

Pelicans Win When Dunsmuir Mixes Football With Baseball

LOCALS SLUG BALL HARD, TAKING ADVANTAGE OF EACH BOBBLE TO WIN AFTER GETTING POOR START

Klamath-Siskiyou "Beauty" Wild As The Jazz Girl And Gets Yanked In 8th; Boys Come From Behind After Things Start With Gloom

Fifteen hundred Klamath Falls baseball fans journeyed out to the fair grounds Sunday to see a pitchers' battle. They say a slugfest. They saw the highly touted Wells of Dunsmuir, who held the league-leading McClouds to three hits the Sunday previous, sent to the showers after a series of hits, two wild pitches and hit by pitched balls. As you will note, the summary is just chock full of these little items. An added attraction to the game was a football game played by the Dunsmuir in the eighth inning.

But the game was full of thrills, and it had its flashy streaks. Things looked mighty bad for the Pelicans up until the latter innings. Fans waited in vain for something to holler about until the sixth inning. In fact, from then on it was a scream, the way the Pelicans persisted in utter disrespect of this man Wells' reputation.

In the second inning a scare was thrown into the stand that "Sunny" Mohler was not in condition. Three bunched hits and a base on balls gave the Railroaders a three-run lead in that frame. It was not until the fourth that the Pelicans could shove across one lone run, and that was just luck. And the Dunsmuir, not to be daunted, scored two in the 5th and one in the 6th. When the score boy ran up the totals in the sixth inning it stood 6-1. It looked like the Pelicans would go down to an inglorious defeat.

But this man Wells had displayed none too much control from the start. While he coaxed in a fast winged ball, after five innings, the locals began socking it on the bezer. In the 6th they opened up with all they had. "Red" Watts took a good look at those fast breaking ones and walked. Noel singled, and Watts went to 3rd. Arnold was thrown out at first. A certain clever little third baseman was next up. He hails by the name of Bayness. A couple games back they were going to bench this little flash, because of inability to hit. Well, he won the Mt. Shasta game last week, and he did as much as anyone in the game yesterday to defeat the Dunsmuir, unless it was this man Wells, who, as we said before, donated a flock of wild pitches and other irregularities. Bayness doubled after a count of 2 and 3. Watts and Noel scored. But the Pelicans were three runs in arrears.

In the 7th the locals added two more. Demitt went out, short to first. Mohler singled and went to second on a wild pitch. Norwest singled and Mohler took third. Norwest stole second. Then this bold Wells heaved another wild pitch, and Mohler skipped home, Norwest taking third. Another wild pitch and in came Norwest. The score was 6 to 5, with the Pelicans on the short end.

The last of the 8th rolled around, and meanwhile Mohler was going his best. There wasn't any free hitting party like the first part of the game. It was in this 8th that Dunsmuir, seeing their chances at baseball ruined, shifted to a football game.

Wells was taken out of the game for unnecessary roughness, in hitting Arnold in the back with one of his fast ones. This unnecessary roughness phrase, however, is gridironically speaking. For the real cause was wildness. Wells curled several around Mohler's neck earlier in the game that made the Portland sand-lotter screw-gee through a lot of funny contortions. McBride, who had been warming up on the side lines for two innings, was rushed into the fray in the last few minutes to stem the Pelicans' sure chances for a touchdown. Hayness went through left field for a big gain of two bases.

Booth tapped one to Pitcher McBride, who drop kicked, that is dropped it, and kicked it around, finally forward passing to First Baseman White, but let the ball go by him. The ball rolled out into the field for what would have been a touchback. All this time Booth was traveling around the bags on nothing but what should have been an easy out, pitcher to first. The right fielder punted the ball in, but it went out of bounds, and Booth went to third. Demitt then got up and just naturally cracked a pretty single into the outfield, scoring Booth. The score was 7 to 6, with the Pelicans on the long end now, so Mohler looked a couple of McBride, the Wild's bad ones over, and lined out.

But hold on! The Dunsmuir were now frothing at the mouth. They had not only disgraced themselves by the fact that Wells had run himself to the showers, but now they were about to lose a ball game.

