Daughter Needs Dad's Affection

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our 7-[illegible] how to deal with it.

Carrie has been getting up in the middle of the night and crawling in bed with her father. My husband and I share a large bed, but Carrie never comes to my side—always to his.

She has a different excuse every night. Either it is too cold in her room or too warm. Twice she said she heard noises and was frightened. Last night she said her bed was too hard.

Do you feel we should allow Carrie to get away with this? I told my husband I think it's a bad habit which will be difficult to break later. He feels that she is going through a stage and that it would be damaging to reject her.

Last night I told Carrie to go back to her own bed and she screamed, "Daddy is nice and you are mean." What are your views on this?—EMBARTLED MOTHER

Dear Embattled: A child who wanders into the room of parents during the night needs reassurance that she is loved.

Your husband should take Carrie back to her room and chat with her for about 10 minutes. She should not be allowed to get into her daddy's bed.

It would be wise if you stayed out of it. Carrie must not get the idea that you are depriving her of daddy's love and attention.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my boy friend and I were parked out in the country. Please don't give me a purity lecture. We were only talking and you can believe that or not.

When Bill thought he heard voices he opened the glove compartment and took out a revolver. I was frightened and said so. It turned out that the voices he heard had come from the radio.

I asked Bill why he carried the gun and he said "for protection." He said he got the idea last year when he read about a couple who had been [illegible]

Isn't it against the law to carry a gun in a car? Bill says it isn't. Frankly, I don't like the idea. — NO PISTOL PACKIN' MAMA

Dear N.P.M.: A special permit is needed to carry a gun in an automobile. Salesmen or truck drivers may have need for a revolver, but young romantics should not be parking on lonely roads, gun or no gun. Such couples are targets for robbers and assorted nuts. Furthermore an automobile is a shabby and inappropriate setting for romance.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a woman wrote and asked what could be done about her husband's swearing. Your reply was that people use strong language as a substitute for weak ideas. Beyond that you didn't give her much help.

My father was a bad swearer. I say "was" because he doesn't swear any more. This is how my mother cured him.

She made him agree to pay her five cents a hell, 10 cents a damn, 25 cents for attaching the name of the Lord to the damn, and 50 cents for anything worse.

After forking over several dollars worth of change, my father learned to leave the expensive words out of his vocabulary.

I just read this letter to my dad. He smiled and said, "That's a damned fine letter" and handed me a dime. I hope you will print it.—JENNIE your dad.

Dear Jennie: I agree with [illegible] hope.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ray Bliss Steps Into GOP Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ray C. Republican, Democrat Attack School Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Republican and a Democratic senator today mounted an attack on the key provision of President Johnson's $1.3 billion school aid program.

Sens. Peter H. Dominick, R-[illegible] borough, D-Tex., planned to offer changes in the formula for distributing aid funds. The House-passed proposal is being considered by the Senate education subcommittee.

The changes sought by the two senators would mainly affect the distribution of $1.06 billion in funds to improve the quality of education for poor children in about 90 per cent areas. Supporters say this merely reflects higher education costs in the higher income districts.

Subcommittee Chairman Wayne L. Morse, D-Ore., hopes to finish action on the aid dis- [illegible] the measure on its way to the parent Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

The distribution formula has come under criticism that districts in affluent areas would receive more aid per student than districts in less well off

Voting Rights: Executive Director Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People testifies before a House judiciary subcommittee considering President Johnson's bill to ensure Negro voting rights. Sessions on the bill also continued [illegible] Committee.

Banks: The Senate investigations subcommittee called Joseph B. Morris and Bernard S. Garrett, shadow owners of the First National Bank of Marlin, Tex., to testify on the bank's failure. The panel is investigating a recent rash of bank closings.
