

Vote Rights Campaign Moves To Montgomery

By United Press International
Dr. Martin Luther King's civil rights campaign in Alabama moved today to Montgomery, the old cradle of the Confederacy, where a march on the courthouse was the order of the day.

Negro leaders said the march was more to arouse voter interest among Negroes than a protest against voter registration procedures as it has been for the last three weeks at Selma and Marion, Ala.

King planned to lead the march from the little red brick church house where nearly 10 years ago he launched his first civil rights drive in the Montgomery bus boycott of 1955.

"I am delighted to be home," King told a rally of about 700 Monday night. "I'm not a stranger here on an 'outside agitator'."

There was a new round of arrests Monday at Selma, Ala., bringing the number in the three-week old voter registration campaign to about 3,400.

Those arrested were fined for violating a court order prohibiting demonstrations around the courthouse while court was in session.

At Jackson, Miss., Monday the owner of a local restaurant admitted in court that his firm's policy of refusing service to Negroes had not changed since passage of the 1964 civil rights law.

Kenneth Primus told a court hearing a suit brought by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People that employs five restaurants operated by his family had been instructed not to serve Negroes.

"We reserve the right to serve whomever we please," said Primus.

$100 REWARD
For the arrest and conviction of the thief who stole on the night of Feb. 2nd or morning of Feb. 3, 1965 a four burner Carter Carburetor (model No. 9778965) from a 1965 Pontiac parked behind 833 Eldorado St. If more than one thief was involved there will be paid $100 reward for each of the thieves arrested and convicted.
The stolen carburetor will fit anything (probably General Motors product) that is adapted with a our brand manifold. This car caught on fire when the owner attempted to start it and the fire caused extensive damage. It was an act of malicious destruction endangering property if not human life.

Gold Squabble Hits House Floor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House leaders were expected to call up for floor action today President Johnson's request that gold requirements be eased for bank deposits.

The rules committee cleared the bill Monday for a floor vote despite a Republican charge that the measure had been railroaded through the House Banking Committee last week.

Under conditions stipulated by the rules committee, four hours of debate will be allowed on the gold proposal. The legislation also will be open to amendments.

The bill would free about $5 billion in U.S. gold by eliminating a law which requires that 25 per cent of all deposits in federal reserve banks be backed by gold. Gold backing of currency would not be affected.

Before the rules committee cleared the bill on a 9-5 party line vote, Rep. Burt L. Talbot, R-Calif., charged that its progress so far seemed "to be a typical railroad job. It started ahead of schedule and finished ahead of schedule and there were no stops along the way."

Other congressional news:
Disability: Sen. Birch E. Bayh Jr., D - Ind., was scheduled to lead off testimony on a presidential disability amendment before the House Judiciary Committee. Bayh is the author of the proposal, which would set procedures for a vice presidential takeover if the President became disabled.
Manpower: Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz was to testify on President Johnson's plan to extend and broaden the Manpower Training & Development Act.

Total High
In the Surprise Valley District, on the east side of the Warner Mountains, over $200,000 of damage to ranch lands was reported by Conservationist Charles Saultsbury. The Surprise Valley District is suffering from great loss of irrigation structures and 90 per cent of the meadows lying below the Warner Mountains are covered with silt and debris. Here again soil conservation officials say it is impossible to make a complete estimate of the damage until the waters run off and the snows clear in the mountains.

This disastrous damage to Modoc ranch lands was caused by the December, 1964, floods through the lands of six ranches surveyed in the Adin - Lookout District. $10,500 of damage is reported to date. "This is almost impossible to survey as the biggest percentage of the land is under a sea of ice. I doubt that we can possibly have a full re-survey of their loss until after May."

Work unit conservationist Robert Seaway, emphasized that this estimate was only tentative as so many areas are still completely inundated with ice or water and many localities will be inaccessible until after the snow thaws in the high mountains. "It is a solid sheet of ice from Alturas to Canby in some areas, and we have no idea what is under it," Seaway declared.

Irrigation Damage
In the Canby District, there is $22,000 of estimated damage on only 11 items. These include channel stoppage, levee collapse and irrigation structure damage as well as debris spread over hay meadows and other crop lands. On the Bob Mackey Ranch the irrigation diversion dam was washed away until there is no sign of the original structure. Two miles of levees on the Jackick Ranch have been literally cut in half. "The silt and dirt and debris from that levee is now covering the Stevedore Ranch lands below," Seaway said.

In the South Fork District (Likely) $9,000 of damage is estimated on 14 items. Extensive damage was sustained on the diversion ditch to the West Valley Reservoir which impounds over 14,000 acre feet of water and irrigates 90 per cent of the ranch lands in the Likely area. Levee breaks along the Pit River and damage to irrigation structure also reported in the South Fork District.

In a preliminary survey $85,000 of damage is reported in the Goose Lake District with a $60,000 of the damage being on the Point Ranch. On this ranch damage is reported to irrigation dams, bridges, roads and extensive loss of new grass seedlings on crop lands. There are washes through the crop lands that measure two to four feet deep and five to 25 feet wide from water pouring
