Fish Group Plans Work In Klamath

Bob Puckett, Klamath Falls, returned from Portland where he met with other members of the Klamath Basin Fisheries Steering Committee and members of state and federal agencies on Feb. 18 to discuss proposals for spring and summer work that will get underway as soon as conditions permit.

Puckett announced that John Fortune, fisheries biologist, has been hired through a cooperative agreement between Pacific and the Oregon Game Commission to head the study to determine the feasibility of establishing salmon and steelhead in the upper Klamath Basin. Fortune is a graduate of Oregon State University and has a masters degree in fish and game management. He will be located in Klamath Falls and will work closely with Jack Hanel and Art Gereach, fishery biologists for PP&L and the game commission.

The committee also heard reports on how the flood situation affected field work on the project. Although the flood hampered operations to some degree, little actual equipment was lost or seriously damaged. Considerable field data has been collected since inauguration of the program last fall. Puckett said he presented some early-day photos of fish as a pictorial history of the area to the committee.

Pacific Power and Light Company and the Oregon Game Commission are conducting the feasibility study, under the direction of a steering committee. The steering committee, composed of representatives of the public and state and federal resource agencies of Oregon and California, planned its next meeting for Klamath Falls in May or June, according to Puckett.

committee members. The draft before the lawmakers had set the maximums at 35 and 65 respectively.

But Sen. Anthony Yturri, R-Ontario, said it had been pointed out to him that under certain conditions, it would take more than the 30-60 limit to comply with the apportionment plan in the document.

He said the increase to 47 and 77 "would take care of the most fantastic assumptions you could make with regard to population."

Stadler said his minority report would call for a constitution with a governor and lieutenant governor elected on one ticket, a controller to serve an eight-year term, the same redistricting plan under consideration in the house, and restoration of the anti-lottery provision.

Other Highlights

Saturday — The House Tax Committee scheduled a Saturday meeting to consider a dozen bills. The meeting, slated to begin at 9:30 a.m., is the first scheduled Saturday meeting of the session.

Higher Education—Gov. Mark Hatfield's proposed higher education budget request was cut $1.4 million because of lower full-time equivalent enrollment estimates as a ways and means subcommittee began extensive review of higher education's money needs. Committee members challenged, and Chancellor Roy E. Lieuallen defended, an emergency fund set up by higher education. Hatfield is now asking $194 million — about $10 million less than the Board of Higher Education is asking.

Students Flee Bomb Threat

PENDLETON (UPI) — About 600 students were evacuated when a bomb threat was telephoned in to the Helen McCune Junior High School Monday afternoon.

No bomb was found in a search of the school.

A secretary took the call and said the caller had a teen-age boy's voice.

EMERGENCY COMMUNICATIONS — This reinforced concrete structure will house emergency communications. The newest concept in emergency broadcasting features these radioactive fallout shelters and emergency broadcasting gear that can keep the station broadcasting for two weeks. Shown here are John Ferm, left, owner of KAGO, and Jim Watson, Civil Defense director. The structure is being built adjacent to the KAGO studios.

Cement Walls To Guard Emergency Radio Unit

A new concept in emergency communications was inaugurated recently with the pouring of cement walls for a broadcasting shelter adjacent to the KAGO radio studios above Riverside School.

The Conelrad system of 640 and 1240 broadcasting was abandoned a short time ago by the Federal Communications Commission in favor or a program which designates a key radio station in each community as the emergency broadcast center.

Broadcasting facilities are now being prepared to house emergency communication equipment which could continue to operate for a two-week period under a radioactive fallout condition.

A shelter is under construction with reinforced walls 16 inches thick and a 13-inch thick reinforced concrete roof.

John Ferm, owner of KAGO, indicated that the federal government is providing the actual construction of the shelter building. It will be stocked with an emergency power source, fuel tanks and other broadcast equipment.

Radio crews at KAGO will be trained in radiation monitoring and operation of the emergency equipment which is keyed with other Civil Defense operations.

The building is 15 feet square, was designed by Morrison, Howard and Starbuck and is being built by Brosterhous Construction Company.

Ferm indicated that after the structure is completed, he will furnish it with a rug, couch and chairs to make it more comfortable.

Drug Store Burglarized

Police Monday investigated the burglary of Broderick's Pharmacy, 2212 South Sixth, in which a safe was open and several hundred dollars in cash taken.

Police said the thief or thieves entered the drug store by prying the cover off a roof skylight Sunday night or Monday morning.

The safe was attacked with a hammer and other tools. Police said the work on the safe set off a tear gas bomb, but this apparently did not discourage the thieves.

The safe was opened and the cash was taken. No drugs were bothered and the thieves left via the same skylight.

Heart Victim

C. L. "Sam" Brown, safety representative in Klamath Falls for the State Industrial Accident Commission, suffered a heart attack at his home here on Monday and is now in Klamath Valley Hospital.

Death Takes Mrs. Getz

Mrs. Alma Bryan Getz, 71, well-known Klamath Falls matron for many years, died Feb. 22 in Concord, Calif., where she had made her home for some time.

She was the widow of the late Horace E. Getz, vice president of the Klamath Lumber and Box Company, was a member of Aloha Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, the Delphians and of other Klamath Falls social groups.

Aloha Chapter will hold services at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 24, in O'Hair's Memorial Chapel. Funeral services will be Thursday, Feb. 25, at 10:30 a.m. in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, following a 9 a.m. Holy Communion requiem memorial service in the church.