They sent a bird named Hull in to pinch hit for Coon. Hull cracked a long fly out in Staley's mitts in left field. But Staley let the pellet pounce on his glove and pounce right out again. Hull got to second in safety. E. Spores cracked out a two-bagger and Coon scored the tying run. Spores stole third. And here came one of the prettiest plays in the game. Spores took a big lead off the bag. Mohler put one square over the concrete and White taking a healthy cut at it, missed. Demitt snapped the ball to Bayness, who tagged Spores. Mohler heaved a great sigh of relief and the side was retired.

The rest was easy. The Pelicans scored their last and winning run, an unearned one, like most of them, by the way, when Watts walked with one down. McBride hit Noel, and Watts went to second. Arnold singled and Watts scored after a close play at home.

Two straight wins for the Pelicans. The next victim is McCloud at McCloud next Sunday.

Athletics Score 11 Runs in One Inning Against Cleveland

Connie Mack's Scrapping Youngsters Maintain League Leadership

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—The wildest inning exploded in the major leagues of baseball since Charlie Comiskey was a bat-boy, went off in the Athletic yard in Philadelphia this afternoon. It blasted away a lead of 11 runs, which the Cleveland Indians had built up by industrious clubbing; gave the Athletics 13 runs and the victory.

Going to bat in the last half of the eighth, the Athletics were the short-ends in a score of 15 to 4. When the inning was over the score was 17 to 15, and thus it remained through the ninth. The upheaval even surpassed a classic ninth-inning commotion that occurred several seasons ago at the Polo Grounds in which the Yanks and Tigers figured. The Yanks were eight runs ahead entering ninth, and yet lost the game.

The climax of the Athletics' great assault with the bat was a home run by Al Simmons, with two men on bases, but the whole attack probably expresses the youthful audacity of Connie Mack's new ball club, which started the season by challenging the Senators and Yanks, with their great reputations, and which has led the league thus far.

The Athletics knew that if they lost the game they would fall back into a tie with the Senators for first place. They have not even had to share first place for a long time.

Shastas' Hard Luck Streak Continues

(Special to The News)

YREKA, Calif., June 15.—Mt. Shasta's new and speedy southpaw, Colledge, got off to a bad start here Sunday, and the Yrekan ran up a lead in the first few innings that could not be downed, although when the smoke finally cleared away the Shastas were but one run behind. The Shasta team, which has won but one out of its five league games, outplayed the Yrekas both with the stick and on the field, but the breaks and bunched hits spelled defeat. Metten was none too steady for the Yrekas and was lucky to get away with a win.

League Leaders Win From Weed

(Special to The News)

WEED, Calif., June 15.—The league-leading and fast McCloud team won its second game of the season from Weed here Sunday by a score of 9 to 8. Both teams slugged the ball hard, the winning run being made by McCloud in the 9th. Slinger and Burton, the McCloud mainstays, and Oeschger and Stobener were the batteries.

Is Harry Greb, world's middleweight title holder and the only human windmill in the boxing game, making a fatal mistake in agreeing to make the middleweight limit of 160 pounds in his coming battle with Mickey Walker, welter king?

This is a weakness of veteran champions, that they eventually heed the call of the dollars above all other considerations and agree to some stipulation that spells their undoing. And the matter of weight is one of the most common stumbling blocks. Greb has not made the 160-pound weight in two years. His battles fought since he met and won the title from Johnny Wilson in 1923, have been at catch weights for him. He always weighed in over the 160 mark.

Now he is agreeing to go against a champion at a weight that may weaken him. If he does have trouble making that poundage he will be under a great handicap. Walker, going out of his class in tackling Greb, will force the fight from the start. Walker will have nothing to lose and everything to gain in the scrap, which fact will make the way for him to take the offensive. Greb will have to check Mickey's attacks. He will need his speed to stand off the younger and smaller man. Speed takes stamina.

Greb will not need to force the fighting. A decision victory for Walker will not hurt Greb's standing as a middleweight. He's about all there is in the division, anyway.

Incidentally Covey, Van Grege and Dutch Reuther are fooling most of the critics. Many questioned the judgment of Manager Harris and
