ATTACK ON ISLAND BOON STILL

Officers Surround River Isle Big Catch

Received a new net yesterday learned that a net was operating on the river. While Mr. Day declined to state the object of his visit, rumors have been heard that the Day interests are about to commence cutting their Klamath holdings and establishing a mill in Klamath Falls. Other rumors are that the Day interests are in favor of entrance of the Northern lines into Klamath Falls and are here to encourage their extending here from Bend. While Jack Kimball, representing the Weyerhaeuser interests here, declined to state the object of Mr. Day's presence here, he hinted that there was something "important" in the wind. The Day interests are owners of about 16,000 acres of fine timber country in scattered sections of the Klamath country. This is the first time in about 10 years that Mr. Day has been in the Klamath country.

It will go hard with the liquor imbiber while Acting Justice of the Peace Ed Kendall is in office, if the case of Walter Edes is any criterion. Edes was arrested for being drunk on the highway. "How do you wish to plead?" asked Kendall. "Guilty, your honor," was Edes' reply. Kendall sat back in his chair and eyed the violator coldly. "I'll just give you $100 fine, and if you can't raise it you'll have to lay it out in jail."

SMOLDERING FOREST FIRES FRUSTRATING RANGERS IN COUNTY

While eight forest fires threatened the Klamath country last week with their sporadic blazes in the Bly country and in the northern sections of the Klamath reservation, all are practically extinguished and well under control, according to Jack Kimball of the Klamath Forest Protective association. "Smoke from these smoldering blazes, however, is making it difficult for rangers in these sections to detect a new blaze," declared Kimball last night. "But we are keeping an eagle eye out and anticipate no great trouble just at present."

SCHWARTZ KILLS SELF AS POLICE SURROUND HOUSE

Mystery Cleared With Death Of Leader Of Double Life Crook

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 10.—(United News)—For the last three years of his life, Charles Henry Schwartz, played the hazardous game of a double existence. To his family and business associates, he was a toiling chemist, seeking fame through original research. To women, whose company he sought, he was Harold Warren, cultured bachelor and world war hero. When Schwartz murdered a roving preacher in his Walnut creek laboratory he dropped the Schwartz and became Warren. He had hoped that mutilation of G. W. Barbe's body would lead to the general belief that he, himself, had been killed. As "Warren" he then sought out friends he had known under that name, and used their hospitality to conceal himself for 10 days. When Schwartz killed himself Sunday as police were closing in upon him he merged for all time the roles he had played. He became Schwartz, the frustrated murderer. These tactics of the "scientific" killer came to light Monday when C. W. Hayward, who gave police information which brought them to Schwartz's hiding place, went over occurrences of the chemist's last days. While in Hayward's apartment house, Schwartz kept up his air of bravado and was the "life of the party" at several social functions. Not Once Suspected "Never while he was with us did he show any interest in newspapers," Hayward said. "I marvel at his debonair manner, when he must have known he was being hunted all over the country. "Why, at a surprise party to my daughter, he joked, laughed and mixed freely with the guests. He mixed punch, invented new games and even led the 'grand march' strolling along gaily at the head of the group." Schwartz became popular with the Hayward circle of friends and was invited to an informal dinner party last Saturday evening. He declined, saying that an "injured foot" kept him at home. Eight hours later he committed suicide. Mrs. Schwartz, the widow, has turned against the father of her three children. Wife Spurns Husband "He lied to me, while he was alive," she said, "and his last act on earth was to write a pack of lies in that letter he left for me." Mrs. Schwartz would have collected $180,000 if her husband had been killed in an accident. Now the most she will get is $25,000 as a majority of the policies were taken out less than a year ago and contained a suicide clause. She has taken employment as a stenographer with her attorney.

No Fishing License; Gets a Fine of $25

Because he neglected to purchase a fishing license before he made a trip to Rocky Point Sunday, Kenneth Holliday is carrying around a receipt for $25 from a Klamath Judge. When arrested by Game Warden Marion J. Barnes, Holliday plead guilty Monday morning. According to Barnes the day was a busy one in the fish business as the majority of the fishermen in Klamath county flocked to Rocky Point and other points of interest along the lake and spent the day angling. One 10 pound trout was reported among the big catches of the day, that made by a tourist from Texas.

