INVOLVEMENT

No one knows exactly how many people use Want Ads in their local newspapers each year, but intelligent estimates place the number at about 30 million, not including business establishments. These are 30 million private individuals and families using Want Ads to do jobs which can be done no other way.

No other advertising medium can claim that 30 million people in its audience participate in a very personal way in its finished product. Each of these 30 million has made a decision to be a part of a newspaper. The result is an involvement.

This involvement of 30 million private advertisers is a priceless and exclusive asset which belongs only to newspapers, because only newspapers have Want Ads.
