Plumbers May Return To Job At Hospital

Members of the local plumbers union were expected to return to work at the Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital this afternoon, following a jurisdictional dispute with the contractors, Todd Construction Company of Roseburg, which caused the plumbers to leave the construction site at 2:30 p.m. yesterday.

The 10 plumbers of the King Plumbing and Heating Company left the job in protest to the hiring of an OTI student to serve as a boiler watchman at night and, also, to the transfer of a sterilizing unit from a truck to the hospital by workers other than plumbers.

Demands Outlined

The plumbers have demanded that the job of boiler watchman be filled by a journeyman member of the union and that equipment to be installed by members of that union should be off-loaded by them.

Mike Cremarosa, project foreman for the Todd Construction Company, said his firm conceded to the union demands but added that "apparently the concession wasn't good enough for them. For some unknown reason they still walked off the job," Cremarosa stated.

The foreman said the boilers have been operating for a few hours each evening to speed up the drying of the plaster work inside the hospital. He hired the youth to attend the boilers and report to him in the event "a warning bell or siren sounded on the equipment." Hereafter the boilers will not be operated during the evening, Cremarosa said.

The incident marked the third time that the plumbers have walked off the construction job since the raising of the hospital commenced early last year.

FRANK STITT

Store Plans Big Opening

Bowden Music Company will have a grand opening Friday and Saturday at their new location, 527 Main Street.

Claude Bowden, owner, indicated that the building formerly occupied by Daniels Shoes has been completely remodeled to provide new, specially constructed music quarters.

He also announced that Frank Stitt, noted popular organist, will appear at the store and will play organ requests all day Friday.

A native of the West Coast, Stitt has performed on radio and television. He became the first Baldwin staff organist and has played for organ fans throughout the United States.

He built his characteristic popular style on the foundation of the traditional organ training that began when he was seven years old.

Stitt was official staff organist at the Seattle World's Fair.

Prank Sends Crowd Home

Some prankster with a perverted sense of humor caused the orderly emptying of the Tower Theater last night about 10 o'clock.

The story "How the West Was Won," was nearing the end when the house lights went on and J. E. Gellatly, the manager, announced in a calm voice that "We had another call saying there was a bomb in the theater. We're not taking any chances so please file out slowly and quietly. The show will continue after an inspection."

And so the crowd did. Many of them didn't come back. It was one of the biggest houses the Tower has had in some time.

Police were on hand as the people filed out of the theater. They searched thoroughly but found no explosives.

Speech Tilt Scheduled At Chiloquin

CHILOQUIN—A Junior High Speech Festival will be held on Friday, Feb. 12, beginning at 9 a.m. at Chiloquin High School sponsored by Gilchrist High School.

Schools participating in the contest are Henley, Chiloquin, Altamont, Bonanza, Gilchrist, Merrill, Malin, Fairhaven, Peterson, Keno and Bly.

The schools have been divided into three divisions according to school size with four judges for each. Judges for the "A" Division are Mrs. A. Bennett, Mrs. Eva Cook, Mrs. C. Hankins, and Mrs. E. Judging will be on a point basis according to voice, audience appeal, speech content, overall impression as a speaker and poise.

The contest will conclude with the announcement of the winners in the three sections and with the presentation of awards by Dr. Cliff Robinson, county schools superintendent, assisted by J. Conroy, secondary schools supervisor, and Mrs. S. Brixner, elementary schools supervisor.

Youth Dies In Car Flip

WEED, Calif. (UPI)—Douglas Glenn Dancer, 13-year-old son of McMinnville, Ore., city manager Joe W. Dancer, was killed Wednesday when a pickup truck crashed on a curve five miles north of here.

The boy was thrown from the vehicle as it spun off U.S. 97, rolled over three times and skidded some 700 feet following a high-speed chase. Dancer died instantly, Siskiyou County sheriff's deputies said.

Two other McMinnville boys, Robert Williams, 15, identified by deputies as the driver of the vehicle, and Ron Orndorff, 14, were hospitalized.

Sheriff's deputies said the chase began near Dorris, just over the Oregon line. The chase picked up speed until patrol cars clocked the pickup at close to 110 miles an hour before it crashed, officers said.

Pumping Job Faces Delay

County civil defense director Jim Watson said Thursday it is not certain when pumping from a flooded drainage area adjacent to Lake Ewauna will begin.

Watson said technical difficulties have delayed the beginning of pumping, which was scheduled to start Thursday.