Baby Falls 3 Stories Out Of Window; Saved

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Dashing from the horror-stricken crowd, watching two-year-old Moe Klien falling from the third floor of a Bronx apartment building, an unidentified young man caught the baby in his arms, set it down unhurt, and disappeared. The child was playing on the window ledge when the unknown hero saw it.

No Politics Bubble In Nation's Prohib Burst

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The shining bubble bearing the inscription "no politics in prohibition enforcement" has burst, unceremoniously. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has let it be known that the new prohibition administrators selected by Lincoln C. Andrews, dry czar, must be approved by senators in the various districts. This admission came from a high treasury official Monday. It is in accordance with ancient customs here and would occasion no surprise except for the repeated announcements from Andrews that political influence would not count.

It Takes A Smart Guy To Make The L. A. Force

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—(United News)—What is a moron? "A man with more than one wife," according to a misinformed applicant who thus answered that question in the civil service examination for policemen. What would you do, he was asked, if you found a man with a severe cut on his head that was bleeding freely? "I'd put a tourniquet on his neck and twist it tight so the blood wouldn't run to his head," was the answer. He didn't get the job.

K.F. Ranks Next To Portland In July Building

Klamath Falls, led only by Portland, throughout the state ranked second among the cities of Oregon for building permits during the past month of July, according to statistics compiled in the National Monthly Building Survey of the S. W. Strauss and company, received here yesterday. During the past month, a building boom, never before experienced in the construction of residences and other buildings, sent Klamath Falls up high on the ladder of building permits throughout the state. The figure was set at $301,105, with an even 100 permits issued. The June building permits were exceeded in the city by nearly $100,000 when final statistics for that month point to an aggregation of $222,660. Portland leads the list, Klamath Falls second with the following cities, Eugene $200,200; Salem, $180,730; Astoria, $86,863; Medford, $62,705.

JAZZ GIRL WILL TRY TO GO FREE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—(United News)—Dorothy Ellingson's second murder trial is scheduled to begin Tuesday. Charged with slaying her mother on January 13, the girl's first trial was adjourned to an insanity hearing, at which she was declared insane and committed to a state institution. After a month's observation physicians at the Napa state hospital made a report in which they found Dorothy sane and she was returned here for another trial. Dorothy now 17 years old, was 16 at the time of the killing. She has confessed the crime, later repudiating the admission and claiming that "Jimmy LaMar," a character police say is fictional, did the shooting.

VONHINDENBURG WILL CELEBRATE REPUBLIC

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—(United News)—President von Hindenburg, late commander of the Imperial armies of the all-highest, will preside over the sixth anniversary celebration of the promulgation of the republican constitution Tuesday in the plenary hall of the reichstag. Hindenburg probably will be most striking figure among the gathering of officials and deputies. Instead of the field marshal's uniform with which his great, bulky figure is associated in the German mind, the soldier turned politician will wear a frock coat, faintly striped trousers and stand-up collar—the recognized accoutrement for a German statesman. On August 11, 1919, the new constitution was promulgated, and since then Germany has been governed thereby. It declares that Germany is a republic and that the power of the state is derived from the people.

GAME COMMISSION STILL SQUABBLING

PORTLAND, Aug. 10.—Bitter squabbles were renewed in the game commission Monday, as the commissioners convened for the first time since the July session, when a general "house cleaning" was made through summary dismissal of A. E. Burghdoff, state game warden; M. L. Rickman, state superintendent of hatcheries and Otto M. Jones, educational director. This resumption of acrimonious discussion and reopening of old quarrels resulted when William L. Finley, Judge J. W. Maloney and M. H. Bauer, commissioners, objected to minutes of the previous meeting. Finley declared that the record of the July meeting was unfair. Maloney objected to certain private affairs being spread on the public records, and Bauer alleged that misstatements had been made in regard to actions prepared by himself.

Michigan Congressman Sued Again For Divorce

ALPENA, Mich., Aug. 10.—More revelations of drinking, gambling and love-making in a "rich fast set" of Washington society are promised by Mrs. Edna James Scott, wife of Congressman Frank Douglas Scott of Michigan, as she prepares for the opening Tuesday of the second round of the couple's divorce battle.

