VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI today officially nominated 27 new cardinals in the first consistory of his reign. The historic ceremony raised membership in the college of cardinals to an all-time high of 70.

The new "princes of the church" include Archbishop Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore, Md., and Archbishop Josef Beran—a Czechoslovak prelate who was held behind the Iron Curtain for the past 16 years.

Today's secret ceremony swept aside some of the century-old tradition surrounding new cardinals and several changes will be made Thursday in a public consistory in the splendor of St. Peter's Basilica. Two other rites were eliminated.

The move to de-emphasize pomp is part of a program to modernize the church in the spirit of the Ecumenical Council.

The Vatican announced the names of the 27 new cardinals on Jan. 25 and today's consistory was the opening ceremony in four days of rites formally elevating them.

Existing members of the college assembled in the hall of consistories, taking their places in red pews spread like a fan before the raised papal throne.

The pontiff, wearing white vestments, took his place on the throne and with the traditional cry of "extra omnes" (exit ye all) by the prelate of ceremonies those not involved in the consistory left the room.

After an opening prayer and an allocution in Latin, the pontiff announced his intention to elevate the 27 cardinals.

"Quid Videtur?" (what do you think) the Pope asked the present cardinals. They replied "placet" (it pleases us).

With the authority of almighty God and the holy apostles Peter and Paul and our personal approval, the Pope announced, "we create and render of public information the new cardinals of the Holy Roman Church in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost."

Conviction Appeal Scheduled

VALE (UPI)—Oregon's Supreme Court probably will not be able to hear until October the appeal of a former Latter-day Saints Church bishop convicted of manslaughter in the death of his wife.

Attorney Martin P. Gallagher said he expects to be filed before the court in the next few weeks.

Harris, 40, was convicted last May 29 of causing the death of his wife, Vera, Dec. 31, 1963. She burst to death in the family car on a lonely Eastern Oregon highway. The state charged Harris with first-degree murder, claiming he killed Mrs. Harris to collect $110,000 in insurance policies.

The jury reduced the charge to manslaughter, and the Circuit Court sentenced Harris to eight years and a fine of $3,000.

Gallagher said completion of briefs and replies in the appeal will be heard in October.

Harris is free on $10,000 property bond posted by friends. He has remarried since the trial and is living at Tabor, British Columbia, where he operates a grave-hauling business with his wife. Eight of his 10 children are with him.

Church Role Clarified By Bishop

PORTLAND (UPI)—Bishop Reuben H. Mueller, president of the National Council of Churches, said Sunday it was time to straighten out the thinking on the nature of the Christian church and its role in society.

"The church doesn't belong to human kind. It belongs to Jesus Christ, the Indianapolis, Ind., church leader said at the First Methodist Church. The council's general board meeting is here this week.

"We treat the church as any other society—a sorority or non-day social club," Mueller, senior bishop of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, said.

He said the church doesn't belong to any of these agencies, "for it is beyond and above any of them."

Bishop Mueller noted that there are 256 denominational varieties of Christians in the United States. "If we have one head and 256 bodies, the church belongs in a side show," he contended.

He called the fragmentation "the manifestation of the one church of Christ."

"We belong together because we belong to one another," he said.

Secretary Ejected From Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI)—The U.S. Embassy announced today that the Syrian government has ordered the expulsion of a second member of the embassy staff here as an alleged spy.

The spokesman identified the employee as Miss Martha Scherrer, a secretary in the embassy's administrative section.

Miss Scherrer is in her 30's and has been in Damascus for about two years. She was said to have relatives in California.

Walter S. Snowden, the embassy's second secretary, left Damascus last week after spy charges were made against him by the newspaper of Syria's left party.

Snowden allegedly tried to obtain military information from a Syrian army officer.

The United States denied the charges.

The embassy spokesman said today that Miss Scherrer has been given 48 hours to leave Syria. He said she has no diplomatic status.

Ice Runway Floats Away

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—The U.S. Navy complained today one of its runways floated away and it wasn't on an aircraft carrier.

More than 3,500 feet of one of the "skiways" at McMurdo Sound, Antarctica, cracked up and "floated out into McMurdo Sound," an Atlantic Fleet headquarters spokesman said.