Survivors include a son, Horace E. Getz Jr.; and three grandchildren, all of Concord, Calif.; a brother, Clinton Bryan, Dunsmuir, Calif.; and a sister, Mrs. Ralph James, Redmond, Wash.

A burglar alarm brought police to Lein's Store, 3860 Summers Lane, shortly after midnight Tuesday.

State police said rocks had been tossed through a window and the door, setting off the alarm.

Officers said an automobile was heard leaving the area shortly after the alarm. The store was not entered.

Veterans Office Defends Closures In Testimony At House Committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Veterans Administration told Congress today it had planned all along to close some of its older hospitals as new ones were opened, but it sped up the process under an economy directive from President Johnson.

Dr. Joseph H. McNinch, chief VA medical director, testified before a House veterans subcommittee that the net effect of the recent order to close 11 veterans hospitals will be to improve over-all medical service.

As for the closing of four old soldiers' homes, McNinch said the VA determined after long study that most aging veterans who don't need hospitalization get along better away from institutional life.

"Based upon our studies it is our conclusion that our domiciliary program should not be continued at current levels," he said.

He said there would not be complete abandonment of the domiciliary program. It will be maintained for old soldiers for whom there are no better alternatives available elsewhere.

Johnson's order to close 11 hospitals and four homes by July 1 caused a furor in Congress. McNinch testified at an inquiry into the matter to allow time for the study, Johnson agreed to hold off preliminary steps toward the closings until May 1.

Other congressional news:

Filibuster: The sensitive question of changing the Senate's rules on debate set off a new round of argument in the Senate Rules Committee. Sens. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., and John Stennis, D-Miss., testified that any change in the rule requiring a two-third vote to cut off debate would represent a "real and present danger to our form of government." Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., argued that a change to a simple majority was needed lest the Johnson administration's Great Society program get bogged down.

Baseball: Officials of the National Broadcasting Co. and American Broadcasting Co., testified at a Senate hearing they were not worried about the possibility that the Columbia Broadcasting System might gain television control of baseball by buying the New York Yankees. Both NBC and ABC representatives said their networks had no current plans to buy into major league baseball, but they would not preclude that possibility.

Snooping: The Post Office Department's chief inspector defended the department's mail-cover practice under which a record is kept on mail addressed to certain individuals. Henry Montague, head of the department's inspection division, said this was no violation of a person's privacy rights because the mail was not opened or read. He said only the information on the outside of letters and packages was recorded — and that the mail check was made only as a means of aiding in crime investigation.

Chamizal: President Johnson asked Congress for $8.6 million more to carry out terms of the Chamizal Treaty under which the United States handed over to Mexico some land in the El Paso, Tex. - Juarez, Mexico, area.

Film: The House Foreign Affairs Committee again failed to muster a quorum to vote on the question of whether a government-made movie on the late John F. Kennedy should be shown publicly in this country.

JCs Boost Eldercare

The local Junior Chamber of Commerce will participate in a nationwide project of distributing information on the advantages of the Eldercare bill now before Congress.

The National Junior Chamber has adopted the program for all of its chapters.

Ron Wolf will chairman the local committee.

Wolf indicated that plans include distribution of information pamphlets on Eldercare, explaining its provisions and its advantages.

He said the Jaycees also plan to circulate petitions on behalf of Eldercare which will be sent to the Oregon Congressional delegation.

A letter writing campaign and organization of discussion groups is also planned.

Wolf indicated that any group that desires a speaker on behalf of Eldercare can contact him at 884-7768.

Tape Clears Statement At Hearing

A transcript of the meeting held Feb. 10 on the Keno flood situation has indicated that the remark "PPL has fouled up the situation for 30 years" was attributed erroneously to Dick Baldwin.

Virginia Richey, secretary of the Board of Commissioners, reviewed comment of the hearing from a tape recording and indicated that this remark was made by someone other than Baldwin. Baldwin is a member of the Klamath River Emergency Flood Control Committee.

Baldwin commented on a "dry cycle" at the hearing. His remarks were: "There is an interesting dry cycle here in which COPCO entered into the scene and later PPL, which went from about 1915 down to about 1939. This cycle was . . . or is natural. Their contract, I am told, came in 1930. Their extensive study of the Basin occurred during this dry cycle. The Bureau of Reclamation study of the Basin in 1905 . . . most of their operating experience came through this dry cycle.

"The result is that there was a tendency, I presume in looking back, that this dry cycle made them feel more secure. There are a few publications that I feel are pertinent. We are now in a wet cycle. It is very obvious without summarizing that this change dramatically affects this whole situation, not only this year but if this thing is not corrected in another year."

Baldwin and another representative of the committee were seeking commissioners' support in efforts to have the Keno reef removed.

PPL has since indicated that its plans call for excavation of the reef area and construction of a new dam in the area.

in the district and half countywide. However, the Intermediate School District is barred in counties with county units, such as Klamath.

No Stand Taken

The County School District's board of directors has taken no stand on the unification measure, SB 89.

Hunsaker has testified on the bill before the Education Committee, telling legislators that without an equalization provision, the financial effect of unification would be heavy.

Rep. Carrol Howe, R-Klamath Falls, chairman of the House Education Committee, has said he is opposed to the bill in its present form because it does not allow for a vote of the people on school district reorganization.
