FULL INFANTRY BRIGADE MAKES BRILLIANT SIGHT

Bayonets Glisten In Sun; Battle Maneuvers To Begin On Rogue

MEDFORD, June 22.—The full strength of the 82nd Infantry brigade, comprising Oregon national guard troops in encampment here, passed in brigade review today before Major General Charles T. Mencher, commander of the 9th corps area, who came from San Francisco for the review and inspection of the troops, and to witness brigade maneuvers which begin Tuesday.

In light marching order, and with fixed bayonets gleaming in the sun, the 2500 troops made an inspiring appearance as they passed in parade before the corps commander. It was the first time in Oregon national guard history that full infantry brigade had been assembled and reviewed. The troops, hardened by 10 days of drill, presented a fine appearance.

The parading soldiers were under personal command of General White, who paraded past the reviewing stand with his staff, at the head of his troops.

S. P. Filling Flat For Shops In K. F. Is Reliable Word

Special Work Train Making Daily Trips From Shasta With Gravel To Fill in Sunken Land for Proposed Terminal.

What is believed to be the first actual move of the Southern Pacific railroad to establish railroad shops, a round house, and possible divisional office point in Klamath Falls, became known yesterday through a reliable source. According to this report a special work train arrived yesterday, and will continue carrying a train of pit-run dirt and gravel from near Mount Shasta and at Grass lake to fill in the flat running from the Southern Pacific tracks south to the edge of Mills addition, and from Sixth street, east to Orchard avenue, and a small strip along the tracks as far as East Main.

This special train yesterday carried 20 cars loaded with dirt and gravel, and is under orders to continue the work for 60 days, which is believed will be sufficient time to fill the flat. Another train may be added the latter part of the week to assist in the work.

Information as to where the roundhouse would be located was also contained in the reliable report. The big locomotive-housing station will be located at the end of the present Southern Pacific "Y" and will house eight stalls, each of which will accommodate three big main-line engines and four of the smaller type.

Blatant and consistent rumors that the Southern Pacific shops were destined to be located at Fuego would be dispelled should this reliable report be confirmed.