The county has purchased a pump for $1,800 for the pumping.

Plans call for the 5,000-gallon - per - minute pump to remove water from a drainage area adjacent to the South Suburban Sanitary District lagoon. The water will be pumped into Lake Ewauna.

Meanwhile, sanitary district manager M. D. Gunderson said the sewage treatment lagoon itself is not flooding and is operating normally. He also said there is no health hazard from lagoon discharge.

The pumping plans are aimed at relieving water flowing over Washburn Way and other roads.

MAN REMOVED FROM CAR — Firemen and ambulance attendants place Yahya Omar Alnawam on a stretcher after the Iraqi student was removed from his smashed auto on Kit Carson Way Wednesday afternoon. Alnawam was seriously injured in a two-car collision.

2-Car Crash Injures 3 Near School

Three persons were undergoing treatment Thursday for severe injuries suffered in a two-car smashup at Kit Carson Way and Campus Drive Wednesday.

Injured were Ray Bolton, 79, Auburn, Wash., his wife, Katherine, 76, and Yahya Omar Alnawam, 35, an Iraqi student attending Oregon Technical Institute.

Alnawam, who was pinned in his small foreign car until released by firemen, is believed to be the most seriously injured.

He was reported to have suffered several broken limbs and a head injury, and was in "fair" condition at Klamath Valley Hospital Thursday.

Mrs. Bolton suffered a possible fractured knee and Bolton, possible internal injuries. Bolton was reported in "fair" condition and Mrs. Bolton in "satisfactory" condition.

Police officer Jerry Flocchini witnessed the collision at noon Wednesday.

He said he was just ahead of the Boltons' northbound sedan as it approached Campus Drive on Kit Carson.

Flocchini said he saw a small foreign car dart around, on the right, several autos stopped on Campus Drive, waiting for Kit Carson traffic to clear.

The officer said the small auto was struck broadside by the Bolton car as it crossed Kit Carson. The foreign auto, driven by Alnawam, was knocked 130 feet by the impact. The Bolton car's speed was estimated at 55 miles per hour.

Alnawam was trapped in the twisted car and a fire department crew was summoned to extricate him.

The injured were taken to Klamath Valley Hospital by Peace Ambulance.

Police cited Alnawam for failure to yield right-of-way.

Retarded Children Unit Slates Rummage Sale

The Klamath County Association for Retarded Children will sponsor a rummage sale, Saturday, Feb. 13, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the old 88-cent Store on Main Street, to help further research in the field of mental retardation. Mrs. Billy Balsiger will chairman the sale.

There will be a large selection of items including clothing for all ages, household furniture with emphasis on furniture for infants.

The community is asked to support the sale by officers and members of the association, who point out that while a great deal is being accomplished to aid the retarded child, a greater scope of education and understanding of the problem is needed.

The association points out, that for every 1,000 children enrolled in a typical school, 30 of these children will be in need of educational help that differs from the regular curriculum to help them achieve their potential.

Of these 30 children, about 25 will be eligible for public school special education classes whose programs are designed to prepare these children for a contributing membership in society.

Of the number, probably four will be eligible for public school special classes whose program will prepare the children for self maintenance in the home or sheltered environment.

At the present time, association officers point out, there are no facilities in Klamath County for this group.

There are 21 counties in Oregon with ARC chapters that raise money with rummage sales and other projects to help find ways in which to combat mental retardation, and to educate those who are afflicted.

Brakes Lock; Car Damaged

A 17-year-old Klamath Falls youth escaped injury Wednesday night when the brake locked on the left front wheel of the car he was driving, causing it to go out of control into a tree at 4044 Shasta Way, Oregon State Police have reported.

Officers said that Stephen Michael Wilson, 5611 South Sixth Street, was westbound on Shasta Way about 8:35 p.m. when the accelerator on the car became stuck and he slammed hard on his brakes.

In so doing the brake on a front wheel of the auto locked and the car sped across the east lane of traffic and collided with a tree along the south ditch.

The car was extensively damaged.

Gears Taken

Vance Gooing, 1436 Lookout, reported Wednesday the theft of a four-speed transmission from his auto.

Gooing said the transmission was taken from his car either Tuesday night or Wednesday morning while it was parked at 1715 Siskiyou Street.

Armless Pair Parents Of Normal Baby Girl

A baby daughter, their first child, was born in Klamath Valley Hospital Feb. 7 to Mr. and Mrs. Marty Ravellette of Klamath Falls. She weighed 6 pounds, 11 ounces, and has been named Nancy Jo. The normal baby girl's parents were both born armless.

