A. M. Dannison purchased 40 acres of the Sherman ranch and with an object of enlarging his interests in view, has started working the land now in his name.

Little more than 100 acres is being worked by Olive Pitts and his family, recent arrivals from the Bishop district. The land is a portion of the Mason ranch in the valley.

E. C. Smith, immediately upon his arrival in Klamath, purchased 160 acres of the Best ranch and plans by spring to put in a profitable crop.

According to the chamber of commerce bulletin issued today 200 Owens Valley ranchers showed interest enough in County Agriculturalist Henderson's description of the Klamath country to promise to come north and inspect the land within the year.

Ticket to Majors

Big show scouts are angling for Herman Schwartz, giant pitcher of the Bloomington Three-Eye league team, who registered the first perfect game of the 1925 season. Only 27 men faced him, he did not allow a hit or a walk, and there were no errors behind him.

Wool Production Is Now on the Decline

World's Supply Now Less Than Before War
Say Reports

Sheep production in the world is undergoing a very interesting and important change. As a world industry, the general trend of sheep and wool production seems to be receding. In some countries, though, notably Australia, United States, Uruguay, Argentina and New Zealand, phases of breeding operations are expanding. In the last 15 years world production of sheep has decreased 59,000,000 head, or more than the normal sheep population of the leading sheep producing country, Australia.

Recently Armour's livestock bureau, conducted by Edward N. Wentworth, completed a study of world sheep production, and Colonel Wentworth gives as the explanation for the decline in sheep population, the fact that surplus sheep production has always been a frontier industry. The average farmer has been unable to meet the costs of production made necessary by range methods of the past. Within the last 15 years, it has been apparent that the frontiers of the world are becoming more and more settled with a corresponding decline in the extensive method of sheep production. Future expansion in world sheep population will undoubtedly depend on the incorporation of the small flock into the farm livestock project, according to Colonel Wentworth.

Another interesting feature, brought out by this survey, is that since the war the world production of wool has been approximately two and one-half billion pounds, almost one billion pounds under the pre-war average.

The lawyer declared that Harry Wykoff, Washington hotel clerk, "came to her room one night and awakened her with a kiss. Admitting that, Mrs. Scott denied this charge the lawyer quoted Scott's girl secretary as authority for the statement.

FIRE DEPT. QUICKLY
SPIKES SMALL BLAZE

Scores of folk who were downtown last night at 9:39 o'clock followed the fire department to a blaze which proved to be at the home of Mrs. Rose Soule, 1413 High street.

The blaze, however, proved to be of minor importance and was easily extinguished. It threw off a great many sparks for several minutes but did no damage. A large fire in the fireplace combined with a defective flue, was responsible.