CATHOLIC BISHOP WILL BAR GIRLS COMING TO CHURCH 'HALF DRESSED'

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 10.—(United News)—Asserting that American women are flaunting their physical charms in costumes that not only degrade the wearers, but are a constant source of sin to others, Bishop A. L. Hickey has threatened to bar women "improperly garbed" from churches of the Roman Catholic diocese of Providence. "The styles of today expose the female form so freely that nothing is left to the imagination," Bishop Hickey declared in a sermon at the cathedral of St. Peter and Paul. Reminding the congregation of the fate of the pagan nations, when their scantily clad women paraded their charms before the populace, he said American women appear to have entered upon a similar fashion of intimate exhibitions, which are seriously affecting the nation's morals. Bishop Hickey agreed with Henry Ford's recent statement that immoral dress, dance halls and motion pictures are breaking down Christianity and denouncing bathing beauty contests as shocking and conducive to loose morals.

BIG LAKES ASKS A $25,000 SPUR ON LAKE EWAUNA

Should the street committee of the city council see fit to endorse its move, the Saw Mill Engineering and Construction company will construct a $24,000 spur track on this side of the Ewauna lake shore, near Payne alley. A formal application was submitted to the council last night, and this is to be acted on after the street committee has made an investigation. The industrial spur would be constructed for the Big Lakes Lumber company to facilitate the unloading of logs from the main line of the Strahorn road. At present the logs are unloaded at a small canal-like neck of the lake, and the new unloading site is merely to facilitate matters, according to officials of the company, who, when asked whether it had anything to do with the alleged wholesale "blocking" moves on the part of certain roads to keep other certain roads out of the city, etc., declared emphatically that the move was entirely to facilitate the unloading of logs. Building permits of last night's council session, should the spur track be authorized, would total $40,000.

Black Twister Wreaks Havoc In California Town

ROCKWOOD, Calif., Aug. 10.—(United News)—Of the 22 houses that once comprised this small desert settlement in the Imperial valley, only one weakened structure remains after the disastrous cloud burst and twister that visited here Monday. Falling timbers seriously injured nine persons. Two men and one woman were knocked unconscious when the heavy wind picked them up and hurled them against houses. Two cone shaped wind clouds which met in the center of the town became a huge twister which uprooted trees, lifted roofs and leveled the small settlement with the exception of a lone house on the fringe of town. A violent hail storm and cloud burst followed. Telephone and telegraph wires were down for three miles in the direction of Brawley. The neighboring towns of Brawley, Holtville and El Centro are rushing aid here.

Sinnott Not To Run In Senatorial Race

While the Oregonian and several other smaller papers throughout the state have been hammering away vociferously for the past ten days with a ballyhoo for Congressman N. J. Sinnott to run for U. S. senator at the next election, Sinnott himself denies emphatically that he will enter the senatorial race. In a letter to Linn Nesmith of the chamber forum committee, the congressman declares: "I am not going to be a candidate for the United States senate. That is emphatic. But I do intend to run for re-election for the house of representatives."

Vet. Oregon Congressman Not Desirous Leaving Lower House

Sinnott, who has been elected by Oregon for six times and who is chairman of the house committee on public lands, expects to be here in September and will address the chamber of commerce forum luncheon.

CITY'S MONOPOLY OF WATER SUPPLY URGED BY MAYOR

Klamath Falls pays too much for its water. The municipality should take care of its own water supply. So declared Fred R. Goddard, mayor, in a special message delivered to the council last night. The city, growing by leaps and bounds, should handle its own water system, the mayor contended. Springs to the north should be utilized, he said. It was pointed out that the cost of irrigation is too high and that more economical service could be obtained through municipal control. Mayor Goddard stressed the need of better sewage facilities, and in this connection suggested that the city council take immediate action toward securing the services of a sanitary engineer to make a preliminary survey and report as to the city's needs. Underground Wiring Power lines and electric light lines should be laid underground, the mayor believes. The council commented favorably upon the recommendation to accelerate the movement for better sewage facilities, but failed to recognize by word of mouth suggestions that private corporations should be forced to lay their power lines underground. Ways and means of securing funds to defray the expenses of an inspection of the city sewer system were discussed, and it will be discussed later. In his recommendation that private power companies' electric light wires should be removed and established underground, the mayor pointed out that larger cities had been forced to this action, and that Klamath Falls would be taking a stitch in time to have the change made at once.
