$75,000 FIRE IN TROUTDALE BURNS BUSINESS SECTION

PORTLAND, May 15.—Nearly half of the business section of Troutdale, 15 miles east of this city, on the Columbia River highway, was destroyed or damaged in a conflagration which started as a shingle fire on the roof of a garage on Columbia street. The loss was conservatively estimated at about $75,000, perhaps half covered by insurance. A number of families are homeless.

STOCK COMPANY IS COMING HERE

The theatre-going public will be happy to know that a great laugh is in store for them. On May 19 there will open in Klamath, a company known as Klamath Falls Own Stock Co.; they open in a big white tent theatre on South Sixth street, just outside the city limits. Twenty clever artists are carried with the company, and a jazz orchestra is one of the features. High-class vaudeville will be presented between the acts, and a show of real merit is promised. The plays have been carefully selected, and they are meant to war on the blues; no one can witness one of these comedies without forgetting any troubles they may have. The present day and age people want to laugh, and this company can certainly give the people what they want. Laugh and be merry is the slogan, and they want all of Klamath Falls to join in with them. Don't forget the opening play, the great Swede comedy drama, entitled "After Ole Olsen Saw Broadway." Prices 25c and 50c.

Sent 3 to Die for Revenge

One of the most astounding confessions on record is that of "Cheeks" Luciano, who, following his capture in Newark, N. J., declared that, because of his hatred, he had perjured against the Diamond Brothers and caused their electrocutions, as well as the electrocution of John Farina and their death sentence against Anthony Pantano. The four were charged with the murder of two bank messengers who were shot in a holdup.

Cop Accused in Death Mystery

POLICEMAN FRANK MULHERN and MISS MARGARET COLLINS

— Policeman Frank Mulhern and Miss Margaret Collins, central figures in Chicago's latest death enigma, are pictured above. An order was issued for Mulhern's arrest after Miss Mary Hill testified she had seen the officer standing over the body of Miss Collins, who was shot to death following a party. The death of Miss Collins was at first believed a case of suicide.

CENSORSHIP OF MOVIES IN ORE. IS FAR REACHING

PORTLAND, May 15.—Action of the Portland motion picture censor board will be extended to effect all of Oregon.

The step is the fulfillment of a promise made to the last legislature by the Motion Picture League of Oregon. At the time a censorship bill was being considered and the league declared that if the bill were defeated other steps to obtain the censoring of movies would be taken.

Partly because of this promise, the bill was rejected. The Motion Picture League co-operated with the film board of trade, and as a result it will be practically impossible for pictures to be shown in the state that have not been viewed by censors here.

Portland's censorship board has operated for years, and film distributors have been satisfied with its judgment in cutting films.

GENERAL MILES DIES SUDDENLY IN WASHINGTON

the Civil war, and four times was expected to die from wounds. But he lived through all of the bloodshed and plunged into the Indian wars after Appomattox. For twenty years he was chasing Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse and Natchez.

By the time of the Spanish-American war he had risen to be chief of staff of the army. He was kept from commanding the American army in Cuba, General Shafter receiving that assignment to the indignation of friends of Miles. Finally, when Shafter, because of his 260 pounds, was unable to function as actively as a field general should, and after Theodore Roosevelt, colonel of the Rough Riders, had explained the situation to Senator Lodge, pressure was brought to bear, and Miles was sent to the field, where he served with distinction.

Miles' biggest achievement in the Indian wars was in driving Sitting Bull out of his stronghold in the northwest, and suppressing the Sioux. This campaign was attended by terrible hardships, including overland marches of more than a hundred miles in weather 40 degrees below zero.

As a result of knowledge of the western country, acquired during the Indian warfare, General Miles, with a long range vision, came back to Washington, urging development of irrigation projects to accommodate the great increase in population which he foresaw. The program, thus envisioned by Miles 55 years ago, is still being carried out.

Another important episode in his busy career, was his handling of the Chicago railroad strike in 1890, which brought him reward from President Cleveland in his appointment as commanding general of the army. At sixty he became a lieutenant general. From this point on, he became involved in controversies with civil heads of the government, and this was carried through the administrations of Cleveland, McKinley and into that of Roosevelt.

When Admiral Dewey became in-involved in the famous controversy with Admiral Schley, General Miles came to the defense of Dewey, and was criticized by Roosevelt for his course. As a result he was sent on a tour of the world, which removed him from the scene of authority at Washington. Thus he reached the retiring age of 64 and passed out of active service the subject of much criticism, which obscured from public notice many of his notable achievements as a soldier. In later years, however, this bitterness passed away, and he enjoyed in his last days, the esteem of those who appreciated his service to the country.
