Spring Lamb Crop Is Exceptionally Good

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The growth of the early spring lamb crop during April continued exceptionally good, and in nearly all areas the May 1 condition was the best in some years, according to the report of the United States department of agriculture. Except for the last week the weather during April was unusually mild, with much sunshine. Pastures made good growth, and green feed was everywhere plentiful. The market movement from all important areas will probably be nearly two weeks earlier than last year.

In California feed conditions remained excellent, and the bulk of the early lambs is maturing rapidly. Shipments during April were unusually large, and to May 1 about 125,000 lambs live and dressed, had been shipped east. Shipments during May are estimated at around 200,000 head, with the peak loadings during the second week. The total eastern movement will probably be larger than the first estimate of around 300,000 live and dressed.
