INDIANS OPPOSE AGENCY HOSPITAL

CHILQUIN, (Special) April 21.—The Klamath Indians are opposed to the recent announcement received from the department of the interior, that the department had planned to build a hospital on the Klamath reservation sometime during the coming fiscal year. The cost of the hospital, which is to be a general bed hospital, will be $25,000. A meeting is to be called by the tribal council, at a near date to protest this amount of money being spent for a hospital, which the Indians claim is not needed, as they are able to secure proper treatment in the Klamath Falls or other city hospitals.

485 TIRED BUSINESS MEN HAVE AN AWFUL TIME EXPLAINING THE "FOR THE SAKE OF ART" PARTY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 21.—All for the sake of "art" 485 tired business men, charged with various offenses, were pushed and shoved through municipal court this afternoon and their cases continued until tomorrow.

The Princess Habets, Little Sea-weed and C. A. Hazak, members of a smoker, frolic and "meeting" of the "Integrity Business Men's club," are facing state charges of indecency. The three were released on $100 bonds each, and their preliminary hearing set for May 5.

The performance was interrupted by a score of buskins from headquarters just about the time it was getting good, according to some of those arrested. The smoker was held under the name of the pseudo club, the idea of the announcer.

Princess and Little Sea-weed were the main attractions.

According to six plain clothes men, sitting in the audience, the attraction was given to the strains of Oriental music, the beating of tom-toms, and neither girl had a thing on but a "cloud of smoke" which varied about them.

The girls steadfastly deny they were dancing nude.

"It was artistic and refined," said the princess, who was very haughty over the interpretation of her "art."

One little wife, with a grin, pushed her way through the crowded station, only to see her husband being jammed into a "wagon" heading for the court room.

"Mr. Hazak thought you went to a today meeting last night?" she asked. "I hope they give you thirty days." Then she wheeled and wacked out.

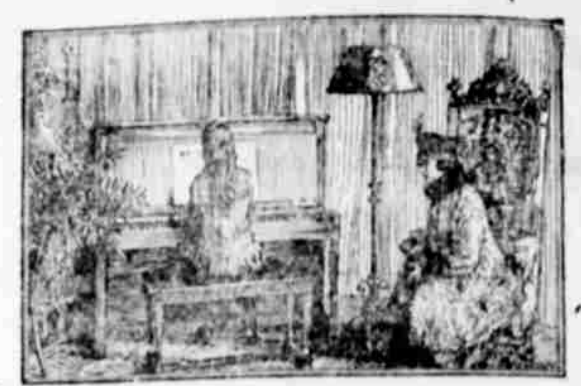

Most wives gave a name, but they didn't tally with any of those on the police blotter. A jailer would then remark:

"Lady you can look over the crowd if you wish."

One woman took the family wallet, and rushed to the station early this morning looking for her husband. After learning the nature of the raid she changed her mind.

"You can keep him here for all I care," she said as she left.

The coldest thing in the station, besides the water cooler was a question that was asked continually: "Is my husband here?"

What Chance At Music Has Your Child Without A Piano?

Any child today has a chance for an education whether her parents give encouragement or not but many is the child who will have to forego Music just because her parents let her "grow up like Topsy."

A child seldom begs her parents for a piano as it is easier and they imagine more fun to romp with their playmates.

We are making it very easy for parents to give the child the refining influence of Music and at the same time improve the appearance of the home.

Used pianos come as low as seven dollars a month or we will rent you a new instrument for a year with buying privilege.

COOLIDGE GIVES HIS VIEWPOINT ON BIG AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Following is a close paraphrase of President Coolidge's views on current questions as stated by the White House spokesmen today:

Russia—When Secretary Kellogg became secretary of state, there were rumors that there might be a change in the attitude of the state department towards Russia, and that in response to several inquiries of that kind he sent notice there was not any change at the present time, more as a matter of ordinary detail of the facts. It had not any particular significance.

Shipping board row—The president has made inquiry as to whether part of the board were to appear in court in opposition to the rest of the board in the injunction hearing against the board decision to sell five president-type ships to the Dollar line. The president was not making any inquiry about the sale of the ships. He was inquiring as to the administration of shipping board affairs as to whether part of the board was in conflict with the other part and if members of the board were in conflict with the other part and if members of the board were in conflict generally against the board or against the government.

Armament limitation conference—There are no negotiations going on relative to the arms conference. The matter is being looked up in the state department.

Honduran disorder—marines were landed in Honduras from one of our war vessels in that territory. Commanders of United States battle ships have general authority when in foreign waters and understand that American lives or property are in jeopardy, to land marines for their protection. That is what has taken place in this instance. The president does not know of any lives of Americans or natives have been though he understands there is some threat of revolution and disorder in some parts of that country, but so far as he has any information it does not appear to be serious.

Baseball game—The president expects to see all correspondents at the baseball game Wednesday.

JUGO SLAV TROOPS READY FOR ACTION

LONDON, April 21.—Jugoslav troops are concentrated at the Bulgarian frontier ready to swarm into the country if serious communist disorders occur, according to dispatches from Vienna to the Daily Chronicle.

From Bucharest, the Chronicle learns that the royal castle at Sinal near Bucharest, is being prepared for the reception of King Boris should he be compelled to flee before a Bulgarian revolution. At Sinal, Boris would be the guest of the king of Roumania, whose youngest daughter, Heana, he has been wooing for many months.

ROSEBURG POSSE IS HUNTING FOR A JAIL BREAKER

ROSEBURG, April 21.—A posse, headed by Sheriff Starmer, is scouring the hills west of Roseburg, in an effort to overtake R. G. Harper, alias Lee Duncan, who escaped from the county jail today, after battling with Deputy Sheriff Sewell.

Harper had placed a dummy, made from his coat and other articles of clothing, in his bed to deceive Sewell, who was on his rounds. With a "sap" made by placing a number of broken pieces of glass in an old sock, and with it struck the jailer a severe blow from behind.

Sewell, momentarily stunned by the blow, and unarmed, grappled with the ex-convict. During the subsequent struggle Sewell succeeded in throwing his prisoner to the floor of the jail, but blinded by blood from the deep cut in his head, was unable to continue the fight. Harper broke loose and ran from the jail without hat or coat.

All roads are closed and guarded, as Sheriff Starmer believes the escaped prisoner will head for the California line.

Harper was being held here awaiting the trial for the alleged robbery of several local stores.

38 SAILORS DROWN WITH SINKING SHIP

at the moment, and she broke from her course under forced draft, realizing that from her position, with her speed, she was likely to be the first vessel to reach the Raifuku's side. At 10:57, five hours and ten minutes later, the Homeric sighted the Raifuku, which then had a list of almost 5 degrees. Approaching cautiously on the windward side, with oil gushing from her jets to coat the waves, the Homeric steamed as near as she could, and her deck force labored at the rafts and boats, trying to get them into the water.

Captain Roberts on his bridge, had to keep in mind the safety of his passengers, including women and children, and dared not run close enough to risk a collision with the wallowing hull.

The perishing sailors did not struggle in the water. They seemed to be too exhausted for that. A few of them reappeared for an instant, but most of the men were gone once the water had closed over them.

Supplied with fuel from domestic wells, 26 oil burning locomotives have been installed on an Argentine railway, replacing old engines that burned wood.

To prevent fire perils a gasoline gauge has been invented that can be used in the dark, a arrow that can be detected by touch moving over a notched dial.

Two railway stations on opposite sides of Madrid will be linked by an underground three track standard gauge line for both passenger and freight traffic.
