Women's City Bowling Tourney Opens

82 Teams Open Action Tonight

More than 300 women will begin efforts to capture trophies and special recognition tonight, as the 1965 Women's Bowling Tournament gets underway at Lucky Lanes.

Action is expected to begin at approximately 6:30 this evening with teams initiating the action. The team competition will continue through Friday.

On Saturday, singles, doubles and all-events competition will get underway at Holiday Bowl.

According to Beth Griggs, Klamath Falls Women's Bowling Association secretary, more than 270 entries are in for the singles matches, and 82 teams of women bowlers will begin their action starting tonight.

A total of 248 entries were registered for the all-events competition beginning Saturday at Holiday. Doubles matches, also slated for Holiday Bowl will see 138 entries.

The men's bowling activity, tournament wise, will begin this coming Monday, and continue through the following Sunday.

All bowlers will be participating in the annual awards banquet March 6, where trophies won in the tournaments will be presented.

Oregon Ace Gets Honors

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Dan Schollander, the Oregon swimming hero who Tuesday was named the recipient of the Sullivan Award as the United States' outstanding amateur athlete of 1964, vowed to "do my best to keep improving — hoping they won't catch me."

Running true to form, the 18-year-old Yale freshman acknowledged his selection by the Amateur Athletic Union with customary modesty.

"I think everyone in amateur sports is aware of the Sullivan Award," he said, "and I knew I'd be up for it because of the success I had this year. And when they picked the top 15 I was hoping I'd be able to get it, but of course I didn't know."

Athletic Commission Checking On Injury

By Jack Cuddy
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York State Athletic Commission, investigating the story of Floyd Patterson's injured left hand, expects an official report on the injury early next week, says commission Chairman Melvin L. Krulewitch.

Patterson, former two-time heavyweight champion, openly admitted Tuesday that he went into the ring against George Chuvalo Monday night with a left hand that was still being treated for a "bone separation" on the third knuckle.

In New York state a boxer can lose his license to fight if he enters the ring knowingly injured.

Patterson told a news conference not only that his hand was still being treated for the bone-separation but that the injury was largely responsible for his winning a unanimous 12-round decision over Chuvalo.

Had his left fist been normal he said, he would have concentrated on an all-out attack against the Toronto slugger and probably have been knocked out. Instead, he used more defensive tactics — circling and side-stepping — than at any previous time in his 15-year professional career.

Chairman Krulewitch said he expects a report from "our medical director Dr. Ira McCown" early next week. The chairman said he had asked Dr. McCown "to investigate the matter and give us a complete reported."

What puzzled Krulewitch was the fact that Patterson had undergone three official physical examinations before the fight—two at camp and one at the weigh-in. Moreover, in the dressing room — just before the fight—"our chief deputy Frank Morris examined the first bandages that all boxers wear and he put pressure on the bandages and bones during the examination."

Seattle Out To Stop Portland Hockey Lead

By United Press International

Second - place Seattle tries to slow down first-place Portland in tonight's only Western Hockey League action, but the Bucks appear to have too much zip for the rest of the loop.

Portland zoomed into first by winning 8 out of 11 games during a stretch when most of its action was on the road. The team arrived back home again Sunday and crushed Victoria, 7-2. It's a red-hot Portland team that will entertain Seattle tonight and the Totems are five points behind the Bucks already.

In Tuesday night's only action, Vancouver hosted Los Angeles and played its fifth tie of the year in a 3-3 battle.

Both teams made nice comebacks. After Vancouver moved out in front after about 32 minutes of play on goals by Bob McCusker and Bev Bell, Los Angeles roared back.

Warren Hynes hit one after 16:13 of the second period and then Marc Boileau exploded for two goals in the last stanza—the second with less than six minutes to go.

Capt. Billy McNeill scored at 16:35 of the last period to set up the overtime 10 minutes, which failed to produce a tally.

Ex-Olympic hero Jack McCartan blocked 59 shots for the Blades, while Gilles Villemure of Vancouver had to stop only 22 shots.

The tie kept Vancouver exactly at the .500 level with a 22-22-5 mark, or 49 points in 49 games. The tie also pushed Los Angeles out in front of last-place San Francisco by a solitary point. But the Blades still trail fourth place Victoria by five.

Bob Hope Classic Underway

By JAMES C. ANDERSON
UPI Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) —The Bob Hope Desert Classic, also known as the Confusion Open, gets underway today with the big five of pro golf hoping to break the string of longshot winners on the winter tour.

All of the top money winners of 1964 — Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Tony Lema and Bobby Nichols — are entered in the $100,000 classic.

But so are the darkhorse winners of the previous four tournaments staged this year—Paul Harney, the Los Angeles Open titlist; Wes Ellis Jr., who won at San Diego; Australia's Bruce Crampton, the Bing Crosby Pro-Am king, and George Archer, a sophomore tourist who captured last week's Lucky International.

Both Nicklaus and Archer were ailing on the eve of the tournament — Nicklaus with an upset stomach and long George with a bad back. But both hoped to show up on the first tee.

This event is sometimes called the Confusion Open because it is a 90-hole affair staged on four different courses. Even tournament-wise pros have been known to show up on the wrong course with the wrong trio of amateurs at the wrong time.

The pros play for $80,000 in their own medal play sweepstakes with first prize worth $15,000. But at the same time, they play with four different sets of amateurs in competition worth another $20,000.

The pro-amateur is played over the 72-hole route on Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado, Indian Wells and La Quinta country clubs. Sunday, the low 70 pros battle it out at Bermuda Dunes for the top prizes in the fifth round.

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Though invariably won by a major stable, no owner has succeeded in winning the Marguerite Stakes at Pimlico twice.

Student Wins Free Throw Meet

Riverside elementary student Ray Yoro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick T. Yoro, 139 Uerlings, turned in the finest performance in free throw shooting, and walked off with city honors in the event conducted at Pelican Court.

Yoro will represent Klamath Falls grade schoolers in a statewide Elk sponsored contest at Oregon State University this weekend. He connected on 22 of 25 possible free throws in winning his special honors.

In second place was John Balsiger, Roosevelt School, with 20 of 25 tallies. Glenn Gunter, Pelican School, placed third with 19, while Berry Card and Rusty Earlerson tied for fourth with 18 each. Card is a student at Altamont Grade School and Earlerson attends Fremont School.

One student from each of the city's grade schools participated in the program, after each earned the right through competition in his own school.

Pro Sports Want Equal Treatment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is being asked to give all major professional team sports the same treatment baseball gets under U. S. anti-trust laws.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., a former official of both the Detroit Tigers baseball team and the Detroit Lions football team, introduced legislation to that effect Tuesday.

Hart's bill would bring professional baseball, football, basketball and hockey under the anti - trust laws. But it would also provide loopholes to permit league rules on the size of squads, agreements on territorial rights and the so-called "reserve clauses" in players' contract.

Professional baseball has been exempt from anti-trust laws since 1922 when the Supreme Court ruled it was not in interstate commerce. The decision was reaffirmed in 1953.
