Almost every bridge player knows enough to set up a long suit in his own hand. Surprisingly few remember that a long suit in dummy is just as valuable.

South's two-club opening was made because he played two clubs as his only forcing bid and North's two diamonds was the negative response. When North raised two spades to three, South raised two spades to three, South threw caution to the wind and leaped right to six.

South won the opening heart lead with his ace and promptly ruffed a second heart in dummy. Then he led a diamond and finessed the queen.

West won with the king and led a trump which South won. South ruffed his last heart, led a diamond to his ace and ruffed his last diamond with dummy's last trump. He returned to his hand with the ace of clubs and cashed the rest of his trumps. Finally he led his king of clubs and when the suit failed to break he was down one.

South complained of bad luck. The diamond finesse had lost and clubs had failed to break. That was bad luck but South should have made the slam without any trouble.

All he had to do was to notice that there was a six-card club suit in dummy and that the easy way to make the slam would be to draw the enemy's trumps and set up that club suit.

Then he would have drawn trumps by playing out his ace, king and queen and led ace, king and another club. West would get a club trick but South would ruff one heart with dummy's last trump and then discard two diamonds and his other heart, on the last three clubs.
