OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY OF KLAMATH FALLS

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it"—Abraham Lincoln

JOURNALISM

Journalism is a profession, a public service, and a business. Its primary object is to inform through the narration, explanation, and interpretation of events in their season. The best interests of society and of journalism itself will be promoted when all journalists live up to the principles here declared, and when those who fail so to do will lose something of their standing among their fellow journalists.

The profession of journalism is a high calling of great responsibility; it demands of its individual members sound moral character, honesty of purpose and of performance, courtesy, sympathy and consideration in their professional relations with each other and with the public. Because of its importance and responsibilities, it requires as expert ability, as broad and thorough knowledge and training as any other learned profession.

To maintain a firm professional standing the journalist must keep himself free from such social, business, political, and other connections as may tend to narrow or bias his judgment or interfere with the full and unfettered discharge of his duties. He must have the courage to tell the truth and to respect the right of privacy.

The establishing of a firm professional standing requires the creation of an ethical code so generally accepted that it can be enforced by the power of professional opinion, when the charlatan in journalism will take his place with the shyster and the quack.

The practice of journalism is a quasi-public service. Its function is to tell the news—truth, facts and events; to interpret the news honestly and fairly; and to afford a means of communication for advertisers and such others as the public's interest may require. Its duty requires that it shall constantly endeavor to publish nothing that is contrary to the public good.

The journalist must safeguard himself and his public from selfish interests seeking his aid through propaganda or other biased or falsified publicity, paid or unpaid.

No newspaper can print all the truth. It must endeavor so to select the news it publishes as to express the many aspects of truth most accurately in fact, in proportion, and in emphasis. News of crime, scandal, and horror should be neither emphasized nor suppressed, but given attention proportionate to its importance in the daily life of decent men.

The press must be free to tell and to discuss whatever is not expressly forbidden by law. It must be free to emphasize and advocate through news and opinion such principles and policies as it believes to be the best interest of society without incurring blame for so doing. It must be fair and just; it can not be neutral.

Doubtless one way to have less crime news would be to do more spanking.

There's no telling how well this Cobb will hit when he matures.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

When a girl marries a man simply to get a home, or to get away from her own, regardless of whether she loves him, she is not playing fair with him or with herself.

Yet this happens too often. A woman writes me:
 Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a homeless mother and have to work for a living for myself and baby. I have to take it wherever I go, as my folks will not keep it for me. I have been going with a young man about seven years my senior, but he does not come to see me as regular as usual. I am twenty-two years of age, and am considered to be a good housekeeper and cook, and would appreciate a home very much. I would try to make it as pleasant as possible. I really never had a home of my own. I always had to work to help my folks along, but now I work for myself and baby. How can I gain this man's love and how could I tell him I would like to settle down with him. Please advise me.
 BLUE EYES.

Would you be willing to go to this man and tell him you are willing to sell yourself to him for a home and the label of "Mrs.?" Well, this is just what you propose. Your letter does not indicate that you love him. I take it that if he loved you and hoped to marry you he would display more of an interest. If he does love you, then you would be making a great mistake to attempt to hurry matters, for this might turn him from you. All you can do is keep yourself as neat and as attractive as possible, and wait.

E. E. M.: Your friendship is not such as to require a birthday gift. A pretty birthday card, available in any stationery store, would be sufficient.

THANK YOU: If the minister's wife knows either of you, then write a note and tell her you would like for her to come. Otherwise, it is

DINNER STORIES

Said Mayor Hylan, when he arose to speak at a dinner in New York: "My nervousness on this occasion reminds me of the bashful young man who had just got married. He and his little bride were receiving the congratulations of their relatives and friends at the reception which followed the wedding ceremony. Somebody called upon him to say a few words, but he hung back and stammered and bashfully declined. His friends kept at him and finally his wife said: 'Get up and say something to them George. Show them you can do it.'"

"George hesitated a moment, rose to his feet, looked around vainly for some means of escape, and then, putting his hand on his bride's shoulders, blurted out: 'This thing has been imposed on me.'"

In search of a horse, a rather nervous Frenchman went to a dealer and explained his wants.

"Yes, sir, certainly," said the latter blandly. "I have just the animal you want."

He led the prospective customer through his stable and finally came to a halt beside a small but wiry animal, which rolled its eyes in an ominous way.

"There you are, sir! This is a fine horse, either to drive or ride. As sound as a nut, and goes ten miles without stopping."

"But, m'sieur," protested the Frenchman, "I leave but eight miles from zo station. If I buy heem I have to walk two miles in zo backward direction!"

Mandy, the negro laundress, picked up a magazine and began to turn over the pages aimlessly. Then she seemed to be fascinated by one of the pictures.

"Who dat woman, Miss Blank?" she inquired.
 "That's Queen Elizabeth, Mandy," said Miss Blank.
 Mandy seemed to be stricken dumb. Finally she burst forth breathlessly:
 "Am' dat de queen, Miss Blank? My land, what a homely woman! My land, what a ugly woman! Why, Miss Blank, that queen ain't no better looking than you is."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Breakfast
 Grapefruit
 Oatmeal with Raisins and Top Milk
 Omelet Toast
 Coffee

Luncheon
 Fruit Salad
 Celery
 Wholewheat Bread
 Coffee

Dinner
 Dandelion Greens with Ham
 Boiled Potatoes
 Green Onions
 Baked Custard with Rhubarb Sauce

TODAY'S RECIPES
 The oatmeal for breakfast is cooked the evening before and reheated in the morning. Greens are gathered and cleaned one evening and allowed to stand in water until the next evening. When a ham end is used, it is partly cooked the evening before and is finished cooking with the greens. You can boil the potatoes with the ham and greens, or they may be put in a steamer over the kettle. The custard may be cooked in a double boiler instead of in the oven. The rhubarb sauce should be made rather sweet. Green onions may be served instead of salad.

SUGGESTIONS
 We all have pretty pillow cases with a good deal of hand work on them whether the embroidery is the labor of love of a friend or our own work it is a pity to throw it away. Here are two suggested ways of saving the embroidery and using it on new cases. Cutting off the end and sewing it on new material, making two or three small tucks so the seam will not show, it will do service for another term. After laundering, such a pillow case looks like new, and the tucks give a really pretty and different finish.

Or, cut the embroidery off the worn out slips, leaving a margin of half an inch. Have this double hemstitched onto ruse, also blue linen crash toweling. This makes a most pleasing effect and is pretty enough for a gift.

While it is true that in general fruits and fruit juices are valuable for an anti-constipation diet, the home dietitian should not forget that there is an exception to this. Blackberries are constipating and these should be kept in mind when planning such a diet.

words, and this meaning they interpret themselves.

In Tennessee some men who believe that there is only one bible, have made it illegal by state law for their neighbors to have any other. Some good gentlemen from other states, agitated because a man has been arrested for violating the law, although he invited arrest, are preparing to go to Tennessee in the name of liberty to defend him, and force their bible, and their interpretation, upon Tennessee. So moves the world.
