two spades and the ace of clubs, but he made his part score contract.

Where do second-guessers come in? North would have no trouble making five diamonds and actually might make six. Nevertheless, every South player rebid his clubs indefinitely and obviously North had to give up the struggle somewhere along the line.

Were the second guessers right? From a result standpoint, "Yes." From a statistical standpoint, "No."

Every one of the nine expert South players chose to insist on clubs and I imagine that at least 99 per cent of other players would have done likewise. Furthermore, just shift the East and West hands and it turns out that there is no defense against five clubs while five diamonds cannot make.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Dble.	Rdble.	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

What do you do now?

A—Bid three no-trump. Your partner's two-club bid has shown a minimum type hand with a long club suit. You should be willing to gamble for a no-trump game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two clubs, your partner passes and East bids one diamond. What do you do now?