Williams Field, a temporary base, is built on ice 20 to 30 feet thick. There are several skiways which are used for ferrying men and material from New Zealand and Australia to the operation deep freeze outpost.

But one of the skiways shows a seven mile long crack.

The skiways are used frequently as the ice pack moves slowly toward the sea.

FAST ACTION—Fast action on the ski slopes sends two teen-agers flying. Cindy Warren, 14, was first down the sloping sidewalk and her brother, Byron, 15, came rearing behind. He braced for a collision but a last-second leap by Cindy cleared the way. The photo was snapped on the state capital grounds at Austin, Tex. —UPI Telephoto

Carpenter Found Buried Alive In Rubble Of Canadian Slide

STEWART, B.C. (UPI)—A carpenter found buried alive by rescuers Sunday after being entombed for 78 hours under tons of an avalanche's rock and snow today faced a slim slice of his hands and feet.

A doctor said the carpenter, Elmer Myllya, about 32, was suffering from shock, lacerations and frostbitten hands and feet. Myllya spent his ordeal in the ruins of the avalanche destroyed Grand copper mine member search team's warning camp under tons of rock, ice and snow.

Mylyla was one of 27 persons asleep in four bunkhouses Thursday when the avalanche thundered down a 6,000 foot glacier and flattened the remote camp under tons of rock, ice and snow.

The discovery of the semi-conscious carpenter under five feet of snow revitalized the 12-member search team's warning camp under tons of rock, ice and snow.

Searchers had recovered the bodies of 12 men and had all but abandoned hope of finding alive any of the other 15 missing victims when a bulldozer knocked away part of the snow blanketing Mylyla.

Rescue workers said that when he was uncovered, Mylyla blinked in the glare and mumbled: "Watch my feet..." He then lapsed into incoherent mumbling about a buddy who was also buried. A quick search of the immediate area failed to uncover any other victims.

Red Newspaper Calls For Clash Of Opinions

MOSCOW (UPI)—A new, fresh breeze in Soviet intellectual life was forecast today in a plea by the newspaper, Pravda for more "clash of opinions" in Russian life.

Observers cautioned that it was still too early to be sure, but they interpreted the plea in the official Communist party newspaper as a reversal of former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's crackdown on avant-garde writers. The Pravda article, published Sunday, was seen as a new, indirect attack on Khrushchev.

"Real creative activity is possible only in an atmosphere of research, experiment, free expression and clash of opinion," wrote Pravda's chief editor Alexei Rumanyshev.

In an apparent reference to Oct. 15, the former premier, Rumanyshev said: "An autocratic leader, confident in his own infallibility, deemed himself to be the supreme arbiter in all spheres of human activity, primarily mental work."

"In other words, such a leader is opposed to the intellectual. He regarded people of mental work with distrust and intolerance because in his opinion they groundlessly claimed authority in these or other spheres of human knowledge."

Khrushchev is now living in seclusion in a country house west of Moscow. He has been attacked here for "brained scheming, one-man rule" and for failing to heed expert advice before his dismissal Oct. 15.

Washington Birthday Observed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress passes today to pay tribute to George Washington on the 222nd anniversary of the first president's birth.

The often-quoted phrases of Washington's stately farewell address were to be read once more in the House and Senate chambers according to a custom which began on Feb. 22, 1791.

Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., was designated to read the address to the Senate, and Rep. Del Clawson, R-Calif., to the House. The annual reading usually takes about 45 minutes.

Former Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., breezed through the 7,941 words of the text in 41 minutes as the 1957 stand-in for Washington. That stands as an unofficial record for speed in recent years.

The most familiar passage — "It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world" — is among the most quoted of American political utterances. Washington's farewell words summarized his deep "solitude" for the welfare of the new nation.

There were no other events scheduled today in either the House or Senate.

Other congressional news:

Test Ban: The Senate military preparedness subcommittee set up a special watchdog panel Saturday to oversee operations under the nuclear test ban treaty, including weapons tests by Red China. Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., named three members of the subcommittee to a special task force to monitor the treaty's safeguards.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., will head the group. Also named were Sens. Stuart Symington, D-Maine, and Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine.
