Louise Elaine Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Zimmerman, and Walter R. y Ash, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Ash, exchanged nuptial vows Jan. 13 at Kingsley Field Chapel. Chaplain William Thoresen officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather. She wore a gown of white lace with veiled bow headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

Matron of honor was the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Carl Baker, who with her husband and daughters came from Sumter, S.C. for the ceremony. She wore a frock of blue dotted swiss and carried blue carnations. Another sister of the bridegroom, Carolyn Ash, dressed in pale green and tied swiss, and Barbara Holston, in pink dotted swiss, were bridesmaids. Their carnation bouquets matched their dresses.

Carla and Sheila Baker, nieces of the bridegroom, were flower girls and were dressed in blue dotted swiss.

Robert Ash was best man for his brother.

The wedding reception after the ceremony was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Ash are living in Tacoma while he is stationed with the Army at Fort Lewis.

James Sibbet, sophomore at Lewis and Clark College, is one of 15 students who recently returned from a 10-week USO tour of American military bases in the Far East.

The troupe presented a condensed version of the musical, "Destiny Rides Again." They also put together a variety show of acts ranging from opera to comedy. The program was presented to military men in Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Okinawa, Wake, the Philippines and Hawaii. Additional performances were arranged through the USO-sponsored People To People program, whose audiences included Nationalist Chinese soldiers on Taiwan and university students in Hiroshima, Japan.

Holidays were few for the Lewis and Clark entertainers. They spent Thanksgiving in Sapporo, Japan, and Christmas they celebrated on a bus traveling across Taiwan.

James Sibbet portrayed the evoked mayor of Bottleneck in "Destiny" and, in keeping with the condensed cast, filled in as singer and dancer.

The most important thing in a woman's appearance is her hair. Don't be bound by age-old adages about the type of face you possess being the determining factor to the kind of hairdo you must have. Study your own face, your height, general appearance, and most of all, the life you lead. First, and most important, keep your hair in good condition. Have your beauty consultant frequently examine your hair to see that it is in top condition, and follow her advice on any special problems you might have. Select a style that will wear well for your particular kind of life and one that you have the time to keep looking right. Have a professional permanent, discuss your style with your hairdresser and let her skilled hands do the rest.
