

Advice Saves Marriage From Sad End In Court

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: You saved our marriage. I was usually packing my suitcase when the mailman delivered your letter. Your advice was a godsend. I followed it, and I would be foolish to leave my husband. It sounds as if the man needs to see a doctor. By all means insist that he get a physical checkup.

I showed Howard your letter and he agreed to see the family doctor. I guess he was shocked that I had written to you. Also he was surprised you answered. He said he didn't think you'd bother.

Well, Ann, the doctor gave Howard a series of tests and found out that he was dangerously anemic and had a low grade infection. No wonder the guy was tired and irritable all the time and had no interest in me or anything else.

Now, four weeks later, Howard is like a new man. The shots and pills have done wonders for him. It's almost like being on a honeymoon again and I want to say thank you, thank you—BACK ON THE BEAM.

Dear Beam: People who are not well physically are difficult to live with. It's tough to be cheerful and pleasant when the pep-o-meter registers zero. Irritation and chronic fatigue can be symptoms of illness and should be investigated. If you others will take a cue from your letter.

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter has gone off to school again in tears. Sally is 6 years old and very sensitive. Her sister, who is 11, refused to walk with her again this morning because she had made plans to walk with a girl friend.

I've tried every way I know to get the 11-year-old to be nice to her younger sister, but it's hopeless. She resents Sally and doesn't want to be bothered with someone who loves and admires us.

The older girl should be "grown-up" privileges (later bedtime, etc.) as a symbol of her seniority. Explain that grown-up privileges carry with them responsibilities. Make her feel honored to be an older sister and tell her you hope she will live up to her sister's high opinion of her.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with (or should I say "staying home with") an eligible bachelor for three years. He lives in the apartment below mine, and we sort of fell into the habit of having dinner together every evening at my place.

Three weeks ago I decided to move out of the building so he would have to at least walk a couple of blocks for a free meal.

I'm not so sure I did the smart thing. He telephoned me when he feels like it and this week he has felt like it only twice. Furthermore he's the jealous type and says he will never see me again if I go out with anyone else.

Last night I asked him bluntly when he planned to marry me. He replied, "If there's anything I can stand it's a pushy woman." Ann, I am 29 years old and I believe I've been very patient. I love this guy and don't want to lose him. I know he doesn't take out anyone but me. I need some help.—AGING FAN.

Dear A. F.: The answer to this one is so I'll be going to have to shove it to feel that way. Tell your friend if he wants you to be exclusively his, a marriage license costs less than a dinner these days. In the meantime, go out with others and tell him to call you when he gets the urge to merge, that is.

East Side . . . West Side All Around the Town

By JOE CARAHER
It was something out of the ordinary Friday when two fellows across the table at a service club meeting introduced themselves.

"I'm Bill Ganger," said the gentleman from Tulake.

Said the other: "I don't want you to think I'm trying to be a wise guy or anything but my name is Bill Ganger. They laughed when they sat down and then each told how — especially in their early school days — their names were abused. "I used to have to fight my way home," said the department store mogul. "The kids would call me 'Goosey, Goosey Gander!'"

"Did you win many of those fights?" we asked. "Not many," was his response. "Oh I guess I whipped a few of the small girls on the schoolgrounds," the gander chuckled.

At the same service club go-round, Glenn Bowen, sometimes referred to as the Glidersleeve of the local water company, was assessed a pretty stiff fine for not showing up at the Oregon Tech-hoop-palace last Monday when the University of Alaska, his alma mater, played here. Glenn's being in the bleachers would have been inexpensive loyalty.

More people are smoking all the time regardless of the efforts being employed to point out the dangers of such a practice, especially cigarettes. Here's what an abstainer (anonymous) warned in grandpa's day: Tobacco is a filthy weed, it grows beneath the devil's seed. It ruins your pockets and stains your clothes. And makes a chimney-pipe out of your nose.

It isn't what the commercials say today but the advice is probably a lot more logical.

Mrs. W. T. Schweiger sent us a letter she had received from a sister telling about some harrowing hours she experienced in Roseburg during the height of the Christmas floods. Said Miss Kathy Holden, The Dalles, author of the hair-raiser, after she and others were rescued from the second story of a house as water swirled near the window sills.

"Returning to my sister's house we found the woodshed gone into the field, mud was 21-18 inches deep in the house. The deep freeze was gone and the washer and dryer were full of mud. Food, clothing and furniture were mostly gone down the river. I will long remember my 1964 Christmas-New Year holiday vacation and am glad to be back to Laurelwood Academy."

All of which proves there are worse things than going to school. And Mrs. Schweiger had some nice comments about the good work of the Red Cross during the whole hectic situation.

The county agent's office has the two original nemeses of the poor lineotyp operator — Walt Jendzejewski and Beverly Wischnofski. But if they were baseball players and their names had to appear in a half column box score, we'd have had it. Proof readers, please check spelling.

There are some good things about the weather too. For instance 150 people were trapped yesterday at Crystal Mountain Ski resort in the Washington Cascades. . . . How would you like to be trapped a few days at Sun Valley? Ski Heil you schussmoorers! This has to be the year for the hickory slats. Dick Nelson, the super at Crater Lake, tells us there's about three times as much snow in the park this year than last. And then again, who needs it?