The young parents were married July 12, 1963, in Live Oaks, Fla., after the father, then living near San Diego, read of a similar situation for a girl across the continent.

Deft with use of his feet, he drove to Florida, where the couple was later married. They returned to Klamath Falls, where he has been employed as a salesman. Their present home is in the Sierra Trailer Park on South Sixth Street near the Merrill-Lakeview junction.

Mr. and Mrs. Ravellette returned to Florida for the holidays and returned home a week before the baby's birth, bringing Mrs. Ravellette's mother, Mrs. Joe Johnson with them to assist her daughter. This is her first grandchild.

The family plans to return to Florida in the near future to make its home.

Judge Denies Venue Change

Circuit Judge L. Orth Sisemore Wednesday denied Osborne Gallagher's motion for a change of venue in his suit against Sheriff J. Murray Britton, deputy Alvie Youngblood and district attorney's investigator John Weber.

Gallagher had sought the change, arguing through is attorney earlier this week that the suit could not have a fair trial in Klamath County.

Gallagher is seeking $105,000 in damages from the three defendants, charging he was held for 105 days in county jail without being formally charged with a crime.

Keno Landowners Seek County Aid On Reef

ers to "add the weight of the county court to get this done."

Agencies Join Effort

The two delegates told the commissioners that a number of private and public agencies are studying the Klamath River problem.

"There are lots of people working on this . . . but it may go on for years," Furber said.

He called for blasting of the reef as soon as possible to provide immediate relief to the flooded farmers and ranchers.

Furber said many of the agencies involved are rivals for control of the river, and this rivalry would contribute to foot-dragging in any action.

History Outlined

Furber and Baldwin said PP&L is moving toward a solution to the problem only because it doesn't want the Corps of Engineers to take over control of the river.

"PP&L has fouled up the situation for 30 years," Baldwin said.

Baldwin outlined the history of water problems along the Klamath River.

He said historians have noted severe floods in the river as long as 100 years ago.

Furthermore, Baldwin said, studies of the river were conducted by power companies and government agencies during a "dry cycle" which he said occurred from 1915 to 1939.

Wet Cycle

Baldwin said the area is now undergoing a "wet cycle," the warning of which was the 1955 flood.

"It is evident for the past six or seven weeks we have been in critical danger," Baldwin said, citing the possibility of more flooding if a warm rain melts snowpack in the mountains.

Don Kenyon, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, said he and his colleagues are sympathetic to the plight of the ranchers.

However, Kenyon telephoned Ritchey during the meeting and learned of PP&L's announcement plans.

Study Decided

Accordingly, the commissioners decided to study the announcement over the weekend and meet Monday to decide whether to add their support to the flood committee's efforts.

Discussion of the flood situation occupied a great portion of the commissioners' afternoon session

Request Heard

Earlier, they heard a request from pastor William R. Trusty of the Lakeside Nazarene Church for improvement of Quarry and Acosta streets near the church.

Quarry, he said, is paved but is in poor repair. Acosta is unpaved and "it's nothing but a quagmire."

Trusty asked commissioners to "make it possible for people to come to Sunday school and church without wading in mud up to their ankles."

Assistant county engineer Winston Kurth suggested that an improvement district be formed to pave Acosta and promised that Quarry would be maintained.

Kenyon said he would speak to the other major property owner along Acosta, Ray Byrnes, on the improvement district possibility.

Commissioners approved the purchase of a 400-ampere arc welder to replace one stolen several weeks ago.

Timber Sold

The board was informed by the Rogue River National Forest that its share of timber sale receipts for 1964-65 has been estimated at $115,868.

Commissioners rejected a request from Rocky Point rancher Mickey Wampler to support his opposition to the proposed herd law district along the west side of Upper Klamath Lake. The district has been proposed in the Legislature by Rep. George Flitcraft of Klamath Falls.

Commissioners decided to take no stand on the matter since the county would not be involved in any fencing in the proposed district.

The board approved the vacation of B Street in Merrill after no opposition to the move was voiced at a public hearing. The street, it was said, actually is farmland and has never been improved.

It isn't our kind of war.

It IS the Vietnamese kind of war. Atom bombs would be of little good there. About all we could do would be to say to Peking: "If you mix into this mess with heavy support for the Vietnamese communists, WE'll BOMB YOU."

That could bring on Armageddon.
