'Imp Look' Takes Bow

NEW YORK (NEA) — Last season there were lots of "looks" as fashion knows the word — raffine, ye-ye, discotheque.

Some of these will continue into spring, but a fresh new look coming up is the "imp look."

What does it mean? Well, it's young, coquettish, part and pixyish. Yet it's chic.

There's more behind it than just a look. In fact, it's an exciting new way of dressing that both the young and the young at heart will be eager to try.

Most looks come from Paris. But in the case of the Imp, it's strictly American with a dash of the British. A new small car (Rootes Sunbeam Imp) started the whole trend. The name got the nod from fashion designers to nominate the look as an important one for fashion prominence for spring '65.

There will be imp-like fashions cropping up everywhere this season. But the first manufacturer to create an entire collection called "The Imps" designed a handsome group of perky co-ordinates in an easy-care cotton and polyester blend.

There are slacks, short shorts, Jamaicas, loose sleeveless vers blouses, cropovers in tiers of ruffle in pastel colors.

Then there are zip-front jackets over skinny skirts, multi-striped single breasted jackets, wrap-around skirts, sleeveless shifts and a jaunty jumper with box-pleated front and back.

Every girl can imp it up in the new fresh sun and fun fashions. They are ready, bright and fresh-looking for any active day.

PREVENT STICKING

Two quick tips should eliminate problems of the iron "sticking" when ironing starched garments. Let your iron heat to the set temperature before using it and be sure garments are not too wet.