Chiffer-Chatter — Oregon Tech prof Cecil Lake received a nice honor last week when he was named president of the Crater Lake Natural History Association. He has the right name for the job, too. . . . Bob Kennedy served capably as emcee for the annual Girl Scouts banquet last week. The Boy Scouts could use a guy like Bob but there's little hope. The people in his life are all women — Mom and three gals. . . . The ladies who have been going to lunch at the Pelican for lo, these many years felt badly when they heard the famed old restaurant was to close but the owners had a change of heart and it will stay open with a name tugging over they dignified and soft-spoken Avis McConnell. . . . And they tell us the Willard, which has been skating on thin ice for the past few years, will be resuscitated. At the moment the Ponderosa is dark but is expected to resume operations in the near future.

Meanwhile back at the Winema and Molator's Main Street's north and south end social, culinary and cultural centers, they are busy-busy. . . . Two of OTS's most loyal hoop fans are Brooks and Wilma Dickerman. They rarely miss a contest, Friday being one. Brooks and Tech Coach Jim Partlow were pre-rials. The man in charge of the Hello Girls here played for Benson while the foxy Owl mentor was performing for Grant and Wilma was in the Generals' rooting sector. . . . Cheering note to folks who enter the City of Hope Hospital. Their charitable greeting: "Through these doors come the most wonderful people in the world — our patients." We'd have to confess we've walked into hospitals where such an atmosphere was barely detectable. Credit above quote to Dr. Ralph Byron, an outstanding medico who doubles as a speaker at things like the Governor's Prayer Breakfasts. He made two major — and outstanding — talks here Friday. . . . Then there were the days when malt and hops distributor Jack O'Neill used to hang around Brannigan's Bakery in our old neighborhood and where we used to be able to buy a loaf as big as a football for a dime. Like the man says, "Those days are gone forever." . . . Among the real nice and friendly senior citizens around town you'll go a long way to beat Alice Lawrence. . . . Merrill Lions, please note — you have a meeting Monday, tomorrow night, and the feature is the H & N and UP's topnotch Highlights of Sport in 1964. See you there, eh Bill Falvey?

history, but his work is done and the record is closed." He then evoked the "Tennessee's Crossing the Bar."

"Sunset and evening star,
"And one clear call for me!
"And may there be no moaning of the bar
"When I put out to sea.

"Twilight and evening bell,
"And after that the dark!
"And may there be no moaning of the bar
"When I embark."

Well, there are dark days still for Britain. She has slipped from her former position of greatness. Her politics are tangled. Her economy is weak and getting weaker. Her money, once the unquestioned standard of value throughout the world, is shaky. Worst of all, her leadership is weak.

And we? Well, we have our problems. One of them is our mounting debt, which goes on getting bigger and bigger. History tells us that someday there will have to be a reckoning. We can't go merrily on forever, spending more and more and still more — and putting it on the cuff. But if we can go on finding leaders like Winston Churchill and Dwight Eisenhower — and if we will follow them — we will be able to meet whatever crises we may be called upon to meet.

Gordon Cook, International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE) will share his experiences of a six-month visit to South Korea Feb. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the lecture room of the county fairgrounds. Beverly Wischnofski and Francis Skinner, Klamath County extension agents, urge any interested persons to attend this free of charge showing of Cook's slides and souvenirs.

As an IFYE to Korea, Cook left the United States in June and returned in November, 1964. Among his other experiences there, he had an opportunity to meet the retired American military man who followed the Korean conflict in the early 1950s.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Clive Cook of Canby, Gordon was a 4-H Club member for 10 years in Clackamas County. His farm experience includes summer management of a 384-acre Willamette Valley farm. He is a 1964 graduate of Oregon State University, earning his degree in animal science, and plans to continue his graduate study at OSU spring term.

The International Farm Youth Exchange program is conducted by the National 4-H Club Foundation in behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service. Oregon annually sends four young people to other nations under the "people-to-people" — the IFYE program in Oregon came from the Oregon Bankers Association, 4-H Club members and leaders and other interested business firms and individuals.

Cook's total schedule while in Klamath County, Feb. 1-3, is as follows: Monday, Feb. 1, 10 a.m., Roosevelt School; 2:45 p.m., Mills School; 6:30 p.m., Business and Professional Women's Club. (All first-grounds, open to public.) Tuesday, Feb. 2, 9:15 a.m., Fremont School; 12 noon, Klamath Falls Lions Club; 7:30 p.m., 4-H Club. (All first-grounds, open to public.) Wednesday, Feb. 3, 10:15 a.m., Malin High School; 12 noon, Tulelake Rotary Club.

Army Recruiter To Visit Area
Sgt. First Class Dwayne Wynne, Klamath Falls area Army recruiter, will be in Klamath Falls Monday and Tuesday.

Wynne urged young men interested in joining the Army to see him at his office in the courthouse from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday or Tuesday. The enlistment period is three years and training is guaranteed before enlistment.

Wynne also said interested young men may call him in Medford collect, 772-5022.
