OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY OF KLAMATH FALLS

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it"—Abraham Lincoln

THE AMERICAN LEGION ALWAYS KEEPS IN STEP

The fine enterprise of the American Legion for taking care of war orphans, brought to attention by its deserving effort to raise a national endowment fund, does not include any orphan asylums as part of the plan.

Instead of putting children into institutions, the legion will follow the more enlightened method of placing them in private homes, in the care of those who will love and care for them as though they were their very own.

This has become the modern way of solving the heart-breaking problem of the orphan. Not so very long ago the hardened criminal had a fate to be preferred to that of the child whose only offense was to be without father or mother.

Time has abolished the abuses of the orphanage. The lives of the children have fallen into the keeping of tender-hearted men and women. But the disadvantage of institutional life remained to single them out as rubber-stamp exceptions to the general rule of happy children with the love of parents and homes of their own.

People are learning that the love of a foster-parent can be just as deep, just as much a source of happiness, as that of the natural parent. The tendency now is all toward finding homes for children, not toward cooping them up in institutions.

The American Legion is to be congratulated for falling into step with this policy. Good luck to the legion and success to their fund to take care of orphans and disabled veterans.

COMPARE NEWSPAPER TO MENU

A newspaper is like a restaurant's bill of fare, says an article in a recent issue of the Englewood Times, published in Chicago. Every subscriber is not expected to digest every article any more than every patron is expected to eat everything on the menu. But the paper, like the bill of fare, is planned for every man's taste. Take what you like—leave the rest; this is the motto of both.

However, says the Times, "malicious, sensational stuff has no place in any paper, much less in one that is supposed to reach the homes, and unfortunately there are some who feature this element. Every real editor does his best to keep his paper clean and decent, and gives all the news his space will allow, and local papers should be very particular in their bid for popularity not to reach the wrong side in their moral tone, as there are too many of the other kind in the larger city fields."

GOOD ADVICE

President Hindenburg says to Germany: "Get to work!"

Finance Minister Caillaux says to France: "Cut expenses to the bone!"

Both see that their nations need to forget the luxury of hate and waste, and think only of the vital necessity of industrial regeneration.

The advice of these two Europeans is as valuable here in the United States; it is exactly what President Coolidge has emphasized from the first day of his presidency.

THE ROTATION

Japan is planting over 350,000 acres of forest and timber every year with her comparatively limited area. In this country there are less than 40,000 acres a year of replanting, while there are over 80,000,000 acres of denuded timber lands. We have a lot of things to learn yet.

Long ago there were people who hated everybody, but they didn't call it bolshevism.

HEARD AND HOME PROBLEMS

He is 21. She is 22 and wealthy. What chance of being happy in marriage have they? The question is asked in the following letter:

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have read in your column on several occasions what you have had to say about marriages between persons of different ages, but I am coming to you because I think my case is different. I was married when I was 17 to a widower with four children. It was arranged by my parents. My husband lived only three years, and left me a comfortable fortune. I devoted myself to taking care of his children. I was left homeless and an orphan at an early age, and I didn't want them to suffer from the same loneliness and neglect. These stepchildren are grown up now and two are married. I am 22, and well preserved. I have nothing to envy but the management of a farm. I want to travel, to see the world. But I don't want to go alone. Last summer I met a young man then 20, now 21. He is rather nice looking, and is my ideal of manhood. He has hinted at marriage, but everyone says that the difference in our ages is too great and he would soon tire of me. I do, since the young man has not don't think so. He knows my age, and also knows about a mistaken love affair I had a few years ago.

LONELY WIDOW

From your letter I gather that you do not love him, but merely see him as desirable. You should wait a year before taking the step, in any event, and you should try to be sure that he isn't marrying you for your money. Get him to take you places where there are young women, and see if he devotes himself entirely to you in his attention. I am rather inclined to believe this marriage would be unwise. How man then 20, now 21. He is rather nice looking, and is my ideal of manhood. He has hinted at marriage, but everyone says that the difference in our ages is too great and he would soon tire of me. I do, since the young man has not don't think so. He knows my age, and also knows about a mistaken love affair I had a few years ago.

THE BEST OF ADVICE

Jottings from the notebook of an adventurer among books:

I. If you hold small objects to your eyes, you limit your field of vision and shut out the world.

And, in the same way, the people of things which stand nearest, even though they are of the very smallest consequence, are apt to claim an amount of attention much beyond their due, occupying us disagreeably, and leaving no room for serious thoughts and affairs of importance.

II. The mind attaches itself from indolence and from constancy to whatever is easy and agreeable to it. This habit always sets limits to our knowledge.

Who ever takes the trouble to enlarge and guide his mind to the extent of its capacities?

III. One thing which makes us find so few people who appear reasonable and agreeable in conversation is that there is scarcely any one who does not think more of what he is about to say than of answering precisely what is said to him.

IV. How vain to try to teach youth or anybody truths.

They can only learn them after their own fashion, and when they are ready.

V. There are many truths that cannot be proved.

VI. We more readily confess to errors, mistakes, and shortcomings in our conduct than in our thought.

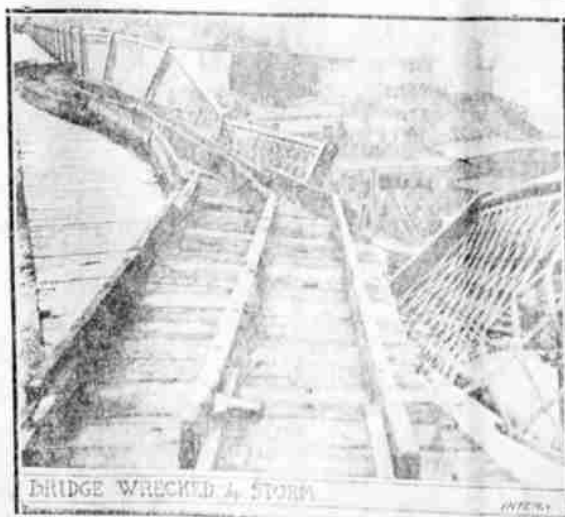

The reason of R. Goethe says, is that the conscience is humble and even takes pleasure in being ashamed.

"But the intellect is proud, and if forced to recant is driven to despair.

"This also explains how it is that truths which have been recognized are at first tacitly admitted, and then gradually spread, so that the very thing which was obstinately denied appears at last to be something quite natural."

"Baby Tornado" Hits Pittsburgh

DINNER STORIES

Did you ever hear about the Scotchman who walked 20 miles to see a baseball game, and when he got there he was too tired to climb the fence?

His wife wanted to ride in an airplane. So he asked the man how much he charged for a ride.

The man replied: "$29 for an hour's ride, providing you do not talk."

The wife and he got in the plane and went up for an hour. When the plane landed the owner said: "Well, it is $29. You didn't talk, did you?"

"No," said the Scotchman, "but I came very near it when my wife fell out."

Young Newrich had spent twelve months abroad, and on his return was greeted warmly by his father, accompanied by guests.

"Well, Charlie, old boy, enjoyed yourself?" cried old Newrich, joyously. "And how you've grown!"

"Grown, father, grown," corrected his son.

"Well, I'm blessed," replied the old man, in a surprised tone. "Itum notum you pick up abroad. What have I to grow for?"

Merchants Bureau To Meet Tonight

The Klamath Falls Merchants Bureau will hold an important meeting tonight at 6:30 at the chamber of commerce rooms, the occasion being one of the regular monthly meetings of the organization with the added attraction of a banquet for the entertainment of prospective new members.

Earl Shephard, president of the bureau announces that every member will be expected to bring at least one Klamath merchant with him who is not a member, either a retail tradesman who is a new arrival and has not taken out his membership or one of the ex-members who has become inactive in the organization.

The purposes and accomplishments of the bureau will be reviewed for the benefit of the visitors and such measures discussed as are facing the organization at this time. Particular emphasis will be placed on the work of the Credit Bureau which is an important branch of the merchants association work.

PLASTERERS IN K. F. ORGANIZE IN UNION

Local Plasterers organized a union last night and a charter is being sent for. Practically all the operative Plasterers met and have all agreed on one price and wage scale.

The Lathers who are always allied with the Plasterers are to be organized at a later date. These two unions will complete the organization of the Basic trades in the building line.

spoon flour or corn meal, two tablespoons salt, two tablespoons oil. Mix together and add one cup of hot water. Keep it smooth. Then add a teaspoon of baking powder and a cup of butter and bake in cupcake.

Rhubarb Pudding—One cup of stewed rhubarb, one cup sweet—lata a hot boiled rice that has been off dry. Add a cup of cream, turn into a set to chill. Unroll slices with whipped cream.

SUGGESTIONS
Make your eggs when eggs are strong them thoroughly in tin cans. Store in a cool place.

When light colored skin shoes become too nice, purchase a shoe shine polish and give the shoes a good shine. After drying give the coat and still the shoes covered and you will have a good every-day shoe.

Utility home is in various other things as follows: Paint wooden box inside and the point is dry glass colored picture on a coat of shellac on four box casters. In each corner, oil will well glide any place of room boxes may be a piece of cretonne or drapes and their shade.
